

A. P. Will Appeal Suit To Supreme Court 'Without Delay'

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—The Federal Court judgment in the Government's civil antitrust suit against the Associated Press, nonprofit news co-operative, will be appealed to the United States Supreme Court. The association's Board of Directors announced the step last night, declaring in a statement that "no newspaper, no press service can operate successfully under a court injunction."

The judgment, which would restrain the A. P. perpetually from observing by-laws under which members might consider the competitive ability of an applicant for membership, already is under temporary stay. The appeal, to be taken "without delay," will stay its pending the highest court's ruling.

President Reserves Comment. By coincidence, the directors' statement was adopted about the time that President Roosevelt said at his press-radio conference in Washington that he did not think he wanted to comment on the judgment. The board at the time of its action did not know of the reference to the A. P. suit in the President's conference.

When asked whether he had noted the judgment, the President inquired whether the Supreme Court had handed it down and what was new about it. Later, he smiled and asked: Does the country club still exist? In referring to the A. P. as a country club, the President may have had in mind that the A. P. is a nonprofit co-operative, is organized under the membership corporation laws of the State of New York, as are some fraternal, social and charitable organizations.

Judges Were Divided. The judgment was based on a 2-to-1 decision of three circuit judges in the southern district of New York, who heard the case on the Government's motion for summary judgment. This proceeding denied the A. P. request for a trial on its merits. Justice Department officials have said that this move never before was employed in Sherman Act cases.

The judges sat as an expediting court at the request of Attorney General Biddle, who asked that the action be "in every way expedited." The Government requested the injunction without a trial occurring on the ground that the briefs, affidavits and other documents submitted by opposing attorneys were sufficient for a final decision.

In a formal statement, the A. P. directors said: "No newspaper, no press service can operate successfully under a court injunction. The Associated Press is a nonprofit co-operative organization dedicated to giving an unbiased, factual report of the news."

Foresee Court Supervision. "The decision of the statutory court in New York would subject the world's greatest news-gathering organization to suit and harassment and to a perpetual injunction which would render it subject to future whims of administrative officials and continued supervision of the Federal courts."

The court found the Associated Press was not a monopoly. It found that it was not a common carrier. Yet the decision, if not appealed and overturned, would impose a method of doing business upon the Associated Press which would hamper its efficiency and weaken its co-operative structure.

Resolution Quoted. The board therefore passed the following resolution: "Whereas the board of directors of the Associated Press has considered all the implications involved in the decision of the statutory court and

"Whereas the board has received the advice of counsel and

"Whereas the board is unanimously of the opinion that the decision is one which limits the usefulness of the Associated Press in the proper performance of its duties.

"Be it resolved, That the case be appealed to the United States Supreme Court and that counsel be directed to proceed with such appeal without delay."

New York Publishers Raise A. P.'s Decision to Appeal

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 19 (AP)—Directors of the Associated Press were congratulated today by approximately 100 editors and publishers attending a convention of the New York State Publishers' Association for deciding to appeal to the United States Supreme Court from the Federal court judgment in the Government's civil antitrust suit against the nonprofit news co-operative.

The resolution was passed unanimously after a talk by Richard J. Finnegan, editor of the Chicago Times. Mr. Finnegan, who has actively urged the appeal by the Associated Press, told the editors that a fundamental security of the American way of life is involved.

By the Associated Press. STOCKHOLM, Jan. 19.—The Free Danish Press Service said 6,000 German Gestapo agents poured into Copenhagen yesterday by boat and train from Czechoslovakia and Belgium.

Danish sources in Stockholm said they believed a new wave of sabotage led to the mass importation of the Gestapo. Nazi occupation authorities have accused Danish police of failing to co-operate in combatting numerous outbreaks of sabotage.

L. C. Wade, Arizona RAF Ace Credited With 25 Planes, Killed

Small Craft Spins To Ground Behind Italian Battlefield

By the Associated Press. ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, ALGERIA, Jan. 19.—Wing Comdr. Lance C. Wade, American ace of the RAF, who had the highest score of any fighter pilot in the Mediterranean theater—25 enemy planes destroyed—crashed to his death January 12 in Italy, it was announced today.

The 27-year-old veteran of three years of combat flying, a native of Reklaw, Tex., and who lived in Tucson, Ariz., met death when a small communications plane he was flying spun to the ground many miles behind the front. The cause of the accident was not known.

He was regarded as one of the war's greatest fighter pilots. Shortly before his death Wade was promoted from squadron leader to wing commander, which is equivalent to lieutenant colonel, and placed on the staff of Air Vice Marshal Harry Broadhurst, commander of the Desert Air Force, which has retained that name even in Italy.

Credited With Many Probables. In addition to his 25 confirmed kills, Wade had credit for many probables and damaged enemy aircraft.

When the American Air Force entered the desert war Wade was offered the opportunity to switch to it, with higher rank and more pay.

"Thanks," he replied, "but I'd rather string along with the guys I've been with so long now."

Wade had been decorated with the British Distinguished Flying Cross and two bars. He fought with the RAF all through the Middle East campaign and had many an adventure in the desert. Once he was rescued after a 27-mile walk after his plane had been shot down in combat.

He narrowly escaped death many times. Perhaps his closest call occurred last November 4 in Italy. With a fellow Spitfire pilot, Basil Thornton of London, Wade was patrolling forward positions for the 8th Army. They sighted an enemy formation and discovered themselves pitted against 20 Focke-Wulf 190s and Messerschmitt 109s. Wade damaged three and Thornton destroyed one.

Chased by Seven Planes. Suddenly Wade found himself being chased by seven foes. He dropped into a valley and streaked for miles before the enemy planes gave up the chase, presumably because they had run out of ammunition.

Wade and Sidney Muhart, his companion in civilian flying around Tucson, went to Canada in the first year of the war and joined the air force there.

After training in Canada and some service in the "battle of Britain," they were assigned to the Middle East in 1941.

Muhart was burned fatally when attacked while flying across enemy lines to reach Tobruk in December, 1941. He bailed out and was taken to Cairo, where he died a month later.

Wade continued with the RAF in the desert, first flying hurricanes and then Spitfires, and steadily adding to his record of victories over enemy planes. Eventually he was given command of his squadron, which fought across the desert with the 8th Army and later in Tunisia, Sicily and Italy.

His squadron was one of the most successful and best known in the Mediterranean theater and Wade, who was quiet and unassuming, was one of the best liked flyers. He was admired by the men under him, mostly British and Canadians, and was a close friend of many correspondents.

One of his plans was to settle in the western desert of Africa after the war and introduce a modern irrigation system. Having fought over the desert for more than a year, he knew it well and, like many other desert veterans, was fond of it despite its sandstorms, flies and other discomforts.

Tenth Temblor Shakes San Juan During Prayer for Dead

By the Associated Press. BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 19.—The stricken city of San Juan last night experienced its tenth minor earthquake since a major temblor leveled virtually all its buildings, killed more than 1,500 and injured more than 3,000 persons during the week end.

The new shock came just as President Gen. Pedro Ramirez, addressing survivors and broadcasting to the nation from a square amid the ruins, called for a minute's silence in respect for the dead.

The quake cut the wires connecting the microphone and caused some confusion, but President Ramirez was one of the first to ask for order and he then completed his address.

A Chilean Army truck caravan bearing medical supplies is expected to arrive at San Juan today and Brazilian Red Cross workers also expected to arrive by air to join Chilean and Uruguayan doctors and nurses who are assisting Argentines at the scene. A United States offer of assistance was gratefully accepted by the Argentine government yesterday.

The total number of dead and injured still is uncertain.

Rescuers Dig for Living And Dead Among Ruins

By STANLEY ROSS. Associated Press Foreign Correspondent. SAN JUAN, Argentina, Jan. 19.—A mound of rubble which once was the flourishing city of San Juan, surrounded by luxuriant orchards and vineyards, presented a weird spectacle last night.

Squads of soldiers, who had not slept since Sunday, wearily worked by lamplight to find the bodies of residents of this Andean city, which was destroyed by an earthquake Saturday night.

Survivors evacuated from the remains of the city are living in rude shelters, railroad cars and in the open. Refugees from the roads. Only 50 buildings were left standing and they will be demolished because they are not safe.

The work of demolition was aided yesterday morning by a series of temblors which caused many walls to tumble.

Outside of the city the government is preparing seven temporary camps which will serve as living quarters for 11,000 persons.

Inside, rescue workers labored feverishly for fear still living persons might be entombed in the ruins of large buildings.

Yesterday afternoon a doctor gazed at the body of his wife, then shot himself. A woman went insane believing her 4-year-old daughter had been killed and then did not recognize the child when she wandered back unharmed.

One old woman frantically tore at the ruins of her house convinced her baby granddaughter was still alive. She moved heavy concrete blocks she never would have budged under ordinary circumstances. She found the baby, scared but unhurt, in a small crib formed by the stones and timbers.

Most of the injured have been removed from the city. One thousand were taken to Mendoza yesterday afternoon.

Vaccination of all survivors is proceeding as rapidly as possible. Chilean and Uruguayan doctors and nurses are working side by side with Argentines, performing emergency operations under the most adverse conditions and often without the aid of an anesthetic. The assistance of the Chileans was described by one Argentine official as "incalculable."

"We don't know what we would have done without them," he added. "They have saved dozens of Argentine lives."

Doctors and nurses are living in railroad cars and tents, although most of them have given up their beds to the homeless and sick as they have no time to use them anyway.

The city is without electricity and is sparsely on neighboring towns for water.

ARMY FREIGHTER FOUNDERS—The Army freighter Nevada is shown a few minutes before she disappeared from the surface of the North Atlantic last month after battling a violent storm for five days. This picture was made from the deck of the Coast Guard cutter Comanche, which rescued 29 members of the crew.

Army Ship Founders In 5-Day Storm; 35 of Crew Missing

By the Associated Press. BOSTON, Jan. 19.—Survivors returning to port on another vessel told yesterday of their five-day battle with a raging North Atlantic storm which ended with the foundering of the Army freighter Nevada, and the loss of 35 men from her crew of 64.

Those missing included the lost ship's captain, George F. Turiga of Beacon, N. Y.; seven members of a Navy gun crew, three merchant marine sailors and four Army men.

The vessel ran into a gale soon after leaving a North Atlantic port and in two days was leaking badly.

"Gaining 6 inches per hour," reported the log as rewritten from memory by Capt. W. H. McKown of Boston, who sailed as first officer. "Vessel very deep forward, about 30-degree angle; unmanageable, no rudder." Capt. McKown's log reported of the fourth day, when the ship's engine was stopped.

Cargo was dumped overboard on the fifth day and four distress messages were sent before Capt. Turiga gave the order to abandon ship.

Two lifeboats, with 32 men in each, were lowered, and the captain's boat, on the windward side, capsized as it struck the water. All occupants are listed as missing.

Three of those in the remaining lifeboat were lost as safely was at hand. While being picked up by the Coast Guard cutter Comanche they lost their grip on a net slung overboard and slipped into the sea.

Liquor Probers Call OPA for Details of Fight on Bootlegging

By the Associated Press. The Senate committee investigating the liquor shortage called in officials of the Office of Price Administration today for an accounting of what they have done to "break up bootlegging and black markets."

"We want to find out just how far these officials have gone in forcing down the price of blended whiskeys made up mostly of neutral spirits and bearing fancy new labels," Senator Ferguson, Republican, of Michigan, told reporters. "We understand that some progress has been made in this direction since the committee began its hearings."

Senator Ferguson is a member of the Judiciary Subcommittee headed by Chairman Van Nuys which is making the investigation.

Senator Van Nuys predicted, meanwhile, that unless the Justice Department acts soon to prevent further purchase of wineries by whisky interests, "control of California's wine business soon will pass out of the hands of the people of that State."

Senator Van Nuys told a reporter recent testimony on the acquisition of refineries by Hiram Walker, National Distillers, Schenley's and Seagram's had been made available to the department's Antitrust Division.

"There doesn't seem to be any need for further hearings by the committee on the wine situation," Senator Van Nuys declared. "We've developed the fact that the big distilleries have been buying up wineries, that they have two of the six officers of the wine institute and that wine prices have more than doubled since they entered the business."

U. S. Aid to Soviet Set 338-Million Record During November

By the Associated Press.

The Soviet Union received $338,000,000 in lease-lend exports from the United States during November, greater than any previous month's shipments.

Foreign Economic Administrator Leo T. Crowley, in making this announcement yesterday, also disclosed that the aggregate shipped to Russia now amounts to $3,887,874,000, more than half of which was military equipment.

The destruction of Russian railroads by the retreating Nazi armies is reflected in heavy shipments of military automotive equipment required to maintain Red supply lines. Included in the report were more than 160,000 trucks, 30,000 jeeps and 20,000 other military motor vehicles. Almost 7,400 airplanes and 3,700 tanks were among the combat equipment and supplies sent to the Soviet Union.

250,000 Field Phones.
Communications equipment figured heavily in the cargoes, which included 250,000 field telephones and 800,000 miles of telephone wire.

The FEA director said shipments of industrial materials and equipment had "greatly aided" expansion of the Russian munitions industry. More than 1,250,000 tons of steel, 350,000 tons of nonferrous metals, 450,000 tons of chemicals and explosives and 650,000 tons of petroleum products, plus large quantities of machine tools, were reported.

Food shipments were almost 2,000,000 tons, including 350,000 tons of wheat and flour, 275,000 tons of sugar, 850,000 tons of meat, 500,000 tons of edible fats and oils, and nearly 150,000 tons of dried fruits and vegetables.

Provides Superiority in Arms.
At the same time, the Soviet Embassy announced the Red Army now has superiority over the Germans in the number of tanks, aircraft, automatic rifles and other weapons.

The Soviet industrial position was stated in an article in the Embassy Information Bulletin entitled "War Economy of the U. S. S. R. in 1943." The article did not mention lease-lend aid or other Allied aid, but reported the Soviet aircraft industry exceeded its plans for 1943, and that substantial increases in output reflected the progress made by Soviet industry in 1943.

During the first half of the last year Soviet industry supplied the Red Army with one and a half times the amount of ammunition produced in the first half of 1942, the bulletin said.

Soldiers Want to Vote, Army Newspaper Poll in Europe Shows

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—American soldiers in Europe and the Middle East want to vote in the presidential election and the question of whether the State or the Federal Government controls the machinery is not important, Stars and Stripes, United States Army newspaper, says.

Stars and Stripes, which conducted a poll of officers and men in the European theater, added that the average service man, in emphasizing his desire to cast his ballot next fall, would like it well understood at home that he wants no political manipulation to prevent that vote.

Fighter Pilot Wants Vote.
The newspaper quoted an interview with Capt. Carl P. Geis of Salem, Ore., fighter pilot awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for the Distinguished Japanese Cross for the Philippines, as "perhaps the best expression of general feeling on this subject." Capt. Geis was quoted as saying:

"I can't see any difference between being a citizen at home or over here. If anything, I feel I have more right to vote now than ever before."

Sergt. Jack Golden, Brooklyn, N. Y. Capt. Charles Shaw, Gord, Wyo., Fortynavator, and Sergt. Roger Palmer, Grand Island, Neb., were other quoted as favoring the soldier vote.

Warns Against "Snafu."
Stars and Stripes displayed the story prominently on page 1, under the heading:

"Let Them Forget, Back Home."

"ETO (European Theater of Operations) soldiers want to vote, with no snafu in it either." ("Snafu" in Army jargon means "situation normal—all fouled up.")

Stars and Stripes made no reference to a ban on soldiers' polls, although a dispatch from Allied headquarters in Algiers Monday said American soldiers would not be permitted to express their views for publication on the soldiers' vote under a War Department ruling.

Soldier Gets 2½ Years On AWOL Conviction

By the Associated Press.

MINERAL WELLS, Tex., Jan. 19.— Pvt. Harry Roberts of Chicago has been acquitted on a desertion charge but convicted of being absent without leave. Maj. John Walter, camp public relations officer, said last night:

Roberts was sentenced to two and a half years imprisonment and will be honorably discharged from service, Maj. Walter said. The verdict is subject to review by the War Department.

Roberts was a former business associate of John J. Williams, Chicago tavern operator, United States Assistant District Attorney James Martin said.

Williams is under $3,000 bond, awaiting action of a Federal grand jury in Dallas January 24, Mr. Martin said, on a charge of aiding Roberts in leaving Camp Walters. Arresting officers reported Roberts was found in the trunk of an automobile driven from the camp by Williams December 16. Williams testified at his arraignment that he did not know Roberts was in the trunk until military police overtook the car.

Marine Flyers Cool Their Beer In Stratosphere

By the Associated Press.

VELLA LA VELLA, Solomon Islands (Delayed).—A nice cold bottle of beer was an unheard-of luxury at this tropic outpost—that is, until marine fighter pilots pondered the problem.

Now they carry a few bottles in the cockpits of their Corsairs when they ride off to fight the Japs. On the way back they don oxygen masks, ascend to colder altitudes for a while and then drop down to the field.

The beer they drink in the rest after landing is nicely refrigerated.

3 Muster-Out Pay Bills Compete in House; $300 Top Favored

By the Associated Press.

Two mustering-out pay bills, one providing a maximum of $700 and the other an aggregate top of $1,120, competed for House favor today with a Military Affairs Committee-backed measure carrying $300.

While both the more liberal proposals apparently had strong bipartisan backing, indications were the committee measure would win approval before the end of the day and be sent to the Senate, which last month passed a bill with a $500 top, but our method of acting finally on the committee bill.

Offered as substitute for the committee measure, the Ploeser bill will be voted on first, and should it be defeated, Mr. Lemke's $700 amendment would be voted on before the House gets around to acting finally on the committee bill.

Admiral Carney Hints Use of New Technique Against Jap Bases

By the Associated Press.

SOUTH PACIFIC ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Jan. 19.—Rabaul and Kavieng are "next on our list," but our method of taking them "won't be in accordance with any familiar pattern," Rear Admiral Robert B. Carney declared yesterday.

The remarks, made in an interview by Admiral William F. Halsey's chief of staff, were the first direct comment from South Pacific headquarters on the next push against the southern Japanese defense perimeter—a subject of endless speculation by troops, Navy and Air Forces since holdings on Bougainville Island were consolidated.

"Two Obvious Points," Guardedly amplifying his statement about the Japanese bases on New Britain and New Ireland, Admiral Carney said:

"The next two obvious points of Japanese strength are Rabaul and Kavieng. It's perfectly evident that the South Pacific and Southwest Pacific forces are rushing along their respective axes toward eliminating these bases. They are next on the list. We plan to put them out of business.

"But just how we will do it will be something the enemy least expects. It won't be in accordance with any familiar pattern."

Admiral Carney parried questions on the method and time, but remarked:

"Our continued aerial observation of Rabaul and Kavieng indicates the enemy has already lost all confidence in his ability to use these bases. He knows his number is up." Rabaul and Kavieng have been

"By co-ordinating our forces, air and sea, we will blockade the enemy's New Britain and New Ireland forces, which may total about 100,000 men," the admiral said. "It is even possible the Japs may attempt to evacuate Rabaul if it becomes really untenable—and if he can find the means to withdraw."

"If he evacuates, we win the easy way. If he tries to hang on, we will have more and better chances to destroy his ships and planes and batter his ground forces."

Roosevelt Would Shift Blame for 'Failures,' Taft Tells Forum

Senator Taft, Republican of Ohio, last night defended congressional stabilization policies against what he described as "a deliberate effort lately on the part of the administration to try to shift the responsibility for its failures in administering the home front" to the legislative branch.

In an address in the National Radio Forum, a Blue Network feature arranged by The Evening Star and broadcast locally over WMAL, Senator Taft said: "I believe it is fair to say that no American Government has ever been given such wide powers to deal with price and wage control as have been granted to the President by this and the previous Congress, to say nothing of the powers conferred by the administration as war powers. If there have been any failures in dealing with prices or wages they can only be due to the administration."

His Labor Draft Proposal. The Ohio Senator also criticized the President's proposal for national service legislation, which he said was offered as a strike-control measure by the administration with the hope that it would be turned down so Congress could be blamed for "any strikes that occur hereafter."

At the outset Senator Taft analyzed the administration tax bill which has been rejected by Congress, and described it as "a proposal made simply for political purposes to get the vote this year." While Secretary Morgenthau said the bill would raise $10,500,000,000, Senator Taft said actually it would have produced but $6,500,000,000—the remainder would have been compulsory savings "which would increase the public debt."

The tax, Mr. Taft continued, "was all to be levied on those who now bear the greatest burden, and every one whose annual income was under $2,500 was to pay less taxes." The bill, which virtually has completed passage in Congress, will raise $2,500,000,000, the speaker explained, which will raise the total tax bill to $42,000,000,000, or seven times the greatest amount of taxes ever levied in this country prior to the war.

In his annual message a week ago, the President called for a "realistic tax bill," but Senator Taft told his audience to "estimate the taxes you have to pay on March 15 before blaming Congress for not increasing them."

Reviews Wage, Strike Controls. Senator Taft reviewed the history of wage and strike control legislation and said that only "over the most strenuous administration opposition" was he able to get in the Price Control Act of January, 1942, a directive to all Government departments dealing with labor to work toward a stabilization of prices, fair and equitable wages, and cost of production.

After Pearl Harbor, he continued, and Senator Ball, Republican of Minnesota proposed legislation dealing with labor and wage controls, but the administration blocked action, contending that legislation was unnecessary. Then, he continued, the President set up the War Labor Board, which eventually sought to stabilize wages by application of the "Little Steel" formula, limiting cost-of-living increases to 15 per cent over the level of January 1, 1941.

"The administration pretends to adhere to the 'Little Steel' formula," Senator Taft continued. "It is and always was a completely unjust formula because it limited increases in wages to 15 per cent, regardless of further increases in the cost of living. The cost of living now has gone up 25 per cent. The inherent injustice of this formula has created some public sympathy for the coal miners and railroad workers. Furthermore, it is so unjust that the administration has found all sorts of hypocritical evasions to get around it for the powerful labor interests while adhering to it against the little fellow who is helpless."

Wage "Freeze" Opposed. Senator Taft said that he did not believe in the administration theory of "freezing" wages by the application of this formula, and holding prices by the use of subsidies.

Ex-Gov. Olson Starts Fourth-Term 'Draft' Movement Here

An unofficial fourth-term "draft" movement was started here today by Culbert L. Olson, former Governor of California, with a prediction that his State's convention delegates will vote solidly on the first ballot for renomination of President Roosevelt.

Mr. Olson, here to attend a meeting of the Democratic National Committee, told a reporter there is "no doubt" that California Democrats will unite behind a slate of delegates pledged to support Mr. Roosevelt and Vice President Wallace.

"We feel it is essential," he said, "that President Roosevelt's leadership be continued in the war and during the period of transition to the peace."

Sees State Support. While asserting the Republicans are gaining strength in California, Mr. Olson said polls indicate that "Roosevelt can carry it again."

Mr. Olson's confidence was matched by another national committee member, James C. Quigley of Nebraska, who told reporters that while he believed the Democrats had "lost the farm vote" in the West, he thought the Republicans would "mess up" their chances of winning the presidency.

Mr. Quigley, a supporter of the President, said representatives of 13 States had been invited to a meeting here Friday of the Midwestern Democratic Conference. The National Committee will meet Saturday to elect Robert E. Hannegan, international revenue commissioner, as chairman to succeed Postmaster General Walker and to fix the time and place for the party's nominating convention. Chicago is expected to be chosen and a July date is likely.

Stresses Farm Program. Mr. Quigley, who is chairman of the Midwestern Conference, said particular attention would be paid to the administration's farm program at the Friday meeting, to which have been invited National Committee members and State chairmen from North Dakota, South Dakota, Wyoming, Colorado, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, Missouri, Iowa, Minnesota, Montana, Indiana and Wisconsin.

Mr. Quigley was personally critical of Secretary of Agriculture Wickard and A. G. Black, governor of the Farm Credit Administration. He declared: "It would be a godsend to the farmers of the Midwest if they both were replaced."

Characterizing the Midwest as the decisive battle ground of the presidential campaign, Mr. Quigley said he believed Mr. Roosevelt could carry it, despite what he called strong antifourth-term sentiment.

Republicans Capture 2 More House Seats In Pennsylvania

By the Associated Press. PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 19.—Republicans held two additional seats in the House of Representatives today after scoring victories in special elections in Pennsylvania's 2d and 17th congressional districts.

Joseph M. Pratt, who led his Democratic opponent, William A. Barrett, by 5,581 votes in late returns from 163 of 164 divisions in the 2d district, will fill the vacancy created by the resignation of James P. McGranery, Democrat, now assistant to Attorney General Biddle. The 2d district gave Mr. Pratt 24,910 and Mr. Barrett 19,329 votes.

Jubilant over the results, Republican City Chairman David W. Harris said the voters "have elected a Congressman equipped by background and experience to represent their interests," and hailed election results as "prophetic of the Republican trend that will carry Philadelphia next year."

Commenting in Washington on election, Representative Hallett of Indiana, chairman of the National Republican Congressional Committee, said "the decisive Republican victory in the 2d Pennsylvania district is another protest against the policies of the New Deal administration, another unmistakable evidence of the swing to the Republican cause."

In the 17th district, in Montgomery County, yesterday Samuel K. McConnell decisively defeated Marvin B. Brunner, Democrat. Complete returns from 191 districts gave Mr. McConnell a plurality of 16,254 votes. The 17th district gave Mr. McConnell 20,173 and Mr. Brunner 3,919 votes.

Mr. McConnell will succeed J. William Ditter, Republican, who was killed in an airplane crash near Columbia, Pa., last November 21. The election of Mr. Pratt and Mr. McConnell gives the Republicans a total of 209 seats in the House, with five vacancies remaining to be filled. The Democrats, however, still hold numerical superiority with 217 seats. Four seats are held by minor party representatives.

Widow of Fairbanks Weds Lord Stanley

By the Associated Press. BOSTON, Jan. 19.—Edith Sylvia Fairbanks, the former Lady Ashley, widow of Douglas Fairbanks, sr., and Lt. Comdr. Edward John Lord Stanley, British Royal Navy Reserve, still were in Boston today following their marriage late yesterday.

The couple said they planned no honeymoon at present, as Lord Stanley was assigned to active duty. The modest ceremony took place in a two-room suite of the Copley Plaza Hotel in the presence of approximately 20 guests.

It was the third marriage for the blond Englishwoman and the second for Lord Stanley. Cole Porter, the composer, gave

Nine Dead, One Injured In Alabama Bomber Crash

By the Associated Press. BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Jan. 19.—A four-engine bomber from Will Rogers Field at Oklahoma City crashed and burned shortly after taking off from the Birmingham Municipal Airport last night, killing nine of the 10 men aboard.

Capt. H. R. Sours, public relations officer at the Birmingham Army Air Base, said the condition of the 10th victim was undetermined. The bomber, a B-24 Liberator, fell in a field about a mile from the airport.

were aboard the ship. Visitors were conducted into almost every nook and cranny of the 441-foot craft, which is moored to the Municipal Fish Wharf at the foot of Twelfth street S.W. A system of arrows guides visitors along the decks of the ship and down through the maze of hatches and passageways. Officers, trainees and members of the crew are posted at intervals to answer questions.

A generous portion of the crowd on the first day was made up of service men and women, including sailors and naval officers. WAVES, especially, barred from sea and overseas duty by Government edict, flocked to the ship.

Many of the women visitors aboard were annoyed by the fact they were not permitted to go down into the engine room. Because it is necessary to climb three decks down—and up again—on tricky ladders that are practically designed to catch high heels, only male visitors are permitted to visit the heart of the ship.

The tour through the Mariner takes about an hour. To prevent jams and bottlenecks below, the flow of visitors will be limited to about 1,000 an hour.

The ship will be open to the public daily from 2:30 to 5 p.m. and from 7:30 to 10 p.m. as long as she remains in port. Federal agencies will visit the ship from 10 a.m. to noon each day and employees of the designated departments will be allowed time off from work for this purpose. Yesterday and today was reserved for employees of the Agriculture Department.

Free Movie Day Planned. Citizens to tell why war bond purchases are important began today over Radio Station WINX. Ninety persons from every walk of life will be on the air throughout the campaign. Three talks of one-minute length at unselected intervals in the morning, afternoon and evening will be broadcast. The speakers will include members of Congress, taxi drivers, store clerks, newspapermen, restaurant owners and servicemen.

Sales Begin to Mount. Meanwhile, bond groups throughout the city were going forward with their bond-selling activities. Kirk Miller, an official of the Washington division of Safeway Stores, Inc., embracing Washington, Maryland and Virginia, reported that the firm had purchased $2,000,000 worth of bonds—an amount approximating an average day's sales.

Students at Woodrow Wilson High School got their own bond drive off to a smashing start yesterday when they purchased a total of $15,666.80 in War Bonds and stamps at a student assembly. Largest single purchase was that of Mildred Payne, 15, of 1366 Juniper street N.W., a sophomore, who bought a $5,000 bond.

At a rally yesterday in front of the United States Information Center at Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue N.W., Mrs. Nadine Gallagher, president of the District Women's Bar Association, purchased a $500 bond for the association, the first sold at the city's central bond-buying booth in front of the center.

The rally featured music by the Sheephead Bay Band, brought to Washington aboard the American Mariner from Brooklyn. The program was broadcast over Station WDC. Telfair Knight, assistant deputy chief of maritime training, Comdr. Joseph H. Misse, skipper of the American Mariner, and Comdr. Henry H. Dreany, assistant commandant of the Maritime Service, addressed the crowd.

2 Nazi Helmets Auctioned. Two captured German helmets were auctioned off and netted $225 in War Bonds.

To camera-enthusiasts who have had trouble getting films, Joseph Greenspin, proprietor of the Columbia Drug Store, 2500 Pennsylvania avenue N.W., offered this bait: to the first 12 customers each day who buy $25 War Bonds, he will give free rolls of film.

Postal workers throughout the country are pledged to an "all out" effort to reach their quota of $17,500,000—an increase of $2,500,000 over the quota set in the Third War Loan drive. War Bonds are being sold at all post offices and postal stations, as well as at special bond booths set up around the city.

Special letters from Secretary of War Stimson and Secretary of Navy Knox were sent to all officers and men of the armed forces urging them to participate in the current campaign.

In his letter, Mr. Stimson said it would be "to the personal advantage of every officer and member of the enlisted personnel of the Army to provide for his future financial security by systematic saving while he is in the Army."

Navy's Buying Cited. Secretary Knox said the Pearl Harbor Day bond record of $23,000,000 in War Bonds sold to naval personnel demonstrates the Navy's determination, Mr. Knox said, "to back up the fighting ships and fighting men with fighting dollars."

Frank Tripp, chairman of the Allied Newspaper Council, assured sponsors of the Fourth War Loan drive that, despite severe shortages of newsprint, the papers of the Nation would continue to give outstanding support to the campaign by editorials and sponsored advertising and by allotting as much space as possible to War Bond coverage.

Washington theaters were unanimously participating in the local effort to sell a bond for every theater seat. Many meetings and rallies already have been held by thea-

Eisenhower Visited Veterans At West Virginia Army Hospital

By the Associated Press. WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Jan. 19.—The man who will direct the Allied invasion of Western Europe will remember the American soldiers who were with him driving the Germans out of North Africa.

The Army's Ashford General Hospital, where hundreds of veterans are recovering from their war wounds, announced that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower recently visited the institution for a rest and inspection. He spent several days there.

Gen. Eisenhower, now in Britain completing details for the greatest element for the "monopos" last night, made the new pay scales retroactive to December 27. He also approved the wage agreements for railway express clerks, blacksmiths and machinists. The White House said the case involving teamsters has not been settled.

Under the settlement—outlined to the President in a letter from J. J. Peley, president of the Association of American Railways—nonoperating employees receiving less than 47 cents an hour will get an 11-cent hourly increase, those making 47 to 57 cents will receive 10 cents more and all others will get a 9-cent raise.

Meanwhile, Senators Wheeler and Reed, Republican, of Kansas are awaiting War Food Administration action on their request for canceling an order diverting 200 box cars daily to Canada for moving Canadian wheat feed into this country.

Senator Reed said Administrator Marvin Jones "has indicated that the order will be vacated and the railroads left to work it out themselves."

If this isn't done, Senator Reed said, he and Senator Wheeler will introduce a resolution "to require that the order be vacated."

Mr. Vinson, in approving the settlement, said: "I am returning the railroads, it is my desire to thank the men and women of American railroad management and labor for remaining at their posts throughout the period of Government control and thus preventing a break in the orderly movement of troops and supplies to the fighting fronts."

The President outlined the settlement to a news conference yesterday 10 minutes after the information reached him, and he later wrote Mr. Stimson:

"I hope as soon as you have satisfied yourself that the provisions of the executive order (which put the lines under Government control) have been complied with, that you will promptly return the railroads to the owners."

Mr. Vinson, in approving the settlement, said: "I am returning the railroads, it is my desire to thank the men and women of American railroad management and labor for remaining at their posts throughout the period of Government control and thus preventing a break in the orderly movement of troops and supplies to the fighting fronts."

Petworth Citizens Meeting Urged to Aid Bond Drive

Being a "rice cookin' papa for Tojo" or a "pistol packin' mama for Hitler" is the alternative for the person who does not do his utmost in contributing towards the success of the Fourth War Loan Drive, William R. Simpson, Jr., of the NCHA, declared last night in an address before the Petworth Citizens' Association.

Also addressing the group, to stimulate the sale of bonds, was Pvt. Duane Truex, a patient at the Walter Reed Hospital, who returned from the African campaign in the latter part of November, 1943.

It was announced at the meeting that, for the first time, the credit for the sale of a bond may be given to one's own citizen's association. All that is necessary is to give the name of the association when buying a bond.

Judge Vincent A. Osterman gave a short talk on juvenile delinquency, stressing the solution to the problem could be reached through education.

Suggested to the group was a plan to pay tribute to Dr. Robert L. Haycock, Superintendent of Public Schools in the District, which would take place, with various associations participating, at a meeting to be held at the Brightwood School, 13th and Nicholson streets N.W., on Wednesday the 16th of February.

An official War Department film entitled "Baptism of Fire" was shown at the meeting which was held in the Petworth Public Library at Upshur and Georgia avenue N.W.

Jeannette MacDonald Sells State 10 Million in Bonds

By the Associated Press. ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 19.—Movie Actress Jeannette MacDonald made a War Bond appeal last night before a convention dinner of the New York State Publishers' Association with State and legislative leaders as guests.

When she finished, State Controller Frank C. Moore pledged for bond purchases "the first available $10,000,000" of an anticipated $140,000,000 New York treasury surplus.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey yesterday signed a bill freezing the expected surplus to provide jobs for veterans through a postwar reconstruction program.

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—Wall Streeters looked with amazement when they saw Guy Emmert, vice president of the Bankers' Trust Co., hawking newspapers from a stand near his bank.

He explained to passers-by that he had volunteered to take over operation of the newsstand while its proprietor went into the bank to buy a War Bond.

Grand Jury Resumes Probe In Joan Berry Case Today

By the Associated Press. LOS ANGELES, Jan. 19.—A Federal grand jury resumes today its inquiry into whether Joan Berry, who asserts Charlie Chaplin is the father of her baby, was deprived of her constitutional rights after an arrest a year ago on vagrancy charges in nearby Beverly Hills.

United States Attorney Charles H. Carr had announced he would call Miss Berry as a witness today but said last night her testimony will be delayed, possibly until next week. The jury today will hear statements from Federal agents, he reported.

Miss Berry, arrested in January, 1943, on a vagrancy charge, pleaded guilty and was given a 90-day jail sentence, suspended on condition she leave Beverly Hills. Later she was rearrested after assertedly creating a disturbance at the Chaplin home. Removed to a sanitarium, she was found to be pregnant.

The film comedian has denied fatherhood of the child, born last October 4, but has agreed to submit to blood tests.

When she finished, State Controller Frank C. Moore pledged for bond purchases "the first available $10,000,000" of an anticipated $140,000,000 New York treasury surplus.

Four-Installment Plan Approved. In another action the Senate accepted an amendment by Senator Walsh, Democrat, of New Jersey, which would permit taxpayers to pay in quarterly installments...

Baseball leagues are going out of existence, particularly in the small cities, he said. "We are drying up these sources of taxes when we should be encouraging them."

Challenging the Treasury's estimate that a 20 per cent admittance tax would yield $135,000,000 a year in added revenue, Senator Mead contended the increase would "reduce the volume of taxes collected because many entertainment enterprises would fold up."

Senator Vandenberg said the manpower shortage was responsible for the curtailment of professional baseball and that the movies were responsible for the legitimate theater and some competitive sports out of existence.

Edward V. Loughlin, 14th assembly district leader, issued a call yesterday on behalf of the anti-Kennedy bloc for a meeting Saturday. The other call, for January 28, was signed by Representative Fay, committee chairman, and specified it was sent at Mr. Kennedy's request.

Both sides termed the other's meeting illegal and it was reported that both groups talked of legal action.

Spokesmen for the anti-Kennedy forces said they tried to persuade Mr. Fay to call the meeting Saturday, but he refused because he had prior commitments to Mr. Kennedy.

The Kennedy group contends that only Mr. Fay can call a meeting, while opponents claim that a majority of members has authority to set a meeting. Members of the latter faction said that more than a majority would participate in Saturday's session.

SUSPENDED — George N. Briggs, an assistant to Secretary of Interior Ickes, was suspended by Mr. Ickes yesterday pending the outcome of the grand jury investigation into the so-called "Hopkins letter."

public explanation of how the Hopkins letter came into his possession. Senator Langer said he got the "Briggs letters" from Mr. Sparks.

Letter Called Forgery. Henry A. Schweinhaut, special assistant to Attorney General Biddle, who is directing the grand jury investigation, declared he had "no doubt" that the Hopkins letter, published in Mr. Sparks' book "One Man—Wendell Wilkie"—was a forgery.

"We can prove it," he said, adding that he was confident the perpetrator would be discovered.

Mr. Schweinhaut conferred with Mr. Ickes yesterday after the Secretary had requested an opportunity to go before the grand jury. Mr. Ickes, who has disclaimed the role of "villain" in the drama, declared, "I do not relish the bandying about of my name in connection with a matter which seems to be as bizarre and absurd as it appears to be contemptible and vicious."

Mr. Briggs described the whole affair as a "blatant attempt to fix the blame for persons who 'for years have been thirsting for Mr. Ickes' blood."

Action on Senator Langer's demand for a Senate inquiry was stalled meanwhile by a question of jurisdiction. Chairman Kilgore of the subcommittee appointed to consider the matter said a study was being made "as to our authority to investigate developments at a national convention."

Co-operatives Urged As Economic Cure In Conference Talk

America must build a co-operative economy, inasmuch as our present producer-competitive system not only has failed to solve but increasingly intensifies our economic problems, E. Bowen, general secretary of the Co-operative League of the United States, said today at the opening session of a two-day conference at the Washington Hotel.

Mr. Bowen shared speaking honors with Joseph Knapp, principal agricultural economist of the Farm Credit Administration. Co-operatives, Mr. Knapp emphasized, are practical examples of free economic organization which can be usefully employed to meet common needs.

A discussion on the scope of co-operatives in Europe and Asia, in which various representatives from abroad are scheduled to participate, was arranged for the afternoon session.

America no longer hesitates to discard obsolete production machines, but cling to outmoded distribution methods, Mr. Bowen said, as he warned that turning to political government will not produce economic security.

Declaring our producer-competitive economic system broke down in the 30s, Mr. Bowen said, "We have only relieved our unemployment problems by increasing others through expansion of debt."

Mr. Knapp said the combined business volume of 10,450 marketing and purchasing associations for the last marketing season amounted to $3,780,000,000.

At tomorrow's morning session there will be a discussion of the possibilities for co-operatives in international relief and rehabilitation and in international trade and manufacturing.

WFA Official Says U.S. Will Remain Well Fed

CHICAGO, Jan. 19.—C. W. Kitchen, a War Food Administration official, said today that "there seems to be nothing new in sight which will keep us from continuing to be the best-fed Nation in the world."

The Nation's record-breaking production of food in 1943 and goals for 1944 does not mean the United States can feed the world, Mr. Kitchen said, but "it ought to allay the fears of the alarmists who have been crying that famine is just around the corner in America."

The demands of total war, Mr. Kitchen said, are "insatiable," but civilians should have about as much food in 1944 as they had in the years 1938-1939. With rationing he added, the total supply should be better distributed than in those years.

Mr. Kitchen, deputy director, Food Distribution Administration, outlined his views in an address before the annual meeting of the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association. He said the process of allocating or dividing the food supply among the "principal claimants" is one of continuous adjustment.

House Gets Shad Bill

Representative Hendricks, Democrat of Florida yesterday introduced a measure in the House to add December to the months during which sale of shad is permitted in the District, amending the 1901 law. It is a companion bill to the one offered recently in the Senate at the request of Senator Andrews of Florida.

Britain is to encourage emigration to the Dominions after the war.

Ruml Gives 9-Point Postwar Fiscal Plan To House Committee

A nine-point postwar fiscal policy plan for reducing taxes, balancing the budget and a planned program of public works—was advanced today by Beardsley Ruml, New York merchant-banker and author of the pay-as-you-go tax plan.

He submitted it to the House Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, now studying postwar planning, with the preface that it "makes sense, there are no constitutional or technical reasons why it cannot be adopted now. He proposed.

No public spending for its own sake and no projects merely because they support purchasing power in general. "Let us base our budget estimates on the efficient and economical carrying out of worthwhile activities to accomplish our national purposes."

2. Lower tax rates "to the point" where they will balance the budget at an agreed level of high employment. * * * Taxes should be reduced where they will do the most good in creating demand and in encouraging private enterprise.

Stabilize Taxes. 3. Then stabilize taxes "except as there are major changes in national policy. When employment goes beyond an agreed level, or if, with high employment, we have a boom in prices, let us hold the surplus or use it to reduce the national debt, not as an excuse for further tax reduction."

4. Retention of the principle of progressive income taxes and estate taxes "as the best way of reversing the tendency of purchasing power to come to rest. Let us reduce the rate on the individual income tax to stimulate consumption and to make the investment in new enterprise on a business basis."

5. A planned public works program, not to balance the whole economy, but to help toward stabilizing the construction industry.

6. "Let us neutralize the social security programs as far as their fiscal influences are concerned. Since their beginning they have been highly deflationary. Older security, let us set our rates and benefits so that they come somewhere near balance, and for unemployment insurance let us set our rates so that intake and outgo balance at high levels of employment."

7. Retain Excise Taxes. 8. "Let us arrange our lending abroad, whether for stabilization, relief or long-time reconstruction, so that it will support rather than strengthen our domestic economy."

9. Reorganization of the parts of the Federal Government that have to do with fiscal policy and administration. "We want clarity in policy, consistency in administration and co-operation between the executive and legislative branches."

Mr. Ruml told the committee that during the transition period after the war, the nine-point program "would provide a flow of purchasing demand, which springs automatically from the tens of millions whose tax burdens will have been reduced."

"It will," he said, "express in a mosaic aggregate the popular interpretation of the American way of life as pictured in consumer preferences. Against this background, the readjustments of employment and the reconversion of business and industry can more readily occur."

Nazi Officer Scoffs At Balkan Invasion

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 19.—A German military commentator, Lt. Col. von Oberg, writing in the Danziger Verposten, scoffed today at the possibility of an early Allied invasion of the Balkans from Italy and said the Allies cannot make Rome a move until they get beyond Rome.

Col. von Oberg also asserted that the Allies must advance to the Piave River in Italy before they can hope to mount an attack against the Southern French coast between Toulon and Marseille.

Morgan's Early Lead Reduced by Davis in Louisiana Primary

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 19.—Jimmie H. Davis, public service commissioner and song writer, slowly whittled down the lead of Lewis L. Morgan for the gubernatorial nomination in yesterday's Democratic primary as additional returns came in today from county parishes (cantons).

Mr. Morgan, backed by the powerful New Orleans "Old Regular" Long organization, jumped into the lead late last night when the city vote was counted. Returns from outlying parishes were slow, since commissioners counted local race first.

Unofficial returns from 590 of the State's 1,867 precincts gave Mr. Morgan 65,074; Mr. Davis, 60,207; Representative James H. Morrison, 17,325; Mayor Sam Caldwell of Shreveport, 10,929; State Senator Ernest Clements, 2,688; State Senator Dudley Le Balme, 6,206; Vincent Mosely, lawyer-farmer, 2,006, and Lee Lanier, Amite editor, 561.

Long Holds Decisive Lead. Earl K. Long, brother of the late Huey P. Long and running mate of Mr. Morgan, swept into a decisive lead over five opponents in the primary. The vote in 501 of 1,867 precincts in the lieutenant governor's race gave Mr. Long 61,990; J. Emile Verret, 37,777; Frank B. Ellis, 27,453; Gladden Harrison, 4,555; Sam Tennant, 2,538, and Carl T. Jeansonne, 1,575.

Mr. Long appeared to be running ahead of Lewis L. Morgan, the gubernatorial candidate on the "Old Regular" Long ticket, and on the face of partial returns seemed certain to be in the runoff—if anything should be a runoff primary.

Much depended on the outlying vote. The New Orleans vote, registered by voting machines, was practically complete in the tabulations soon after midnight, but most of the country vote was still out.

On other Long Men Lead. On the basis of fragmentary returns for State-wide offices other than Governor and Lieutenant Governor, the Long faction also showed strength in the race for attorney general, where Joe T. Cawthorn led on early county returns as well as in New Orleans.

The New Orleans vote gave leads to Wade O. Martin Jr., for secretary of state over incumbent L. B. Bayard; to John B. Daigle over A. P. "Pat" Tuwelle, the incumbent, for treasurer, and to Lether E. Frazier over incumbent superintendent of education in the incumbent John E. Cox. All these had been favored by "Old Regulars."

Sheriff Ousted by Post Is Renominated for Job

POINTE A LA HACHE, La, Jan. 19 (AP)—Dr. Ben R. Slater, Plaquemine Parish coroner who was ousted from the sheriff's office by the State Guard in October, was nominated for sheriff in yesterday's primary by better than a four-to-one vote over Walter J. Blaize, appointed by Gov. Sam Jones who was seated under martial law.

Nearly complete unofficial returns from 12 of the Plaquemine Parish 15 precincts gave Dr. Slater 1,526 and Mr. Blaize 339.

The parish remains under martial law awaiting a final ruling on the latter case by the Supreme Court.

Pile of Lottery Slips Seized; 5 Arrested

A raid by 12th precinct police on a home in the 2800 block of Evans street, N.E., yesterday, seized alleged lottery headquarters, yielded several bushels of numbers slips and other betting equipment.

Four men and a woman arrested in the raid were charged with possession of numbers slips, conducting a lottery and conspiracy to evade the lottery laws and were released under $2,000 bond each. The cases were continued until January 25 by Judge Thomas Dewey Quinn in Municipal Court today.

Those arrested were George Philip Scott, 32, of the 1600 block of E street N.E.; clerk Samuel Fritch, 41, of the 1600 block of Sixteenth street N.W.; an actor; John Ralph Mitchell, 32, of the 1600 block of H street N.W.; a clerk; George Conenlipes, 31, of the 1800 block of M street N.W.; a mechanic, and Saele Leung, 27, of the 4700 block of Blagden terrace N.W., a beauty operator.

Besides the bushels of betting slips, police said between $200 and $300, most in small change, was taken. Equipment in the lottery headquarters were seized, including seven adding machines, several of which were electrically operated. The windows were blacked out.

Police found at least six winning slips on yesterday's number, 359. Had the well-equipped headquarters gone unnoticed, it is estimated, more than $1,000 would have been paid off by the operators today.

Participants in the raid included Capt. Walter Storm, 12th precinct, and Detectives James P. Fox, Daniel J. Slattery and Ernest P. Jefferson.

Vivien Kellems Accused Of Impeding War Effort

Representative Coffee, Democrat of Washington today called for immediate action by the Justice Department against Miss Vivien Kellems, Westport (Conn.) war industrialist, who announced she had refused to pay her December 15 income tax and urged other business people to follow her example.

"I am asking the Department of Justice," Mr. Coffee said, "to file summary action against Vivien Kellems for her statements calculated to do injury to the Nation's war program and discourage the purchase of War Bonds right at the inception of the Fourth War Loan drive. Her statement constitutes a violation of the law."

Miss Kellems, speaking before a luncheon meeting in Kansas City yesterday, called on "all business, both big and small, to follow my example and put aside postwar reserves out of their taxes."

She asserted that present tax rates violate the Constitution and amount to "unreasonable seizure."

Venezuelan President To Arrive Here Today For Official Visit

President Isaias Medina Angaritia of Venezuela will arrive here this afternoon by plane from Miami, where he was landed by special Pan-American Clipper last night.

Secretary of State Hull and representatives of the State Department planned to greet President Medina, who will be a guest at a White House dinner tonight and begin a state visit to the United States.

On arrival at the White House, President Medina will be saluted by a guard of honor composed of soldiers, sailors and marines. He then will be escorted to the diplomatic reception room to be greeted by President Roosevelt.

The Venezuelan President will remain in the White House overnight and then take up residence in Blair House, across the street, tomorrow morning. During his visit he will be widely feted in official circles. He is expected to visit the Capitol tomorrow.

Dr. Don Diogenes Escalante, Venezuelan Ambassador, and State Department representatives met President Medina in Miami and will accompany him and his party to Washington.

The visiting President will make trips to Philadelphia, New York and New Orleans before concluding his official stay in this country on February 1.

Child Care Center Plan Hailed by FWA

A letter from Henry J. Sullivan, assistant regional director of the Federal Works Agency, yesterday informed the Commissioners that the FWA considered the proposal to plan operation of child care centers under the Board of Education a "commendable one."

"The chart for the proposed organization of the war nurseries and child care centers has many excellent features," Mr. Sullivan's letter stated, "and it is believed that the streamlining of project operation will not only bring greater efficiency and economy of operation but the closer working relationships with the District of Columbia educational system will assure the maintenance of good standards."

Mr. Sullivan said the FWA would offer no objections to the present graded basis of fees, in place of the proposed plan to reduce fees to a maximum of 50 cents a day a child. "We, in this agency, recognize the prerogative of local determination and I assure you that no objection will be made to your schedule of fees and that we expect to continue to co-operate with you in the financing of your projects."

Saying that he noted that the proposed reorganization would bring about a saving of approximately 30 per cent of the overall expenses, Mr. Sullivan said the FWA had hoped that the streamlining of the administrative units and the consolidation of financial records would bring about a reduction of approximately 40 per cent, adding: "Perhaps the final plans will show that this greater saving can be effected without injury to the standards of operation."

1,000 Here Pay Honor To Mabel T. Boardman For Red Cross Vision

A thousand friends and co-workers of Miss Mabel T. Boardman, including some of the Nation's leaders, yesterday attended a testimonial luncheon at the Statler Hotel, to pay tribute to the pioneer Red Cross executive for her more than 40 years of unselfish service and her role in building the Red Cross into the great humanitarian organization it is today.

Chief Justice Stone of the Supreme Court and Maj. Gen. A. A. Vandergrift, commandant of the Marine Corps, were the principal speakers. Telegraphic tributes read at the luncheon came from Gen. John J. Pershing, Norman Davis, chairman of the American Red Cross, and Mrs. Dwight Davis, member of the Central Committee, governing body of the Red Cross in this country.

Hails Unselfish Labor.
Gen. Pershing's message said that "no other living woman—or man—has labored more unselfishly for this great organization" than Miss Boardman.

"One of the outstanding women of America" was the description of Miss Boardman given by Gen. Vandergrift.

"I have been constantly amazed by the variety, the scope and the efficiency of Red Cross activities," Gen. Vandergrift said. "Wherever I have gone, I have seen and heard eloquent tributes to the achievements of this association, which are in turn tributes to the profound vision, faith and industry with which Miss Boardman has done so much to make these successes possible."

A member of Red Cross in 1900 when it obtained its first charter from Congress, Miss Boardman is credited with having done much to expand the organization from its original membership of fewer than 4,000 persons into the present network of more than 9,000 chapters and branches.

Raised $2,000,000.
She has raised more than $2,000,000 for Red Cross work, and was instrumental in obtaining construction of the national headquarters building here. It was Miss Boardman also who put Red Cross workers into uniform, and as director of Volunteer Special Services conceived and developed the organization's nursing, first aid and life saving programs. In 1919 she became secretary of the American Red Cross, a position she has held concurrently for the past 24 years.

In addition, Miss Boardman founded the District Red Cross chapter and has played a leading role in its development. Until last year, when she resigned, she was chairman of Volunteer Special Services of the District Red Cross. She still serves the District chapter as second vice chairman and a member of the Executive Committee.

In his praise of Miss Boardman's accomplishments, Chief Justice Stone traced her Red Cross activities and said:

"It has been said here in Washington before, and it is a truth worthy of repetition, that Mabel Thorpe Boardman is the Red Cross. Her life has been so closely associated with this great humanitarian movement that she and the Red Cross have become one and inseparable in our minds."

Combine Praise.
Both Justice Stone and Gen. Vandergrift combined their praise of Miss Boardman's work with praise of the Red Cross.

"Now in the Nation's hour of greatest need, Miss Boardman's grand conception is bearing its finest fruits," Justice Stone said. "In collecting lifesaving blood plasma, in making millions of garments and surgical dressings, in bringing renewed courage to our servicemen on every shell-torn battlefield of the world, the Red Cross has truly reached the pinnacle of its service."

Gen. Vandergrift dwelt on Red Cross activities overseas, where, he said, it is providing servicemen with "cheer, comfort and recreation," helping to relieve suffering, and, through blood plasma, "giving some men the gift of life itself."

The Marine commandant said the Allied offensive in the Pacific has taken, and will take, "more than a single line of progress." He warned that the cost "may not always be light."

Work to Be Accelerated.
"All this," he pointed out, "means that the need for Red Cross services in the Pacific islands warfare alone is going to be sharply accelerated."

Replying to the tributes, Miss Boardman reviewed the growth of the Red Cross, reporting that today in this country there are more than 30,000,000 senior and junior Red Cross members.

Since the beginning of the war, our volunteers have made one billion articles, of which over 900,000,000 were surgical dressings, she said. Forty-three thousand nurses have been recruited for the Army and Navy, 1,250,000 families have received aid through the home service of the Red Cross, 5,750,000 units of blood plasma have been provided and 1,000,000 prisoner-of-war packages are being forwarded every month.

Primarily, the Red Cross was created for war relief and today the greatest demand in all its history is upon its shoulders, Miss Boardman said. She urged that every one "fall in and stand by" to help meet the need.

Other Speakers Heard.
Other speakers at the testimonial luncheon included Cornelius Bliss, acting chairman of the American Red Cross. Representing Chairman Norman Davis, who is ill, Mr. Bliss presented Miss Boardman with a two-starred service bar, the first ever awarded by the Red Cross for more than 40 years of service.

Latin American Gin Exporters Irrked as Testing Curbs Flow

By LEON PEARSON.

Experts of the Bureau of Internal Revenue are engaged in the novel task of smelling and tasting samples of gin freshly imported from Cuba and Mexico to determine whether it may properly be labeled and marketed as gin in the United States.

Many of the samples are being rejected. Meantime, all shipments, good and bad, are held up at ports of arrival. Importers are crying out in alarm, the Cuban Embassy is distressed, and the heavy movement of gin, stimulated by the liquor shortage in the United States, is backing up on the distillers in Cuba and Mexico.

Treasury Department officials disclosed yesterday that the testing-tasting job is being done by the laboratories of the Alcohol Tax Unit, on the top floor of the Internal Revenue Building. The work is under direction of Dr. W. V. Linder, chief chemist.

Juniper Is Test.

The samples fall or pass the test according to whether they have the taste and smell of juniper berries. This is the prime criterion. If the experts can detect no evidence of juniper, the gin is rejected.

Much of the Cuban and Mexican gin is being made so rapidly, from distilleries which have mushroomed alongside the Cuban sugar mills, that there is no time for flavoring. The normal procedure is to pass the gin, in process of distillation, through a basket of juniper berries. Experts insist there is no substitute for this process.

A Treasury Department spokesman said, "Many samples of this alleged gin are being turned down." Stewart Berkshire, deputy internal revenue commissioner, declared: "Some of the gin coming in now is not recognizable as gin."

Importers whose product is rejected have three alternatives:

1. To reprocess it into neutral spirits. Such spirits are now being used in the blending of domestic whiskies.
2. To add juniper essence and sell it as "compound gin," as distinct from distilled gin. According to experts, this is like adding the baking powder after the biscuits are done.
3. To sell it in its present condition as "colored distilled spirits."

This testing policy of internal revenue, inaugurated in the last few days, has suddenly tied up a profitable war-boom business and thrown importers into confusion. Cuban gin in 50-gallon barrels and Mexican gin in five-gallon cans is laying on the docks and in warehouses in New York, Fort Lauderdale, New Orleans and Laredo.

Imports of gin have reached the figure of 800,000 gallons a month, which in a year's time would mean about 10,000,000 gallons. This is almost as much as the total United States gin production in normal times, which ranged between 12,000,000 and 14,000,000 gallons.

Importers expressed their alarm today through Harry L. Lourie, executive vice president of the National Association of Alcohol Beverage Importers, Inc. Mr. Lourie declared: "The tasting being done by revenue men is entirely unscientific. There is no real analysis involved. The gin is being rejected merely because some fellow can't taste or smell enough juniper to suit him."

"But the best gin has a variety of flavors. Some distillers use orange and coriander more than juniper. It's like the peat flavor in Scotch—sometimes mild and sometimes strong."

Mr. Lourie pointed out that the bureau's action has tied up the goods, tied up credit and brought complaints from the Office of Defense Transportation because of nonmovement of freight.

He revealed that importers are calling Havana and Mexico City to ship no more gin for the present.

Flyer Who Outfought 30 Nazis Identified as St. Louis Major

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Jan. 19.—Maj. James H. Howard of St. Louis, a former "Flying Tiger" who outfought 30 Nazi fighters in a flaming half-hour over Oschersleben last Tuesday to protect a formation of Flying Fortresses, was hailed by his Mustang pilot-mates today as a "one-man air force," but he merely said facetiously, "I seen what looked like my duty and I done it."
The 30-year-old, 6-foot-4 Mis-sourian buzz-sawed devastatingly into the swarm of Nazis during one of history's greatest air battles to become America's first air-hero veteran of both the Pacific and European theaters.
His exploit rivals for sheer drama the feat of the missing Lt. Comdr. Edward H. (Butch) O'Hare, who single-handedly tackled nine Japanese dive bombers, knocking at least six into the sea, and elevates him to the distinguished and growing roll of American air heroes.
Although the battle was seen by the crews of the Flying Fortresses he was protecting, the identity of joined the Navy and got his pilot training at Pensacola.

He served four years in the Navy and then volunteered for service with the American Volunteer Group in China. After a year with the AVG he returned because of ill health after contracting dengue and malaria.
After three months, Howard joined the Army. He received the rank of major last summer.
Maj. Howard was born in China in 1913, while his father was there as department head of Pekin Union Medical College. Dr. Howard himself was the center of hair-raising adventure in China. He was captured by Manchurian bandits in 1925 and held prisoner for 10 weeks before Chinese troops rescued him.
The Howards returned to this country in 1927. James received his grammar school education here and was graduated from Pomona College just before he joined the Navy.

Officials Fear Foundry Strike Will Curtail Ship Program

By the Associated Press.
SEATTLE, Jan. 19.—Idleness of 10,000 Washington and Oregon war workers in a strike of foundrymen today drew the concern of ship-building officials who expressed fear that construction of tank-landing ships and other vitally-needed sea-craft may soon be curtailed.
About 6,000 members of the AFL Molders' and Foundry Workers' Union struck yesterday morning in protest against what their leaders termed an unfair wage award by the Regional War Labor Board, and by their action about 4,000 additional workers remained off their jobs rather than pass picket lines. Seventy-nine foundries were affected.
T. A. Martin, head of the WLB regional board's production services, said the foundry strike threatened the region's extensive shipbuilding, truck and tractor building and ship repair work.

Union leaders said a telegraphed appeal from the National War Labor Board that the walkout "must be ended immediately" would be disregarded.
"Unless concessions are made by somebody," said H. W. Sprague, chairman of the Pacific Northwest Negotiating Committee for the Union, "the strike will proceed."
The national WLB also appealed to AFL President William Green and the AFL Executive Council, now in session at Miami, to intercede in support of labor's "no strike" pledge. The board said the back-to-work order had the support of Henry Stevenson of Cincinnati, the union's international president.
Permit Work on Bombers.
A threat to the production of Boeing bombers was dispelled by the union's agreement to permit aeronautical workers to pass picket lines at the foundry which turns out wing spars.
The principal union grievance was the regional WLB's refusal to grant a 7-cent hourly wage increase to the journeymen's $1.20 scale, although increases of 2½ to 7 cents were allowed in lower brackets.

The bodies of William Kenna, retired railroad conductor, and his sister Maria, both over 70, were found by police who entered their home after neighbors reported they had not been seen for more than a week. An autopsy attributed the deaths to malnutrition and exposure.

MAJ. JAMES HOWARD.

the lone pilot remained uncertain for a week, because of the reluctance of various Mustang pilots in claiming victories. Today, however, the United States 8th Air Force Command singled out Maj. Howard as the hero.

Burned Out Three of Four Guns.
Maj. Howard was credited officially with two Nazi planes destroyed, two probables and one damaged in reports compiled after the raid, but bomber crews insisted they had seen the lone American bomber shoot down six enemy aircraft.

The spectacular dogfight began just as Maj. Howard's group was leaving the target. Corkscrewing in and out of clouds and over and under bombers at 400 miles an hour, Maj. Howard burned out three of his four 50-caliber machine guns in the furious action. Not one of the bombers he was protecting was lost and his own plane was marked by only a single bullet hole.

Maj. Howard said the hottest dogfight of all was with a single-engine ME-109 which he chased around in circles for five minutes before "getting him in line for a squit."
"I was quite busy," he summed up, "in a constant merry-go-round of climbing and diving on the attackers, sometimes not firing my guns but presenting a good enough bluff for them to break off and dive away."

Enemy Reluctant to Fight.
"For the first two encounters all four of my guns fired. On the third I had two guns and on the fourth and fifth only one gun. When I got down to one gun I still engaged in this dive-attack-and-climb game."
"The enemy seemed reluctant to stay and fight and would dive out."

While a member of the famous "Flying Tigers" over Burma and China, Maj. Howard shot down six Japanese planes, sharing one with two other pilots, and was decorated by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek. Since coming to Britain he has destroyed another German plane, thus bringing his total score of confirmed and probables to 13½.

He declared that action in China was small scale compared with "this biggest air offensive center in the world."

"Tell you one thing, though," he added. "You have a better feeling flying over France and Germany in a single-engined plane than you have flying over Burma. You have a feeling you'll get better treatment here if you go down. There, once you're shot down you are either lost or in the hands of the Japs."
"I have a personal hatred for every Jap which I don't feel for the Germans."

Illness Forced Howard To End AVG Career

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 19 (AP)—Identification of Maj. James H. Howard as the American pilot who was the individual hero of the air battle of Oschersleben was thrilling but not astonishing news to his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Harvey J. Howard.
"I had a notion that it might have been our boy," Dr. Howard said. He added that the modesty of the pilot was the key to his feeling that it was his son who had made the single-handed charges against the swarm of German interceptors, shooting down six of them.
"That makes his score 14 enemy planes," Dr. Howard continued, "and I suppose the Nazis will be laying for him now. But it looks like he can take care of himself."

The doctor took time off from a busy medical practice to recount the story of his son's six years of flying, beginning in 1937 when he

Polish-Russian Realities

The current furor over the dispatch published in Pravda concerning alleged Anglo-German conversations about a separate peace should not distract attention from the Russo-Polish problem.

In considering the Russo-Polish dispute, one should distinguish between the boundary question and the manner in which it is to be settled. Shortly after Russian forces crossed the borders of prewar Poland a fortnight ago Premier Mikolajczyk stated: "The question of the line is not so important. The greatest problem is to get security for the Polish population." While protesting against "unilateral" decisions of Moscow, the Polish government has been conciliatory in its statements and has shown a willingness to negotiate. Stating its "sincere desire for a Polish-Soviet agreement on terms which would be just and acceptable to both sides," the Polish government in exile has suggested that "all outstanding questions between Russia and Poland should be taken up at a meeting of the two countries with Great Britain and the United States serving as friendly mediators."

However, Moscow has thus far rebuffed all these overtures, and has refused to rescind its diplomatic break with the Polish government in exile, which would be the necessary prerequisite to negotiations of any kind. Moscow's answer to the Polish offer was uncompromising in tone. It accused the Polish government of having "entirely evaded and ignored" Moscow's intimation that the so-called Curzon line should approximate the new Russo-Polish frontier, and then drew the deduction that this constitutes a rejection of the Curzon line as a basis for negotiation. The request for a joint discussion of Russo-Polish issues was not only rejected by Moscow but was also denounced as misleading. As for the suggested Anglo-American mediation, it was pointedly ignored. Simultaneously with this vehement rejection of Polish offers, the Soviet press has been filled with dispatches from abroad, allegedly from Polish individuals or groups, denouncing the government in exile and proposing that it be eliminated and superseded by the Polish Committee of National Liberation formed last year in Moscow, which claims to be the authentic voice of the Polish people.

All this would seem to indicate that Moscow does not intend to deal with the present government in exile. The alternative would seem to be either a revamped Polish government containing only those compliant to Russian demands or Moscow's formal recognition of the National Liberation Committee. That would raise a diplomatic issue between Moscow and its western allies, Britain and America, of the utmost gravity.

Coal Mine Ruling

Attorney General Biddle's ruling that Secretary Ickes need not return the coal mines to their owners at this time has a substantial basis in common sense. But it is another matter to find persuasive authority for it in the language of the Smith-Connally Act.

The Government seized the mines under the provisions of this act after the most recent of the series of strikes resulting from the wage dispute between John L. Lewis and the War Labor Board. There is a section of the statute, however, which requires the Government to return the mines to their owners not later than sixty days after they have been restored to "productive efficiency," and it was an interpretation of this language which Mr. Ickes had sought from the Attorney General.

It was conceded that so far as the tonnage of coal produced was concerned, the productive efficiency of the mines had been restored. But since a new contract satisfactory to the miners had not been agreed upon the threat of another strike remained in the picture, and Mr. Biddle held that this factor should be taken into account. "To hold that return of possession (of the mines) is required in the face of a threatened recurrence of strikes or work stoppages," he said, "would compel the Government to go through the idle ceremony of relinquishing possession under one executive order and retaking possession under another."

As has been said, this is the common-sense view of the matter, for the alternative of returning the mines and then seizing them again upon recurrence of the strike would reduce this exercise of the Government's wartime authority to a patent absurdity. But however sensible this view may be, it is not an entirely satisfactory answer to the statute.

The law says that the mines must be returned not later than sixty days after their productive efficiency is restored. It says nothing about holding seized property until the last threat of a future strike has been removed, and, on the record, it is exceedingly doubtful that Congress had any such thought as that reflected in Mr. Biddle's ruling.

If the Attorney General's interpretation of the law is valid, then it follows that any irresponsible labor leader, by the mere threat of a strike, can cause the Government to retain seized property indefinitely, no matter how guiltless the lawful owner may be, and it is difficult to believe that Congress, in passing the antistrike law, intended any such result. While Mr. Biddle's reluctance to put the Government through the "idle ceremony" of selling and reselling strike-bound properties is understandable, his remedy would seem to lie in an appeal to Congress for a more effective law. Certainly there is little to be gained from a strained construction of existing law which, in effect, invites Mr. Lewis to tie up the mines as long as it suits his fancy. It would be better, by any realistic standard, to call such a spade as this by its right name.

Service Act Setback

The decision of the House Military Affairs Committee to lay aside the President's request for a national service act pending "further developments" marks a very definite setback for this proposed wartime legislation. There is no reason to believe, however, that the action of the House committee is out of tune with majority sentiment on Capitol Hill.

In the week that has passed since the President's request went to the Capitol, two things have become clear.

One is that Congress will not pass a national service law merely to enable the Government to deal with wartime strikes. This does not imply any disposition to condone or ignore the strikes. There is strong feeling against them, and the chances are that the President, if he wants it, can secure passage of effective legislation aimed directly at preventing strikes which interfere with the prosecution of the war. But he has little if any chance of securing a national service law as a solution for this specific problem.

It has become clear that most members of Congress will oppose a national service law unless there is a convincing showing of a broad military need for it. The suggestion that it would shorten the war has failed to make the desired impression. The legislators want specific information as to the production problems which remain to be solved and how a service act would help to solve them. General statements of the desirability of such a law will not be enough, and this should be kept in mind by the witnesses scheduled to testify in favor of the legislation, beginning today, before the Senate Military Affairs Committee.

Finally, it is essential to recognize that under the most favorable circumstances the administration still will have to exert a determined effort to secure favorable action in Congress. Since sending up his recommendation, there is no indication that the President has sought to line up support for his program. Yet it is quite evident that if he wants a national service act he will have to fight as hard for it as he fought for some of the reform legislation put through in his first and second administrations.

This and That

By Charles E. Tracewell.

SILVER SPRING, MD. "Dear Sir: On January 7 I heard two cardinals singing their real spring song. I have been feeding the birds for about eight years, and as I always whistle the cardinal's call when I put out their feed, many other birds as well come down when they hear me.

"On my feeder now I have variety, many sparrows, titmice, blue jays and nuthatches in the yard, also two mockingbirds. I hope that folks will put out warm water these cold days as well as food.

"Sincerely, R. P. C."

The cardinal's song is seldom heard so early. In some neighborhoods the "cheer, cheer, cheer" comes later in January, or even the first part of February.

To many listeners it is the true spring song. We believe that it was about January 7 or 8 when we heard it.

Since the cardinal is the most faithful of the birds which winter with us, it is quite right that it should sing first.

It is a bit later, in February, usually, that the feeding of the female by the male takes place. This is sometimes called "kissing" by persons who are not close enough to see what really happens. It is this.

The male cracks a sunflower seed, removes the husk and holds the kernel out to his mate.

Thus their bills meet, as she takes the food very daintily.

Other birds place pieces of food on the rim of the feeding station for their mates.

These are all manifestations of spring in the bird world.

As far as we have been able to observe, the sparrows are too busy with the hard facts of life to have much romantic love.

Mating among the English sparrows begins very early, sometimes in the first week of February.

Most male birds will feed the female when she is on the nest.

Putting out water for the wintering birds is almost as necessary as giving them food.

In fact, in a way it is more essential, because somehow most of the birds can find food, although not as much as they need, but often it is impossible for them to find any water.

Letters to The Star

Asks Zeal for Help of Veterans.

To the Editor of The Star: Yesterday this notice came to my desk: "Help Our Returned, Demobilized Soldiers."

"While Congress debates the amount of bonus they shall receive, many of them are almost destitute. The District of Columbia Red Cross has sent out an urgent appeal for clothing for them. They have no money, no jobs and no civilian clothes. It seems incredible, but it's true—American veterans of World War II are in need, desperate need. Think what these men have done for us. . . . It seems an insult to give them old clothes, but since we've been asked to do it, let's not hold back."

Do we have a system so lacking in human sympathy that it will subordinate our principles to the dry bones of contentment while the object of our compassion is neglected or dying? Has our Christianity been so reduced, so nullified—so strained of its life-giving substance that it has disappeared entirely from the national scene?

Does our Congress negate its "good intentions" in arguments about how a thing shall be done while not arising to the emergency and intervening with some adequate if temporary relief while straightening out its own bias and its prejudices?

There seems no excuse for the deplorable condition exposed in that tragic sentence: "they have no money, no jobs and no civilian clothes, and a populace that would not rise up in an impassioned indignation and demand that these returning soldiers be provided for, and given 'civilian clothes' as readily as they arose in patriotic zeal and gave them uniforms, is not worth fighting for."

It seems if we, the populace, would forego our recognition of our shortcomings toward our responsibilities, as eagerly as we hold up our merits and make of them responsibilities in our behalf, and demand that our elected representatives pass laws to dissolve those deficiencies, the time might come when we shall be worth living with as well as dying for, and these returning soldiers will be able to look into our faces without the agonizing question: "What for?"

And then we might be able to sing in the same breathless zeal, "My country 'tis of thee" and "Nearer, My God."

GLADYS LOVE.

A Rhymer's Preoccupation

With Mystery of Co-ordination.

To the Editor of The Star:

I see by the papers that another co-ordinator has been appointed to co-ordinate the activities of Government and private agencies in the fields of health, welfare, recreation, etc.

When a worker in the field of social welfare meets a colleague these days, his greeting is "Good morning. Have you been co-ordinated yet, this week?"

Or rather, "Have you been co-ordinated yet, this week?"

Health and welfare, recreation, social guards throughout the Nation. Even though they be well officiated, must be supervised, intimated.

Though we've worked for years together sans this governmental tether, still we all are destined, fated, now to be co-ordinated.

Though our teamwork's been successful, though results are real—not guesswork, Agency of rank and station is no longer used in the official Democratic publicity. It will not appear in the committee literature of the near future and will be shunned by some of the Democratic orators who speak under committee sponsorship. And, of course, if, as expected, Mr. Roosevelt is again

Wants to Know If Congress Will Enact "Total Mobilization."

To the Editor of The Star: Who remembers, or had we best inquire who doesn't, those fateful days of early December, 1941?

We then were assured by the isolationists that we had nothing to fear from abroad; that we were protected by two great oceans; that the holocaust that was sweeping Europe and Asia never could reach our shores, and that all we really needed to do was to mind our own business.

But out of the mysterious ether of the vast Pacific came an almost unbelievable message: our assembled fleet, presumably safe in Pearl Harbor, had been attacked by a professedly friendly nation.

Who ever will forget that day, when a plainly harassed and anxious President confirmed the news to a joint session of the Congress, and asked for a formal declaration of war against the nation which, in violation of all practice among civilized states, already had begun it?

It is a bit later, in February, usually, that the feeding of the female by the male takes place. This is sometimes called "kissing" by persons who are not close enough to see what really happens. It is this.

On the Record

In Das Reich, Dr. Goebbels' weekly newspaper, issued of December 5 an entire page is given to an article describing the present situation of Germany and the strategy she must follow to avoid defeat. There is no mention of victory.

The writer takes it for granted, and seeks to educate the German people to acceptance of the fact that the German war of aggression is already lost. The war now being fought is purely defensive, and its object is only to win a tolerable peace from the victors.

The first time, as far as I know, it is openly acknowledged in this article that the war turned against the Germans exactly when opinion in the Allied countries thought it had, namely, in the fall of 1942, a period which encompasses the successful defense of Stalingrad, the German retreat in Egypt and the landing of the Americans in North Africa.

In domestic propaganda it is obvious that the best strategy today is the truth. Thus the author of the article says, "The contemporary picture is that we are everywhere in the defensive, and the enemy everywhere is attacking, not only in the continental theater of war, in Russia and in the south, but also in the air, while the U-boat weapon has lost its offensive power. At the approach of the fifth war year, the war is going over into the two-front period."

One degree of success has attended the earnest efforts of docile Frank Walker, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, to put into effect the two very smart pieces of fourth-term political strategy which the writer thought up entirely by himself. But that isn't Mr. Walker's fault. Certainly, he tried. Always Mr. Walker tries.

In this matter, while the masses are making no progress at all, he should have the satisfaction of knowing that no one else could have done more. One of these Roosevelt ideas was to hurry the New Deal name until after the election. The other was to postpone both Democratic and Republican conventions until some time in September, thus reducing the campaign from a four-month to a five-week affair.

The President made quite plausible arguments for both propositions. The move in which he presented them imparted a fine nonpartisan flavor, and that was the way Mr. Walker tried to sell them, too. His failure was complete and he is a discouraged man.

So far as burying the "New Deal" name is concerned, it is true it is no longer used in the official Democratic publicity. It will not appear in the committee literature of the near future and will be shunned by some of the Democratic orators who speak under committee sponsorship. And, of course, if, as expected, Mr. Roosevelt is again the candidate, the platform, the nomination speech and the speech of acceptance all can be kept in the hands of one man.

One would think this would be enough. But it is not. The trouble is that neither the wicked Republicans nor the even more wicked anti-New Deal Democrats nor the bulk of the still more wicked newspapers will co-operate. Even part of the New Deal press and some of the New Dealers are co-operating.

Under these circumstances, the efforts of Mr. Walker to implement the desire of his chief have bogged down. It was a good political idea if everybody would co-operate, but the committee can't do it, and he is kept on trying threats to become ridiculous.

The Republicans and anti-New Deal Democrats regarded it as an attempt on the part of the President to rid himself of a discredited delegation, while certain strong New Dealers felt that, despite the Federalist hypocritical recital of the New Deal achievements, it was permitted to abandon its name, the next step would be to abandon its "principles."

Accordingly, the suggestion has met with a feeble response, though it has not been quite as flat as the suggestion for a five-week campaign, the September conventions. That is "out the window." The Republicans already have fixed their date as June 22 in Chicago and the Democratic committee, which will meet in a few days, is scheduled to pick its date in the city, and for approximately July 10.

The basic idea behind the short-campaign proposal, as advanced by the President, was to "minimize politics" while the war is on. At least that was the way it was advertised. Of course, it is a laudable notion, but in this case it was

Dorothy Thompson

In such a situation, the tasks facing Germany are, he holds, these: Concentrate all strategy on defense. With this in mind, turn the path of the enemy, who must attack, into a road of blood. Convince him that it is either, first, impossible to capture the main central position, or, second, that the price will be too high.

The author says that except for the United States, Germany's enemies are also tired, as Germany is Britain, he says, has been strained to the breaking point since 1942; the Soviet Union is suffering from superhuman efforts; and only the Americans will appear in the European theater completely fresh. But the Americans, he says, are torn between Europe and Eastern Asia, and their divisions, he asserts, are fighting too far from home to understand the meaning of the war.

On this basis, the writer speculates that the Russians will not indefinitely continue their offensive, that the real test will come when Russian soil is freed of German troops. At this point, he hopes and believes the Allied coalition will split. He has similar hopes in the Mediterranean campaign, that when Anglo-American troops reach the Balkans, the inner solidity of the coalition with Russia will be weakened and the political test. He speculates that America will revolt at heavy casualties, and that in this combination of circumstances there will be a chance for Germany to make a deal.

He quotes two first-class German authors, Prof. Heilbrueck, the historian, and Marshal Ritzel von Leeb, on the strategy of defense. It has two possible purposes; the one, to weaken the enemy that you can take the offensive yourself; the other, to break down the enemy to the point where he is willing to negotiate peace, even though still in the superior position. The author admits that the first of these is impossible, Germany never will recapture the offensive and never be victorious. But the second is possible, and must be the political and military aim.

I find this article significant for its complete candor. It is obvious that the German people know the situation and that further false optimism is useless.

But it is also important that this article was written before the Teheran statement was published. Actually, it appeared on the same day, but must have been written before. The Teheran statement deals a heavy blow to the speculation that Russia may give out once she has driven out the Germans. It does prove, however, that the Germans intend to withdraw entirely from Russia. Teheran also dealt a blow to the speculation that differences might arise between Russia and the western Allies over the Balkan campaign. The military strategy is actually planned, and a few days after Teheran the army of liberation was recognized in London.

There is therefore little left of the whole strategy except the hope of breaking down the American will. So we may expect the mouthpieces of Germany in this country to do everything to build up American losses in lives and materiel in the next months. In the light of this I think it unwise of our Government to make such pessimistic forecasts.

Symptoms that this German propaganda is really underway was shown themselves when in reporting a recent raid on Germany the German reports doubled our losses.

The Great Game of Politics

Frank R. Kent

A little too obvious that it would be very greatly to the advantage of Mr. Roosevelt to have his name as the only name on the platform, to put into effect the two very smart pieces of fourth-term political strategy which the writer thought up entirely by himself.

New Ranks Advocated

Maj. George Fielding Eliot

The rank situation in the Navy has been reluctant to grant high military rank to the leaders of their armed forces.

There have, for example, never been more than two permanent grades of general officers in our Army—major general and brigadier general—except for a brief period after the Civil War when it was provided by law that there should be one general and one lieutenant general. These higher grades sometimes have been granted by Congress as rewards to individual officers or during the progress of war as a temporary expedient necessary to the command of large armies. Certainly there have never been so many "four-star" generals and "three-star" lieutenant generals as there are today, but this is all temporary rank. Gen. Marshall wears his four stars by virtue of the law which gives the rank of general to the chief of staff during his incumbency in that office, but his permanent rank is that of major general, to which he would revert at the end of his service as chief of staff in the absence of any legislation or temporary appointment giving him higher rank. Every other general and lieutenant general has his rank by virtue of a temporary presidential appointment, under powers granted to the President by Congress during the period of emergency.

Thus, Winfield Scott was for some years a "brevet" lieutenant general. But in the Navy up to the Civil War the highest rank was that of captain, corresponding to colonel in the Army. A captain appointed to command a squadron of naval vessels was usually called commodore by courtesy, and was considered senior to other captains while exercising his appointment. But there was no permanent rank involved. The title of admiral was considered by our early congresses to smack particularly of monarchy and European pomp. The enormous expansion of the Navy during the Civil War did, however, require the creation of the grades of rear admiral and commodore; for a little while after that there was a permanent admiral and vice admiral as well. But rear admiral was general and the senior permanent grade in the Navy corresponding to that of major general in the Army—and it still is so. In time of peace, the grade of admiral (4 stars) is granted temporarily to the Chief of Naval Operations and to Commanders in Chief of fleet commands. In time of war it is granted to certain specified force commanders but they all revert to the 3-star rank of rear admiral when their term of service in the higher appointment expires. At present, of course, under war-time conditions, these grades are temporarily granted wherever required.

Probably American reluctance to grant high military rank has been partially due to the fact that we have rarely had peace establishments in either Army or Navy which warranted very much rank. As our forces grew larger, it took a little time to overcome old prejudices. Now we seem to be faced with the need for even higher grades than general and admiral. Most foreign armies and navies have such higher grades, and the British have no rank higher than our "4-star" rank, which is called Field Marshal, Admiral of the Fleet or Marshal of the Royal Air Force. In the German, French and Russian armies there are two grades higher than our four stars. At the present time the chief of staff of British Army and the senior British military representative in Washington are both field marshals, the chief of the naval staff is an admiral of the fleet; the chief of the air staff is a marshal of the RAF. The chief of staff of the Russian Army is a marshal of the Soviet Union. Knowing how important rank, and the prestige of rank, is among military men, it would seem advisable for some higher grade to be authorized, at least temporary for our Army and Navy. In one respect, the Navy will have an advantage. The new admiral of the fleet needs only add one more stripe on his sleeve or strap, but it will take a little figuring to find a tasteful arrangement for five stars on the narrow shoulder strap of the olive drab Army blouse.

Peace Bid Inspired?

George Weller

Forty-eight hours of speculation have added nothing to the fact about Pravda's Cairo report that Britain has opened negotiations with Germany. But the odor of Berlin inspiration which overhung the story immediately on publication is getting increasingly strong.

One of the distinguishing features of a totalitarian, politically censored press like Russia's is that everything is official. There being no free air for flying trial balloons, the Soviets have attempted to create an indoor sky in the Pravda "rumor" column.

Whether such rumors are genuine or false, they are equally dangerous because they fatally involve the Kremlin's consent to their publication with all its political consequences. Under such a system the government's policy is as shackled to the press as the press is shackled to the government.

What is objected to is that the spite bludgeon of the direct charge hits all the Allies merely in order to gain a few extra leagues of Polish territory for which there is still ample time for calm negotiation.

Observers to whom it seems impossible that the Russians can believe what they are saying—except up to the point they consider it politically expedient to pretend to believe in order to rush their Polish settlement—are asking themselves where the Russians got this story in the first place.

Without overrating Germany's Machiavellian abilities, it is fair to say that this story follows so beautifully what the Germans would want published in the United States today that one cannot exclude the possibility that the Soviets have bitten—perhaps deliberately—at Nazi bait.

Germany would like to have peace with either the Anglo-American forces or the Russian forces. The Teheran agreement forbids that. Hitler's problem is to break the Teheran agreement. Russia's war against Germany is the more nearly won of the two fronts. The Anglo-American war against Germany is still uncertain and critical. Russia threatens the invasion of Germany.

The Anglo-American Allies are still far away. The German problem is to get the Russians to treat for terms. But without some justification the Russians cannot break through to the west front. The Germans aim to furnish them that justification.

Hitler realizes that such agreements cannot be broken overnight. It is necessary to split before breaking. But it is clear that Germany needs peace with Russia, not Britain, and that as soon as possible. Such a story would be an act of diplomatic foresight for eventual overtures to follow.

At any other time than when the Polish situation is burning in the Soviet camp such a canard would be unprintable. But the Germans may have recognized here a chance to get published what would be otherwise an official breach of faith even to mention.

Thus in a sense both parties get their money's worth from this canard. In the Polish question an ostensibly strengthened, and the Germans in that their splitting of the Allies is begun in anticipation of peace overtures to Russia.

When rescanned, the story has more than ever the odor of German inspiration. All the sources mentioned are Allied—Moscow, Cairo, Yugoslavia, Greece. There is not a single one of the "neutral capitals" which did rumor-platters are accustomed to use as sources. Whoever fabricated this story wanted to be sure that, even if it failed of its intention of splitting the Allies, it should show jagged fragments in every quarter of the Allied camp.

Only Washington was grabbed; everybody is included. Just to be sure that the mixture was extra strong, Ribbentrop himself was selected as the chief German dummy—another preposterous overstatement for such early and tentative negotiations.

There is really no way of telling whether the Germans sold the story to the Russians, or whether they sold it to themselves and with European political sleuthing so heavily censored, there is little possibility of hunting down the author unless Moscow reveals it. As a strictly short-end bet, this correspondent would guess Ankara as the source and Von Papen as the author.

Reflection

Now for the first time in a dozen years

His room is tidy, there's no cluttered

His clothes are hanging neatly, as they should,

And everything is in its proper place.

The bureau top where havoc reigned supreme

Stands soberly devoid of odds and ends

The radio that always was too loud

Seems mutely anxious now to make amends.

The sun still lingers warmly on his bed,

But in the heavy silence there's a chill.

For soon or late I must acquaint myself

Tax Law Injustice

Congress Some Day May Discover How New Deal Protects Monopolies

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

While the New Deal is busy making headlines by indicting banks and British companies for alleged technical violations of our laws, the same New Deal is busy protecting the big businesses and the monopolies from paying higher tax rates than the smaller businessman.

When the soldiers come home and look for jobs they will discover that as the war boom collapses on the business front, the smaller enterprises—which in the aggregate furnish more employment normally than do the big corporations—will have suffered. The chances to build up post-war capital to go into new lines or to convert to old lines will have been materially impaired by the New Deal tax laws.

Thus under the New Deal conception of economic rights—which, incidentally, President Roosevelt completely overlooked in his recent message to Congress—the small corporation with $1,000,000 of invested capital pays just as high a rate of taxes as the $20,000,000 corporation. There is no graduated scale of tax rates which is the very heart of a capacity-to-pay tax system. The 1941 law did provide such a scale for excess profits taxes but the New Deal insisted on a flat tax which now is to be 95 per cent instead of 90 per cent, as in the present law.

Congress, which is supposed to have achieved some independence of the New Deal on tax matters in recent years, seems to have concerned itself lately with possible tax relief for the $200,000,000 corporations, renegotiation benefit for the big companies, but no suggestions for relief of the smaller corporations has put in its appearance as yet though the revenue measure has gone through the House and is now on its way through the Senate. Under the pending bill, a company which has an invested capital of $1,000,000 and earns $1,000,000 pays a net tax of 72.4 per cent, or $724,000 and can retain, therefore, only $276,000. But a company with $20,000,000 invested capital pays only $400,000 out of the first million it earns and hence retains $600,000.

Even on the basis of a 25 per cent return on earning on $20,000,000 invested capital, the over-all net tax rate is 72.5 whereas the company with $1,000,000 invested capital that earns $1,000,000 pays 72.4 per cent in taxes.

This means that the incentive to earn not only is diminished, because very few companies do earn $1,000,000 on a $1,000,000 invested capital—but the situation is correspondingly adverse for companies earning less than $1,000,000.

A business that can keep $276,000 out of an invested capital of $1,000,000 is a small business as corporate affairs are considered nowadays because the gross volume of many large companies runs into billions or big fractions thereof. The 1941 tax law took care of this problem to some extent by a graduated rate which ran from 35 per cent on the first $20,000 of excess profits to 60 per cent on the income in excess of $500,000. This was a fair and more equitable means of taxation but the Treasury Department since has insisted on penalizing the smaller businesses by subjecting them to the same rates as the larger enterprises. As for the so-called relief provisions of the excess profits laws from which so much was promised, it turns out that these are largely "jokers" and that the Treasury is construing the measures narrowly, actually by giving the auditing of these cases so much as to prevent Congress from learning in time to do them any good whether any relief to the smaller businesses actually is being given.

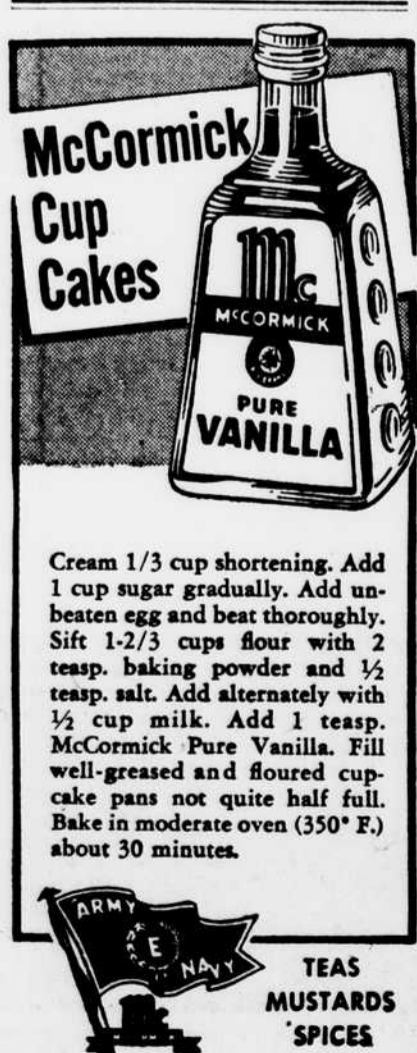

It is doubtful whether there really will be any relief under section 72c which will give smaller businesses any reduction that they do not already get under the broad clause limiting the over-all tax of all corporations to 80 per cent. The net result is to entrench big business still more firmly and to make it difficult for the weaker competitor to strengthen himself sufficiently for the postwar competition. Some day Congress will discover the small businessman and the manner in which the New Deal has protected the monopolies by means of the tax laws. But that discovery as yet appears to be in the dim distance.

House Member Sees 4th-Term Propaganda In Foreword to Bible

By the Associated Press. Representative Calvin D. Johnson, Republican, of Illinois has charged that White House aides are promoting a fourth term among servicemen by including a foreword by President Roosevelt in Bibles furnished troops overseas.

White House officials replied that pocket testaments were supplied the men long before the United States entered the war, that both Bible manufacturers and Secretary of War Stimson suggested a "commander in chief" foreword, and that the foreword merely commended the reading of the Bible to all serving in the armed forces.

Mr. Johnson in a statement yesterday said: "Many New Testaments obviously prepared for American boys in the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard and offered for sale in Washington and perhaps throughout the Nation, carry on their first page a reproduction of a letter on White House stationery and signed by the President, which reads as follows:

"As commander in chief, I take pleasure in commending the reading of the Bible to all who serve in the armed forces of the United States. Throughout the centuries men of many faiths and diverse origins have found in the sacred book wisdom, counsel and inspiration. It is a fountain of strength and now, as always, an aid in attaining the highest inspirations of the human soul."

Mr. Johnson said no Christian would quarrel with that message, but added, "The propriety of a man seeking political office to thus use the Bible for motives which are at least questionable is something to be deplored."

White House officials said correspondence on the matter showed the "foreword" idea was suggested by a Bible manufacturer in December, 1940; that several months later the Navy and War Departments took it up, and that permission subsequently was granted some private publishers to include the foreword. The latter possibly explains how some of the Testaments appear on private store book shelves.

Baltimore Man and Son Asphyxiated; 3 Overcome

By the Associated Press. BALTIMORE, Jan. 19.—A father and his son, 12, were asphyxiated yesterday, and three other members of the family were overcome by gas, police reported. Those dead were Carl Lausch, 36, and his son, William, 12. Mr. Lausch was found at the bottom of the basement steps after a miasma of gas when she arrived for work. Police found Mrs. William Lausch, Mr. Lausch's mother, who had come from Pennsylvania to help take care of the family while his wife was in the hospital, and Gretchen, 9, and David, 3, his other two children, unconscious in their beds. Mrs. William Lausch and David were said by doctors to be in a serious condition in Union Memorial Hospital.

Nazis Failed in Efforts To Crush the Church, Christian Action Told

Despite Nazi efforts to crush the church in Europe, it is very much alive, the Rev. Stephen W. Herman, pastor of the American Church in Berlin from 1936 to 1942, told 850 persons at the second assembly of the School for Christian Action and Leadership Education last night.

Mr. Herman, who spoke at the Calvary Baptist Church at Eighth and H streets N.W., said "Dr. Goebbels has never succeeded in giving an 'ersatz religion' for Christianity to Germany. In times of deep stress, as when the enormous losses on the Russian front strike home in every group and the toll from bombings mount, the people go back to their fundamental beliefs in God."

Many Pastors Are Martyrs.
He also declared all the youths of Germany are not Nazified. Many of them are Christians, resisting Nazi efforts to indoctrinate them into heathen beliefs. One reason for this core of resistance is the martyrdoms of many pastors in Germany and occupied countries. "The assassination only last week of Kaj Munk, Denmark's most prominent pastor and playwright, indicates the fear the Nazis and their Quislings have of ministers who form the basis of the opposition to the ideas of dictators," Mr. Herman said. Pastor Niemoeller, now serving his seventh year in a concentration camp, is another rallying figure for Christian people in Germany, he stated.

The Rev. Edwin H. Tuller, dean of the school, said there was an increase of more than 150 in the registration since last week. Among the students were approximately 25 servicemen and women.

Churches on Honor Roll.
He also announced the following churches, each having a minimum of 12 members registered at the school, were on the honor roll: Allbright Evangelical, Pinkney Memorial Episcopal, Gordon Memorial Presbyterian, Chevy Chase Presbyterian, Keller Memorial Lutheran, National City Christian, Friend's Meeting, Metropolitan A. M. E., John Wesley A. M. E. Zion, Asbury Methodist, Galbraith A. M. E. Zion, Ebenezer M. E. Brightwood Methodist, Rhode Island Methodist, Mt. Carmel Baptist, Chevy Chase Baptist and Calvary Baptist.

Mr. Tuller announced a program of visual education, featuring a moving picture "The Life of Christ," would be given at the assembly next week. The Rev. Lloyd H. Snyder, jr., assistant dean of the school will be the speaker.

Germany Using Music in Stores To Soothe Public

By the Associated Press.
LISBON, Jan. 19.—Music is being mobilized in Germany's food shops, markets and department stores to soothe the buying public irritated by the acute shortage of consumer goods.

The Ostdeutscher Beobachter of Posen, discussing the use of music in war factories to counteract afternoon fatigue, said a similar practice had been extended to soften the harsh atmosphere of empty shelves confronting customers and clerks in retail shops.

Phonograph selections are picked for their soothing quality and played well modulated—not loud enough to disturb conversations across counters—to create a background of comforting tones.

"The nervousness which these days is the characteristic atmosphere in many retail establishments, affecting both customers and salespeople, has been perceptibly diminished by this means," the newspaper said.

Matthews' Prosecutor Drafted for Army Duty

By the Associated Press.
BALTIMORE, Jan. 19.—Prentiss W. Evans, State's Attorney of Somerset County, has been inducted into the Army and is on a three weeks' furlough to wind up his personal affairs, State selective service headquarters said yesterday.

Mr. Evans, who last fall obtained an indictment charging criminal libel against Rives Matthews, Princess Anne weekly newspaper publisher, was accepted for general military service Monday, selective service said.

Mr. Evans was originally called for induction by his Washington (D. C.) draft board, but obtained a transfer to the Somerset County board in order that he might be inducted in Baltimore.

Mr. Matthews, who was indicted September 29, had urged that Mr. Evans be deferred until Mr. Matthews' criminal libel trial had been held.

The indictment of Mr. Matthews grew out of articles he published charging that J. Millard Tawes, controller of Maryland, took a pleasure trip to Georgia in a State automobile.

B & M Brick-Oven Baked Beans (unlike ordinary canned beans) are baked in the real, time-honored New England way: Baked and baked and baked, slowly, all day long, 'till each single bean is a treat of good, old-fashioned flavor...mealy and tender and golden brown.

So...even though we are again baking these hearty and better-tasting baked beans in our Down East ovens...they cannot be rushed to your Grocer or you.

Keep that in mind. And, whenever your Grocer is temporarily out of these New England favorites, understand that his supply is limited...and don't blame him. Burnham & Morrill Company, Portland 2, Maine.

3 D. C. Men Reported Among 500 Soldiers Missing in Action

Three Washington men, one of whom had been overseas only 26 days, and another a veteran of approximately 20 bombing missions, are among more than 500 American soldiers missing in action on the various battlefronts, the War Department announced today. Two of the Washingtonians are missing in the Mediterranean area and one in the European theater.

The missing trio are Pfc. Earle G. Wilhoite, Jr., whose wife lives at 1815 Nineteenth street N.W.; Staff Sgt. Herbert M. King, whose mother, Mrs. Iole Francis Seymour, lives at 104 Thirteenth street S.E.; and Staff Sgt. Jack L. Werber, who listed a friend, Dave Sauber, of 829 Delafield place N.W., "as his nearest of kin." Mrs. Wilhoite said her husband had been in North Africa only 26 days when he was reported missing. He was an administrative clerk in the Army Air Forces, Western High Graduate. A native of Long Beach, Calif., who had resided in the District most of his life, Pvt. Wilhoite was a graduate of Western High School and had been employed by the Federal Housing Authority.

Sergt. King, 21-year-old tall gunner on a B-26 Marauder had completed approximately 20 missions, according to a member of his family, and wore the Air Medal and one oak leaf cluster. In his last letter, dated December 7, he informed his mother he was up for a second oak leaf cluster, but he was reported missing six days later.

A former Eastern High School student, Sergt. King in his letters told how his group had carried out nine bombing missions in as many days and on another occasion had flown two expeditions into enemy territory in one day. His plane was badly shot up several times. Sergt. King was sent overseas last April and was believed to have been stationed near London. A National Guardsman before being called to active duty, he gave up his rating and went back to private to transfer to the Air Forces.

Parents in Poland. Sergt. Werber was born in Poland near the German border. Mr. Sauber said, and came to the United States about 1937. Sergt. Werber's parents remained in Poland.

Sergt. Werber formerly was employed by Mr. Sauber in his cleaning establishment and lived with him at the Delafield place address. As soon as he was eligible he filed his first citizenship papers, and he was serving in the Air Forces when granted full citizenship about six months ago. He went overseas immediately thereafter.

Mr. Sauber said the sergeant was a photographer-gunner on a Flying Fortress.

Streit Declares Nation Is Unprepared for Peace
If Germany should collapse soon, we would not be prepared for peace as we were not prepared for war when the Japanese bombed Pearl Harbor, Clarence K. Streit, president of Federal Union, Inc., told the Federal Union Forum yesterday at the YWCA.

Representative McMurray, Democrat, of Wisconsin told the forum we are economically unprepared for the end of the war. Men and women in the armed forces will be "out of jobs," factories once turning out war materials will return to manufacturing civilian needs, but we will not be organized to convert these war needs to civilian necessities. We must be organized now, he told the forum, if we are to be prepared for the cessation of hostilities.

Other speakers included John Vieg, former professor of government at Iowa State University, and Dr. Paul F. Douglass, president of American University, who acted as moderator also.
John H. Ford, national treasurer of the union, presided at the meeting.

A FEW OF THE MANY WHO HAVE TRAVELLED BY AIR OVERSEAS DURING THIS WAR

TO WORK TOGETHER PEOPLE FIRST MUST GET TOGETHER

The President of the United States to Africa, by air!

The Secretary of State to Russia, by air!

Numerous other Americans and leaders of the United Nations, on their world-wide war missions, are criss-crossing the world by air.

They have to go to places quickly in order to do things quickly!

It's Getting Commonplace

Not only do transport planes quickly bridge the Atlantic and Pacific for thousands of persons, but also for tons and tons of products necessary to win this war. The crews of the cargo and passenger planes of the Army's Air Transport Command and the Naval Air Transport Service will go down in history for the vital roles they are playing in today's world drama.

Yes, international war travellers do use air as nonchalantly as we at home hail a taxi.

Due to air transportation the old song title "Forty-Five Minutes From Broadway" now has universal significance.

Why Not? Air Is Everywhere

The importance of why one travels changes with the times. Now it's for military, political and morale reasons.

Tomorrow, it will be for all manner of business, professional and recreational reasons. Then, the travel missions of even more people, both domestic and international, will acquire first rank in importance.

American Airlines Will Grow

Peacetime travellers too will demand the time saving, easy, comfortable air-way to go places and do things. Our job is to grow in order to enable more people, in all lines of business, to get together quicker so that they may work together more effectively.

It's Inevitable

Large as is the volume of today's wartime air travel it is only a hint of the inevitable postwar volume. Even if we desired to, we could not prevent its growth, any more than the steamship, the train and the motor car were prevented.

American Airlines, being the greatest national airline and a great international airline, is preparing for future expansion—because, air transportation is still NEW for millions of people.

A. K. KEMP
President

Hollywood Buys a Comedy Hit And Says Nothing About Price

By JAY CARMODY.

Sales department: "Kiss and Tell," the subject of some pretty bidding on the part of Hollywood studios since it began its profitable and happy life on Broadway last St. Patrick's day, finally has been purchased by Columbia studios. Contrary to the usual custom, neither Producer George Abbott nor the film company makes mention of the price. The news just goes to the effect that the deal has been closed and that the picture will not be made for some time until the several companies exhaust the possibilities of the comedy on Broadway and elsewhere.

Needless to say the penny which will find its name in the news before long. In their artistic ways, people of the stage and screen find it hard to talk about money eventually.

Incidentally, F. Hugh Herbert, who wrote the agreeable comedy, is reputedly on the verge of handing Mr. Abbott a new script dealing with life among the adolescents and their harassed parents. As a father, Mr. Herbert takes an extremely amiable view of adolescence and his new play definitely is comic in flavor.

Honors department: America's critics, voting in Film Daily's annual poll, have come to the conclusion that "Random Harvest" was the outstanding motion picture of 1943. And, correlatively, that Ronald Colman's performance was the best contribution to male acting of the season. Strangely, the picture is not rated as a strong contender for the Academy Award, nor did it figure prominently in the balloting in which the New York Critics' Circle decided that "Watch on the Rhine" was their award picture.

The Sign, national Catholic magazine, which conducts one of the most intelligent departments of stage and screen comment and criticism to be found among periodicals, has conferred its 1943 award upon "The Song of Bernadette."

The picture makes its Eastern debut this week, but has not yet been booked for Washington showing.

Memory department: The anonymity of a uniform, Army or Navy, is not anonymous where the Capitol Theater's current headliner, Patricia Morrison, is concerned. When a sailor stopped her at the stage entrance on the deadline of her performance at the night show, Miss Morrison stayed stopped until the last second.

They were reminiscing of the days when Miss Morrison was making her jittery debut in the movies at Paramount studios, and the sailor was the gent who was making her up for the camera.

Fuller information department: "Rodeo," prominently programmed by its ballet Russe de Monte Carlo in its engagement here February 2 and 3, can be regarded as a sort of compensation for those who cannot get tickets to "Oklahoma." In it, in case you did not know, is the nucleus of the famous ballet which Agnes DeMille devised for the Theater Guild's hit musical.

Yearning department: Jimmy Cagney will give the guld a lot of money if it will let him make the picture version of "Oklahoma" with himself in the major role.

ROMANCE'S REWARD—Perry Como, possessor of a classic profile and a dulcet method of singing popular tunes, has sung and profited himself into the honors of "most romantic singer of the year"—as one annual poll puts it. Moreover, the facts have not been overlooked by Hollywood, to which town Mr. Como will soon trudge.

Unlikely as It Seems, Ish Gets Laughs Over the Radio

By James Lindsley.

HOLLYWOOD. Mr. Merwin Bogie is a very funny man, or else thousands of people are wasting a lot of laughter every week—but what makes him funny is a beautiful blend, in one would like to risk a guess, least of all Mr. Merwin Bogie.

In case you never heard of Mr. Bogie, which is a good even money bet, his alias is Ish Kabbille, and he's the lad who, with Kay Kyser as an accomplice, weekly spouts absurd poems, essays and assorted inanities and insanities, uttered in a tone of whimsy self-assertiveness which is like nothing else on the radio. Example: "An Essay on Radio."

"Worry is stuff that if nobody did any more'd be nothing to about. Worry is also stuff that if I was married to a beautiful blond she wouldn't about me but I would about her. But I ain't, so why?"

Not very funny, you say? Well, it got a big laugh on the radio program.

The Voice Does It. It's easy enough to say it's his voice that makes such a drive funny, but Ish (no one ever calls him anything else) swears he uses his normal speaking tones when he faces the microphone, and his normal speaking tones are much like any one's, and not funny at all.

Ish was a musician before he was a comedian. He's played the trumpet in Kyser's band for 13 years. It was about 10 years ago that he accidentally became a comedian. For years, Ish had yearned to be a singer and finally, Kyser reluctantly permitted him to try out before an audience.

The song wasn't supposed to be funny," he says, "but I was scared stiff, and I guess I was no Crosby. Anyway, the audience roared, scaring me some more. Kay let me try it again next night. Same result. So Kay said, 'Well, if they think you're that funny maybe you're a comedian. Go ahead and be funny.'

He well remembers, too, how he came by his nickname, Ish Kabbille. "We were appearing in a San Francisco night club in 1934," he recalls, "and I used to do a singing number, 'The Maid in the Flying Trapeze.' Remember it?"

Repetition of a Song. "Well, the audiences liked it so well that they'd bring me back again and again and we couldn't get on with the show. So Kay told me to work up a song for a finale that was so bad, so corny, so all around lousy that they wouldn't bring me back. I thumbed through piles of old sheet music, and I found this thing called 'Ish Kabbille,' published years and years ago. Boy, it was terrible, but darned if the customers didn't go for it and I sang 'Ish Kabbille' every program for five years. It not only became my trademark, but my nickname. Plenty of my acquaintances haven't the faintest idea what my legal name is."

Ish receives many of his absurdities, particularly his "poems," from contributors—radio listeners who apparently regard him as a fellow lunatic. Like this "Ode to a Hen":

"In she came
"And down she sot.
"She laid an egg
"And up she got."

Ish is tall, slim, 36 years old, married, the father of two children born in Erie, Pa., and educated at the University of West Virginia. Next to his radio work he likes to play slapstick roles in the films, which he does every now and then.

Studio Counterattacks Hollywood Elements

By the Associated Press. HOLLYWOOD. Wartime urgencies have led to the use of a relatively inexpensive but effective means to combat the weather, irregular in California this time of year.

A huge stage, made of skeleton steel framework and covered with adjustable tarpaulins, covers two large street scenes for "Greenwich Village," with the added advantage of producing night scenes, if necessary. Protection against delays due to weather hazards on expensive productions is something new in a town originally selected for its finer weather by early moviemakers.

War II Permits Of Little Time For Hit Tunes

By Howard Heyn.

HOLLYWOOD. Why aren't there more outstanding war songs? Well, an ex-plumber's apprentice is authority for this answer: "There's no lift to this war, no jollity. The last war was, in many respects, regarded as something of a picnic. Bands blared and marching soldiers sang about smiles, Katy at the kitchen gate, Mr. Zip, Zip, the Barber, and how they hated to get up in the morning. "This time it's pretty grim business. They're singing their prayers."

The former wrench-forgetter is Jimmy McHugh. He wrote that lilting "Comin' in on a Wing and a Prayer." Then he turned out "Say a Prayer for the Boys Over There," which is on the same popularity path that took the wing-prayer combination to a sales smash of 700,000 copies.

Too Early for Effect. "The war is going better now, but not well enough to reflect its trend musically," says Jimmy. "Maybe later, when the atmosphere is a little lighter, you'll see some of those martial tunes like Irving Berlin wrote 25 years ago."

McHugh has watched popular music move through many a cycle in the 15 years since his "I Can't Give You Anything But Love, Baby" swept the country. He has seen the public taste undulate from sweet to hot and back to saccharine again. He has had a hand in Broadway hits almost annually, with such tunes as "Exactly Like You," "On the Sunny Side of the Street," "Go Home and Tell Your Mother," "Lovely to Look At," "I Won't Dance," "South American Way," "Touch of Texas," and a score of others that sing themselves when the titles are mentioned.

Since 1932 Broadway has shared his songs with the screen, and McHugh now lives in a comfortable, sprawling house in Beverly Hills. Mother Still There.

With him is the diminutive white-haired mother, who was all encouragement when a 17-year-old boy, with a heavy pipe on his foot, youthful Jimmy decided there was an easier way than plumbing to make a living. He got a job as office boy in the Boston Opera House, and acquired an unflagging love for opera.

Win, Lose or Draw

By DENMAN THOMPSON, Star Sports Editor.

Baseball Fan for Half Century, and Still Is!

"I, too, want to join in the chorus of welcome—so I am doing it!" writes John A. Ferral, 223 Pennsylvania avenue S.E. "It certainly is good to see the bylines of Jack Keller, Rod Thomas and yourself in The Star again, though I believe I sometimes am able to recognize your sure touch in the unsigned contributions. Jack Keller always will rank in my book as the No. 1 sports "heads" writer, because of the clever heads he used to add to my bowling yarns. And Rod—the seems to be the Tex Rickard of the sports writers—a natural-born promoter. I do hope he is assembling material for a life of Gen. Eisenhower, to be written, of course, with a view to its ultimate use by the movies!

"As for yourself, it's all nonsense for Bill Flammholz to refer to you as a veteran. You are merely the youngster who stepped into Ed Grillo's ample brogans—and filled them more than adequately. But you are just a Johnny-come-lately. Now, I saw my first Washington club baseball game in 1893, so that with the close of the past season I completed 50 years of consecutive attendance at the Washington ball games, a good part of my annual leave being spent there. By 1894 I was a dyed-in-the-wool fan. It's a long walk from Capitol Hill to the ball park and back, but I never realized it then. We had no money for such frivolous things as car rides. For 20 cents we could get a seat on the first-base line within a few yards of Ed Cartwright, who played the bag by standing on it firmly at all times. We had a couple of high-class players, however: one was Selbach, an outfielder, and another was Win Mercer, a pitcher who could string together wins of 10 consecutive games or more without any sport to speak of—he was really amazing.

Attending Games Required Marathon Ability

"When in 1901 the Washington club joined the American League and opened up at Fifteenth and H streets N.E., the opening date found me with just 25 cents, and working at Twentieth street and Pennsylvania avenue N.W. So I walked from there to the ball park and then home to Capitol Hill. You said it! Especially when you remember that Washington then was habitually 'First in War, First in Peace, and Last in the American (or National) League.' With the start of the American League it looked as though we had a team capable of finishing at the top, but sixth place was the best it could do for the first two years, and then seventh or eighth until Griff came.

"There you have a name that sits out at others in the mind of the old-time Washington baseball fan. He came here in 1912, of course, and with what seemed to be a couple of unimportant changes finished in second place. He repeated in 1913. Picture what that meant to fans like myself who had held torchlight parades when the team mounted as high as 6th in May, say!

"Your Connolly story reminds me of another. He had a pretty bad day at Washington and on the following afternoon was behind the plate again. As the park attendant came out and poured the white lines to the bases and then outlined the batters' boxes, a fair fan turned to her escort and asked what the boxes outlined were for. Before her friend could answer, a fan nearby told her: "Those, lady? Why those are for Connolly's seeing-eye dog."

His Favorite Yarn Concerns Jakey Atz

"My favorite baseball story, however, is one by Jakey Atz who used to play sandlot baseball here before he went to the White Sox, and who afterward managed several pennant winners for Fort Worth in the Texas League. It seems that Fort Worth was playing Beaumont in a rather critical game and it reached the last half of the ninth with Fort Worth one run ahead and Beaumont at bat. By the time two men had been retired, Beaumont had the bases loaded, so a hit would run Fort Worth. And at the bat was Jim Galloway, one of the best hitters in the league!

"Imagine the feelings of the Fort Worth bench warmers when Jakey burst into hysterical laughter. They were on the point of rushing him to the detention ward when Galloway popped out. Then Jakey explained. In his eagerness to get up there and drive in the winning runs, Galloway had batted out of turn and so he was automatically out. No matter what he did, it wouldn't matter. What a delightful spot for an opposing manager! Jake said he was afraid to protest at once for fear it would cause a riot; he waited, hoping that Galloway would go out—as he did.

As ever, " "

Errant Floor Goal Wins Fiasco, 5-4

By the Associated Press.

ELKHART, Ind., Jan. 19.—Fans booted, players fraternized and officials spent most of their time clearing debris off the floor in a strange high school basket ball game last night between Elkhart and Riley High of South Bend. Elkhart, which had averaged 45 points in four previous league games, won 5 to 4—but had help from one of the Riley players. Elkhart scored a field goal, a free throw and got the other two points when Ernie Kovatch of Riley became confused and tipped the ball into the wrong basket.

Falcons Spice Hockey Game, but Smoother Cutters Win, 5-3

By the Associated Press.

It's a question whether Washington's hockey fans prefer the smooth, high-grade National or American League brand of the ice game, which they seldom see, or the rough style they first saw when the Eagles of the Eastern Amateur League introduced the game here.

Anyway, they showed their approval for the smoother, less skillful game last night by practically lifting the roof of Uline Arena as the Philadelphia Falcons of the Amateur League disrupted the usually smooth Curtis Bay Coast Guard Cutters, forcing the latter to play rough too in order to take a 5-3 win back to Baltimore.

The Falcons, coached by Redvers Mackenzie, former Eagles mentor dashed up and down the ice going nowhere against the Cutters' defense, but providing plenty of excitement and spills.

On the other hand the more polished Cutters worked close into the Falcon's nest, and Philadelphia's 17-year-old net tender, Red Henry, really had a busy time and turned in numerous spectacular saves.

There was one good fight which started between Manny Cotlow of Curtis Bay and Les Gasparini of Philadelphia and which shortly had practically all players embroiled. Cotlow and Gasparini were given five-minute penalties. More excitement was furnished when little Whitey Carlson of the Falcons made a solo dash down the ice and trail into two big Cutter defensesmen. Whitey hit the ice and skidded into the Curtis Bay goal, but he didn't have the puck with him.

Marshall Gets Bout With La Motta by Licking Bolden

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 19.—Lloyd Marshall believes there's no place like home—especially when you're fighting.

The Californian returned to his native Cleveland last night to pound out an easy 10-round decision over Nate Bolden of Chicago, what Matchmaker Larry Atkins billed as a duration light-heavyweight title bout.

The win was Lloyd's fourth in five Cleveland appearances and it earned him a March engagement with Bolt-By La Motta, the toughhousing Bronx middleweight. In his other two local tussles, the former Golden Gloves notched decisions over Anton Christoforidis and Curtis Sheppard, knocked out Ezzard Charles and belted Heavyweight Jimmy Bovino to the floor before taking the count himself in the 13th.

Rated by Ring Magazine as the No. 1 active light-heavy, Marshall spent most of his time chasing Bolden around the Arena ring.

He caught up with the back-pedaling Chicagoan enough times to unleash a slashing assortment of rights. One of these sent Bolden to the canvas for the count of nine in the third round after Nate temporarily ceased his bicycling to stagger Marshall with a left hook.

Bolden was the aggressor in only one heat—the fourth. He landed two hard rights that rocked Marshall on his heels and continued with an assault that forced Lloyd to cover up.

Marshall returned to the offensive in the fifth and Bolden actually ran to another corner after Lloyd manuevered him against the ropes and flailed him with lefts and rights.

Marshall weighed 168 1/2, 2 1/4 pounds less than Bolden. The 510 customers contributed $13,934.

Matchmaker Atkins announced the signing of Lightweight champion Beau Jack for a February 15 engagement in Cleveland Public Hall. Jack is recognized as champion by the New York State Athletic Commission. His opponent will be announced later.

Soldiers Fall Before Marquette; Milligan Now on Same Spot

By TED MEIER, Associated Press Staff Writer.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—Thirteen seems to be a jinx to winning college basket ball quintets.

Last week De Paul's Demons of Chicago, undefeated and boasting a 13-game winning streak, lost to Valparaiso of Indiana. That left undefeated Camp Grant and Milligan (Tenn.) College with 13-game streaks.

The jinx caught up with Camp Grant last night, Marquette handing the Soldiers a surprise 46-38 defeat at Eglin, Ill. The Golden Avalanche got off to an early 17-6 lead and led throughout. The Soldiers pulled up to 34-33 in the second half before Marquette again crept away.

Milligan on Spot Friday. Milligan, boasting victories over Duke and North Carolina in its long streak, risks the jinx on Friday when the Buffs meet Emory and Henry at Bristol, Va.

Second in surprise only to Marquette's triumph was North Carolina's 37-to-33 victory over Duke in a Southern Conference game at Durham. It was Duke's first league start and the third straight loop triumph for the Tar Heels.

Otherwise, results ran to form in games throughout the country. The powerful Norfolk (Va.) Naval Training Station checked up its 17th victory in 18 starts by whipping Temple, 47-28; Great Lakes won its 15th in 17 games by downing Glenview Naval, 57-41, and in the Pacific Coast Northwest, flashy Gonzaga made it 14 of 15 by trouncing Eastern Washington, 61-33.

St. John's Visits Army. Interest centers in the East tonight, with powerful St. John's of Brooklyn meeting unbeaten Army at West Point and Pennsylvania tangle with Coach Al Judian's sharpshooting Muhlenberg team at Allentown, Pa. Muhlenberg has won 10 of 11, including among its victims such teams as C. C. N. Y. Penn State, Temple, St. Joseph's (Philadelphia) and Villanova.

Stock List Steadied By Late Support After Retreat

By VICTOR EUBANK. Associated Press Financial Writer. NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—Stocks took a little ground today but improved support steadied the list near the finish.

There was a generous sprinkling of fractional declines among steels, rails and rubbers, while in other departments prices were mixed and generally above the day's lows. Transfers totaled about 700,000 shares.

The buying urge was under considerable restraint throughout, and it was evident that the lack of enthusiasm was due partly at least, to the discordant notes being sounded in diplomatic circles in the wake of Moscow's treatment of repudiated rumors of British-German peace conversations.

Stocks in slightly lower territory in the market included United States Steel, Chrysler, Goodrich, United States Rubber, Montgomery Ward, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Western Union "A," Johns-Manville and United States Gypsum.

Army relinquishment of control of the railroads failed to generate any special interest in the carriers, but it was figured that strengthened in the shares had fully discounted the Washington action.

Iron Age Pictures Confusing Trends In Steel Industry. NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—Mixed trends which have "perplexed many an industrialist" during recent months are more apparent than ever, Iron Age said today.

Although reported relaxation of metal goods manufacture was disproved by the armed services and the War Production Board, the trade magazine said, Donald M. Nelson of the WPB indicated that limited civilian output is being started in certain areas to use excess and idle stocks of available metals.

McCarran Plans Early Action on Suffrage Bills

Meeting Set Friday For 'Home Rule' Subcommittee

Early action on District suffrage measures—both local and national—was planned today by Chairman McCarran of the Senate District Committee.

Senator McCarran scheduled a meeting Friday at 10 a. m. of the "home rule" subcommittee to consider proposed revisions of the bill to transfer the powers of the Board of Commissioners to elected councilmen operating through a city manager.

Revision to Be Considered.

At this session, it was indicated, consideration is to be given to a revised edition of the McCarran "home rule" measure, drafted by the chairman as a result of voluminous testimony taken at the recently concluded public hearings.

Senator McCarran indicated public hearings would be held as soon as possible on the Summers-Capper national representation resolution. He was named last week by Chairman Van Dusen of the Senate Judiciary Committee as head of a subcommittee to consider this measure, a proposed constitutional amendment to empower Congress to grant District residents representation in Congress and in the electoral college in such measure and under conditions Congress may deem proper.

Senator McCarran said there would be no undue delay as to the national suffrage consideration and that he would seek the advice of the best legal counsel available. "The language of this proposal differs from that of the earlier national representation plan," he said. "Whether the result is the same or different we shall seek to learn."

Perplexing Question.

"We had full hearings on the national representation question heretofore, and we will do it again. The question of the political rights of residents of the National Capital is a vexatious and perplexing one."

He asked the question if the District of Columbia is not to be treated either as a State or a territory, then what? "The thought that to grant representation to the District, under a formerly proposed constitutional amendment, would confer the status on the District led the Judiciary Committee two years ago to render an adverse report. Senator McCarran said he would seek the answers to this question under the new proposal."

Also, he said he would seek advice as to how to treat the thousands of District residents to maintain State voting privileges as distinguished from those who are disfranchised.

D. C. Board Named To Inspect Hospitals

Visitors Will Check on Standards, Cleanliness

The Commissioners today announced the establishment of a Board of Visitors to make quarterly inspections of municipal hospitals.

Commissioner Guy Mason, who has had the proposal under consideration for several months, said the board would check the standards and cleanliness of the institutions. The municipal hospitals are Gallinger, Glenn Dale, Tuberculosis Sanatoria and the Uphur Street Hospital.

Those named to the board, for indefinite terms are:

Mrs. Stanley Reed, wife of the Supreme Court Justice; Mrs. Harold N. Marsh, Mrs. Willis W. Jones, who has served as president of the national and local Colored Registered Nurses' Association; Rudolph Berger, chairman of the welfare committee of the Variety Club; the Rev. Edward G. Latch, pastor of the Metropolitan Methodist Church; Mrs. Lawrence A. Shehan of St. Patrick's Catholic Church; Rabbi Norman Gerstel, and the Rev. E. L. Harrison, pastor of Shiloh Baptist Church.

Commissioner Mason said the board would select its own chairman if it decides one is necessary.

OCD Workers Warned To Listen for Sirens

Except for the midday test of sirens and the periodic Sunday drills announced by the War Department last week, the sounding of air-raid alarms will not be considered a call to active duty for civilian defense units, Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, director of civilian defense, said today.

He pointed out that since the Sunday tests presumably will be announced, the sounding of the alarm, except at noon, now may mean a threatened raid. The only units which are not to report until called by Capt. Whitehurst are Emergency Welfare, the Animal Rescue Service and the Evacuation Authority.

Saying he had received a number of inquiries from business firms about the continuation of blackout regulations, Capt. Whitehurst said he wished to emphasize that the regulations "are still in full force and effect."

Capt. Whitehurst said the air-raid warning center, now functioning on a 24-hour, seven-day-a-week basis, and that the regular monthly control center exercises will be continued until further notice.

Garrison 104 to Install Officers Here Tonight

Wesley E. McDonald, former secretary to Senator Reynolds, demonstrated to the installation of the Garrison Post, 104, Army and Navy Union, at 8 o'clock tonight at the American Legion Hall, 2437 Fifteenth street N.W.

C. A. Rainey, commander of the Garrison, said there will be refreshments and dancing following the meeting.

Rule Debate on 'Do Women Make Better Lawyers Than Men' Is a Draw

Special feature of the debate, "Do Women Make Better Lawyers Than Men?" was exhibited A-16 feet of adding machine tape extolling the feminine virtues—produced by Justin L. Edgerton last night before 200 members and guests of the Women's Bar Association at the Stetler Hotel.

Mr. Edgerton, who has charge of the moot court at George Washington University, was speaker for male members of the District Bar Association. He began his argument to prove man's inability to compete with feminine barristers by unrolling his evidence—the list of women's qualifications he had written on the ticker tape.

Offers Card Comparison.

"Man's abilities fill only a small card," he said, "by comparison," and pushed aside a library card bearing masculine counselling advantages. "But here we have it."

And the roll of paper began tumbling to the floor.

His statements of woman's charm, persuasiveness and persistence may be amplified more aptly, he said, by a visit to a courtroom. More paper unrolled. Judges tremble at the sight of a blithe young thing as she explains the writ of habeas corpus—all this, he said, too.

"A newspaper clipping I have here," Mr. Edgerton said, "is conclusive proof that woman's power of mortal man cannot be touched on by mortal man."

He read: "Leap year brings increase in marriage licenses at District Court."

Women, too, have opinions.

Mrs. McLean Recites.

Mrs. Mary R. McLean, Justice Department attorney, spoke for the women's association on the effectiveness of men lawyers in rhyme. High lights of her poem included:

Midair Crash Kills District Area Cadet Over Kansas Field

Aviation Cadet William E. Rowland, 23, of 5515 Redford road, Green Acres, Md., was killed today when the basic trainer he was flying collided with another plane over Strother Field, near Winfield, Kansas, the Associated Press reported.

The cadet flying the other ship landed without injury, according to Col. Joseph P. Carroll, commandant of the base.

Cadet Rowland was the son of Mrs. Grace Miller Rowland. His father was the late Guy Edwin Rowland, a special attorney with the Federal Trade Commission until his death 10 years ago.

Cadet Rowland was born in Washington and received most of his education here. He attended Woodrow Wilson High School and George Washington University, where he was studying journalism when he enlisted in the Air Forces last February. He also attended Southeastern University here for a time. While attending George Washington, Cadet Rowland worked for the Justice Department in the Lands Division.

He received his flying training at fields in Texas and Missouri. Four weeks ago he was transferred to Strother Field for special training and would have received his wings in March.

Besides his mother, he is survived by two sisters, Miss Elizabeth Rowland and Mrs. Maurice Joyce Broderick, and a brother, Robert M. Rowland, who recently entered the navy.

The body will be brought to Washington for burial. Arrangements are being handled by Joseph Gawler Sons, funeral directors, 1756 Pennsylvania avenue N.W.

Potomac Yards Worker Killed by Electric Train

Ritchie Leonard German, 20, of R. F. D. No. 2, Alexandria, an employe of Potomac Yards, was killed last night when struck by an electric train in the yards while he was walking along a track.

Mr. German, a yardman, died while en route to the Alexandria Hospital in an ambulance.

Dr. John Sims, city coroner, will hold an inquest soon.

Said they had been unable to get any further information on the accident from Potomac Yards officials. Dr. Sims also went to the yards to get more information, but said he was unable to learn anything more.

Physician Cites Handicaps.

One of the community's physicians, Dr. H. O. Howlett, said he felt that the local doctors were all in favor of a hospital, but warned that shortage of personnel and equipment would present a real handicap.

Taking an active part in the meeting were Ralph Boyd, president of the Allied Civic Group, who urged that plans be started at once, and Lt. Col. E. Brooke Lee, who emphasized that the project should be a community movement. As such, Col. Lee said, the Board of Trustees should be a representative group of both individuals and of delegates from local organizations.

Arlington Fire Losses Total $73,490 in Year

Arlington County Fire Chief A. C. Sheffield yesterday reported 1,087 fires in the county during the last year, with damages of $73,490.

There were 607 ambulance calls, 4 false alarms and a total of 7,568 men responded to fire calls. House fires totaled 256; grass, 648; business, 24; Federal Government properties, 10, and autos, 65.

Government Rests In Embezzlement Trial of Steinberg

Bookkeeper's Attorney To Ask for Dismissal Of Charges Tomorrow

The Government rested its case today in the District Court trial of Albert W. Steinberg, 43, former bookkeeper and office manager of Forman, Inc., wholesale liquor dealer, charged with embezzlement of more than $9,000 of the firm's funds.

Justice Matthew F. McGuire adjourned proceedings until tomorrow morning when Defense Attorney Austin F. Canfield will argue a motion for dismissal of the 71-count indictment against Steinberg.

Assistant United States Attorney Bernard Margolius informed the court that the Government has agreed to a directed verdict on two counts of the indictment.

Shortage Was Rumored.

Under cross-examination, Lt. Comdr. John R. Fitzpatrick, former attorney of Forman, Inc., and the Government's final witness, testified that there were "rumors around town" during 1942 concerning a shortage of the firm's funds prior to Steinberg's arrest. Mr. Fitzpatrick, who joined the Navy six months before Pearl Harbor, said he did not inform officials of the firm, since "it was only a rumor, and I didn't consider it any of my business."

Comdr. Fitzpatrick, in direct testimony yesterday, told the jury that Steinberg during a conversation in a local hotel had admitted that he had embezzled funds from the Forman firm.

The naval officer, who appeared in uniform, insisted his testimony had nothing to do with the military service and asked to be called "Dr." He has a Ph. D. degree, and was former dean of Columbus College, Columbia, S. C., before Steinberg had asked for help, that he had refused and had advised Steinberg to get a criminal lawyer.

Silver Spring Citizens Launch Move to Get Community Hospital

Declaring that a hospital is "a real community necessity" for Silver Spring, 60 representatives of churches, civic and service clubs and the medical profession last night voted to take steps toward establishment of such an institution in the area.

The group, which met in the Silver Spring Dispensary Building, voted to file a certificate of incorporation and signed a charter creating the Silver Spring Hospital Association, Inc. Acting as temporary trustees, they will meet soon to elect officers and permanent bonding companies.

The $10,000 carried in "stocking." The $10,000 was carried by Steinberg in his "stocking" in the form of nine $1,000 bills, and ten $100 bills, the witness testified.

The money was accepted in Cumberland's office and locked up in a safe deposit box where it still remains. Mr. Cumberland continued the two bonding companies between them paid in full the Forman company claim on the money. He added, although one of the bills was only part of their total liability because their contract had been in effect for only one month.

Asked why the $10,000 in bills was not turned over to the bonding company, Mr. Cumberland said his firm was keeping it in trust for whoever it belonged to, Forman—or, he added as an afterthought, "maybe Steinberg."

Guilt Not Discussed.

He insisted the transactions and conferences in his office over the matter were strictly in adjustment of a civil liability, and that the "innocence or guilt" of Steinberg were never discussed. He said Steinberg told him the shortage money was transferred by him from the Forman accounts because he had been promised a share in the firm, bonuses, and pay increases.

Gilbert Smulkin, certified public accountant explained to the jury at length, and through use of a blackboard, how he claimed Steinberg had manipulated the Forman books so as to conceal withdrawal of cash.

Broader Power For City Heads To Be Weighed

Randolph Slates District Committee Meeting Wednesday

Chairman Randolph of the House District Committee today scheduled a meeting of full committee for next Wednesday at 10:30 a. m. to consider action on a number of District bills. Notable among these is the measure of Representative Hebert, Democrat, of Louisiana, to expand the powers of the Commissioners as a means of strengthening municipal government and relieving Congress of a multitude of relatively minor administrative duties.

Other Proposals Wait Action.

Also awaiting action by the full committee are proposals to amend the code to relieve banks of responsibility for cashing of Government or other pay checks fraudulently issued, to authorize the Commissioners to appoint notaries public and to revise methods of issuing permits for removal of the dead.

Meanwhile, Chairman Cannon of the House Appropriations Committee set April 24 as the date for beginning hearings on the pending District budget for the next fiscal year, which calls for an outlay of more than $66,700,000, a record-breaker. According to his plan, the hearings will be concluded by May 13. Representative Coffee, Democrat, of Washington, is chairman of the District appropriations subcommittee.

Police Pay Measure.

Chairman McCarran of the Senate District Committee today offered a measure to continue for one year from June 30, the wartime $300 increase in District police, firemen and teachers. A proviso added that it may be canceled earlier by the President if the war should end before the new expiration date. Other District employees, legislation in that line will increase until June 30, 1945.

The cost of pay increases for all District employes is figured at around $4,000,000, with that for police, firemen and teachers less than half this sum. Current vacancies in ranks further modify these figures.

Silver Spring Store Swept by Flames

Adjoining Buildings Saved by Firemen

Fire today damaged the store stock of C. O. Geracy, 8113 Georgia avenue, Silver Spring, and slightly damaged adjacent buildings housing the real estate office of William Carlin and a Chinese laundry.

Although there was no estimate of the damage, firemen said all of the clothing in the Geracy store was badly damaged by smoke and water or burned. In the laundry, the fire was confined in the rear of the building and there was only slight damage.

The blaze started in the chimney of the Geracy store and was discovered shortly before 7 a. m. by Lee Woo, proprietor of the laundry.

Firemen kept the fire from spreading to other buildings of frame construction. Capt. Andy Snyder of Silver Spring received first-aid treatment for hand burns.

Other fire departments responding were Takoma Park, Chevy Chase and Kensington.

Hearings Start Tomorrow On New Liquor Sale Rules

Hearings will start at 10 a. m. tomorrow on new regulations to tighten the control of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board over the local liquor industry.

Among the proposals expected to produce considerable discussion are the elimination of credit sales between wholesalers and retailers and a regulation requiring retailers to display 4 per cent of their whiskies on their shelves.

The hearings involve nine proposed new regulations and three amendments to present regulations.

PUC Member Charges Lack of Concern For Traffic Accidents

Flanagan Cites Steps Taken by Commission To Improve Situation

Conflict within the Public Utilities Commission broke out again yesterday as Chairman James H. Flanagan and Gregory Hankin, commissioner, disagreed over whether the PUC had shown concern over the number of deaths and injuries in the operations of the Capital Transit Co.

In a memorandum to the PUC, which ordered an investigation yesterday into the accidents and safety measures of the transit company, Mr. Hankin said he made a formal motion in August, 1942, to make an investigation, but that it was "tabled indefinitely."

"Since then nothing has been done by this commission toward the diminution of deaths and injuries resulting from transit operation," said Mr. Hankin's memorandum.

Flanagan Replies.

"To this Mr. Flanagan retorted: 'The memorandum of the minority member which accompanied this order would seem to indicate that the PUC has not concerned itself with the unfortunate situation relating to the injuries and deaths caused through the operation of the transit system. Nothing could be done, however, until the truth about the situation had been ascertained. In the case of every accident a representative of our engineering department promptly inspects the equipment on the vehicle involved. In every case, so far as I know, it has been determined that the equipment was in safe condition. Company officials have discussed this problem with us from time to time and have assured us of continuing instructions issued to operators in an effort to avoid such unfortunate occurrences.'"

The police department and the department of vehicles and traffic have consulted with us on ways and means of averting such accidents, and we have studied the coroner's report in every fatal accident."

"We sat in our meeting several months ago of all interested parties at which time ways and means of improving the situation were discussed at length. It now appears advisable to initiate a more definite approach in order that the public may be fully informed as to the particulars of the various types of accidents which appear most prevalent and to enlist the aid and advice of other interested agencies in making the year 1944 a much safer one from the transit standpoint."

14 Injured in Crash Of Buses During Afternoon Rush Hour

Collision in Northeast Sends Two Persons To Hospital

Fourteen persons were injured yesterday in a rush-hour collision between two Capital Transit buses at Second and F streets N.E. Police scout cars, a patrol wagon and a fire department ambulance were pressed into service to transport the injured to Casualty Hospital, but only two persons were admitted and their injuries were said to be not serious.

Those admitted were Mrs. Rose Salsbury, 1318 Queen street N.E., who received a broken nose and possible concussion, and Lawrence A. Irvin, 43, 1 Anacostia road N.E., driver of one bus, whose ankle was fractured.

The bus operated by Mr. Irvin was headed east, while the other, operated by Herman J. Lazar, 42, of 3535 Dix street N.E., was traveling in the opposite direction. Police said one of the buses swerved to avoid striking a fast-traveling auto that entered the intersection simultaneously.

Both buses were reported filled to capacity at the time, carrying a total of more than 100 passengers.

Others treated at the hospital and discharged were:

Mrs. Marion L. Franter, 56, of Capital Heights, Md., fractured rib; Osborn Fenwick, colored, 54, of 84 I street S.W., bruised hand; Rose R. Eicher, 67, of 1499 Irving street N.W., bruised chest and neck; William Henry, colored, 54, of 232 E street S.W., lacerated eye; Beulah Caldwell, 27, of 1730 Massachusetts avenue S.E., cut legs; Virginia Sinton, colored, 31, of 425 O street N.W., bruised shoulder and hip; Florence E. Also Arlene Stanback, colored, 18, of 208 F street N.E., bruised forehead and Mrs. Martha E. Grist, 35, of 1432 Third street N.E., no apparent injuries.

Arnold Drivers Call Meeting on WLB Pay Ruling

Capital Transit And A, B. & W. Are Refused Increases

The 250 employes of the Arnold-operated Bus Line will meet tomorrow in the Ballston Firehouse to consider the War Labor Board decision yesterday granting them a 7-cent-an-hour wage increase—7 cents less than the union's demand.

Meanwhile, union officials at the Capital Transit Co. and the Arnoldia, Barcroft, & Washington Transportation Co. could not be reached for comment on the WLB's denial of their requests for 5-cent hourly wage increases. Approximately 4,000 workers at the two bus lines are affected.

Declaring that he "doesn't think very much" of the board's decision, O. B. Hiner, president of the Arnold local union, said the matter would be placed before union members at their meeting at 11 a. m. tomorrow.

While Mr. Hiner said he could not predict what action the union would take, he added that the men with whom he talked had indicated they would reject the board's decision.

Some A, B. & W. Men Indignant.

Some of the drivers on the A, B. & W. line were reported to be "indignant" over the board's action and were talking of "tying up the line," one of the older drivers said. "Anything can happen," he asserted, "with the type of drivers we have today. I wouldn't venture a guess as to whether there will be a strike or not—I certainly hope there won't."

He explained that the drivers resented their last meeting instead of adjourning it. This means that they can be called into continuous session at any time. No notice has been received concerning resumption of the meeting, however.

In its decision the WLB also requested the three bus companies to draw up a proposed bonus system as compensation for "abnormal work and as an incentive to meet the present emergency."

Raises Held Not Justified.

In rejecting company-union agreements for 5-cent increases for employes of the Capital Transit Co. and the A. B. & W., the board pointed out that neither the companies nor the unions made any showing that the new schedules were justified under the wage-stabilizing program.

Present wage rates for operating employes of the two firms are 95 cents an hour for Capital Transit Co. workers and 92 cents an hour for A. B. & W. employes. The increase granted employes of the Arnold-operated line will bring their wages up to 88 cents an hour.

The board also explained that on August 7, 1943, it approved vacation and overtime pay provisions of the Capital Transit Co. company-union agreement.

In the A. B. & W. agreement the board approved a provision calling for a reduction in the progression schedule from a two-year period to one year required to reach full rate. The salary schedule for operating employes of the A. B. & W. under the new schedule will be 75 cents an hour for the first six months, 85 cents for the second six months and 92 cents after one year.

Arnold Boost Retroactive.

Although the Arnold-operated line pay increase was approved unanimously by the board, the wage boosts sought by employes of the other two bus lines will be granted by an 8-to-4 vote, with labor members of the board voting for the increase.

In approving the increase for employes of the Arnold bus line, which was made retroactive to May 17, the board explained that its action was taken "to restore the differential between their salaries and those of AB&W employes as they existed in 1940 and to compensate them for an increased work load."

The board also unanimously approved time-and-a-half pay for Arnold workers after nine hours' platform time or after 14 hours' spread time, whichever is greater.

A special vote to arbitrate the wage dispute between Arnold officials and the drivers, after the latter went out on a one-day strike November 19, recommended a 9-cent hourly wage increase. B. J. Shave, labor member of the panel, dissented, recommending a 12-cent increase.

Hospital Appeals for Blood To Aid Burned Woman

An appeal for blood donors for Mrs. Helen Barrows, 55, of 6093 Oxon Hill road, Oxon Hill, Md., who is critically ill at Gallinger Hospital, was made by the hospital last night.

Mrs. Barrows was burned severely last Friday when her clothes ignited as she poured kerosene on a wood stove at her home. She requires the equivalent of three pints of blood daily.

Two other victims of burns remain in serious condition and in need of plasma. They are Ruth McDonald, 7, at Providence Hospital, and Arthur Lunsford, 6, at Gallinger Hospital.

Hospital authorities request that prospective donors call for appointments.

Auto Drivers Warned On Intersection Law

Acting Traffic Director M. O. Eldridge today warned motorists to grant pedestrians the right-of-way at signal-controlled intersections when they are walking on the proper lights.

He said a regulation read that "at intersections where traffic is controlled by traffic control signals or by police officers, drivers of vehicles shall yield the right-of-way to pedestrians crossing or those who have started to cross the roadway on the green or 'Go' signal."

"Police have been instructed to look out for this traffic law infraction," he added.

Sign Charter and Vote To Incorporate; Elect Hayes Temporary Head

Declaring that a hospital is "a real community necessity" for Silver Spring, 60 representatives of churches, civic and service clubs and the medical profession last night voted to take steps toward establishment of such an institution in the area.

The group, which met in the Silver Spring Dispensary Building, voted to file a certificate of incorporation and signed a charter creating the Silver Spring Hospital Association, Inc. Acting as temporary trustees, they will meet soon to elect officers and permanent trustees.

After adopting the certificate of incorporation, which was drawn up and presented by James W. Gill, a member of the Maryland House of Delegates and Silver Spring attorney, the meeting elected Joseph Hayes temporary chairman and resident agent. Mr. Hayes heads the Hospital Committee of the Allied Civic Group of Silver Spring, which conducted a survey on the need for a hospital last year.

Financing of the project, it was decided, will be discussed at the next meeting. A study will be made of the desirability of seeking Lanham Act funds or attempting to have the hospital privately financed.

At last night's session, J. J. Baldwin and D. B. Johannes, Jr., architect, advised the trustees to seek private funds rather than ask for Government financing. Because of technicalities and other problems, the process of obtaining Lanham Act funds is a slow procedure, they declared.

Warner Pumphrey, funeral director, stated he had transported 587 patients to hospitals outside of the community during the last year. This number, he said, included emergency cases which are usually taken care of by the Silver Spring Rescue Squad.

Physician Cites Handicaps.

One of the community's physicians, Dr. H. H. Howlett, said he felt that the local doctors were all in favor of a hospital, but warned that shortage of personnel and equipment would present a real handicap.

Taking an active part in the meeting were Ralph Boyd, president of the Allied Civic Group, who urged that plans be started at once, and Lt. Col. E. Brooke Lee, who emphasized that the project should be a community movement. As such, Col. Lee said, the Board of Directors should be a representative group of both individuals and of delegates from local organizations.

A quota of $45,800 has been assigned to Alexandria as its share in the coming Red Cross War Fund campaign. C. C. Brown, chapter chairman, announced yesterday.

The city's quota last year was $30,300.

Mr. Brown also announced the resignation of Elliott F. Hoffman as War Fund chairman, and the appointment of Glenn Ulmer Richard.

Mr. Richard is a commissioner of the Alexandria Housing Authority, a member of the Alexandria War Finance Committee, the Kiwanis Club and numerous other civic and charitable groups.

Mr. Hoffman has expressed regret that the press of business has necessitated his resignation.

Mr. Richard, Mrs. Albert Miller, executive secretary of the Alexandria chapter; Mr. Brown and Mrs. Joseph Kavanaugh, public relations chairman, will represent the chapter at a Red Cross War Fund regional conference in Richmond tomorrow.

The meeting is being held under the direction of the Eastern Area Red Cross. All aspects of the coming campaign will be covered.

Fairfax Ration Board Stresses Car-Sharing

Fairfax County motorists who apply for supplementary gasoline ration books in the future must show they are hauling passengers or give sufficient reason why they are not, before additional coupons will be issued, the gasoline panel of the county ration board has announced.

Members of the panel conducting a survey south of Alexandria on the Richmond-Washington Highway and the Mount Vernon Memorial Highway, found that the majority of motorists traveling toward Alexandria and Washington carried no riders.

Books will be issued only to motorists who carry a minimum of three passengers in five-passenger cars, and two passengers in coupes.

Applicants who have no regular riders are required by the board to pick up passengers by the Mount Vernon Memorial Highway. If they refuse to comply with the request, they will be asked to surrender their supplementary ration coupons.

Judges Raedy, McGuire, Quinn 'Get Out of the Jam They're In' Rule Debate on 'Do Women Make Better Lawyers Than Men' Is a Draw

Special feature of the debate, "Do Women Make Better Lawyers Than Men?" was exhibit A—16 feet of adding machine tape extolling the feminine virtues—produced by Justin L. Edgerton last night before 200 members and guests of the Women's Bar Association at the Statler Hotel.

Mr. Edgerton, who has charge of the moot court at George Washington University, was speaker for male members of the District Bar Association. He began his argument to prove man's inability to compete with feminine barristers by unrolling his evidence—the list of women's qualifications he had written on the ticker tape.

Offers Card Comparison.

"Man's abilities fill only a small card," he said, "by comparison," and pushed aside a library card bearing masculine counseling advantages. "But here we have it."

And the roll of paper began tumbling to the floor.

His statements of woman's charm, persuasiveness and persistence may be amplified more aptly, he said, by a visit to a courtroom. More paper unfolded. Judges tremble at the sight of a blithe young thing as she explains the writ of habeas corpus—all this, he said, too.

"A newspaper clipping I have here," Mr. Edgerton said, "is conclusive proof that woman's power of persuasion cannot be touched on by mortal man."

He read: "Leap year brings increase in marriage licenses at District Court."

Women, too, have opinions.

Mrs. McLean Replies.

Mrs. Mary R. McLean, Justice Department attorney, spoke for the women's association on the effectiveness of men lawyers in rhyme. High lights of her poem included:

"In support of a point a woman plays touch-and-go. The poor male opponent with a logical mind Finds himself like the eight ball—way, way behind!

Not to be outdone by the foe's remarks about the wiles of women in court, she said:

"When he's working in court, the male of the species Acts in a manner rivalling suave Don Ameche's."

James R. Kirkland, also forced to speak in woman's behalf, explained that the authoritative nature of the fair sex was depicted to him as he sat, "like all Washington men" on the streetcar. "There was a woman standing over me—holding a strap."

Foresees Feelings.

Miss Charlotte Slavitt, who also is an attorney for the Justice Department, completely forsook personal feelings and stated her female cohorts "could be nicely done with out. They are unnecessary and a calamity."

Miss Slavitt, wearing a red off-the-face hat in the devastating manner described earlier by Mr. Edgerton, said her sex lacked the three necessary powers—those of transmutation (a poor woman just can't put herself on the other side, she said), analytical capacity (We can do our own thing but we hardly know how to use it), and human nature. Men far surpass us, she added, hoping to win the judges' decision for her teammates.

The judges, Municipal Justices Ellen K. Raedy and Thomas D. Quinn and District Court Justice Michael P. McGuire, calling themselves "The Court of Last Resort," delivered a per curiam opinion—or in layman's language—a draw.

Justice McGuire reading in verse concluded with:

Respectfully—Raedy, McGuire and Quinn.

Montgomery High School Plans Play Program

Montgomery Hills Junior High School, in co-operation with the Park and Planning Commission, is formulating plans for a recreational program to provide facilities for students to pursue hobbies and take part in organized sports after school hours.

As part of its physical fitness program, the school has organized a bowling league, riding club and a basketball team. Lack of a gymnasium is a handicap to the program, school officials said.

The school is also continuing its plans to aid the war effort. In the last several months the students went over the goal of $11,650 and purchased $4,245.44 worth of bonds and stamps.

South Pays Tribute To Lee and Jackson

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 19.—The South today honored the memory of two of its heroes of another conflict, Gen. Robert E. Lee and "Stonewall" Jackson, but took little time from its war work.

Aside from a holiday for State employees in some States, it was "business as usual" as Southerners paid tribute to the Civil War leaders. In Alabama, even the customary "Bank Holiday" was suspended to aid the sale of War Bonds.

Virginia, where Gen. Lee was born, observed his birthday with formal programs at Norfolk and Richmond. The Carolinas had no celebration.

The day was set aside as a legal holiday in Florida and in Georgia. Tennessee gave a holiday for State employees.

Loudoun County Votes Bond Issue of $107,000

Special Dispatch to The Star.

LEESBURG, Va., Jan. 19.—With less than one-fifth of the usual number of Loudoun County voters out in a special election yesterday the school refunding bond issue was carried by a 4-to-1 majority. A few small precincts have not yet reported.

The unofficial vote is 405 for the issue and 121 against.

The question put before the voters was whether the county should issue $107,000 general obligation school refunding bonds dated March 1, 1944, and bearing interest not to exceed 2 per cent. The bonds were to pay off a State literary fund loan of $107,940, which bears 3 per cent interest. It is estimated that approximately $16,000 will be saved by the county over a period of 20 years by the refunding bonds.

Teacher Pay Battle Due to Begin Tonight At Assembly Hearing

Lancaster to Testify On Fund Needs; Fenwick Gets Leave of Absence

By The Associated Press.

RICHMOND, Jan. 19.—Preliminary skirmishing on the question of increased State aid for teacher pay—promising a major legislative battle of the New Virginia General Assembly session—is expected to come tonight at a joint meeting arranged by the Senate Finance and the House Appropriation Committees to hear requests for money.

Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster, State superintendent of public instruction, said he plans to appear at the committee hearing to "present the facts" on the program deemed essential by the State Board of Education to meet minimum needs.

The $300 Minimum Sought.

The State board and Lancaster have advocated a minimum of $1,200 per teacher unit in State aid as opposed to Gov. Darden's recommendation for an increase from the basic $720 to $840 for the first year of the biennium and to $960 the second year.

Meanwhile, the two Houses are for the most part marking time until committees have opportunity of working on legislative material. The House Roads Committee will meet tomorrow morning and will probably give consideration to the controversial bill providing for a reduction in license fees for automobiles not used for hire to a flat $5 rate.

This measure was offered yesterday in the House by Delegates I. N. Coleman, Dinwiddie, C. M. Waldrop, Amelia, and C. Smith, Buchanan.

Speaker Stanley B. Stanney named Willis E. Cohoon, Delegate from Suffolk, to the powerful House Rules Committee to succeed Maj. Charles R. Fenwick, Arlington, who was given a leave of absence for Dayton, Ohio, where he is stationed.

Action toward providing voting machinery for men and women in service was taken by the two Houses in the adoption of a resolution to form a committee to study Federal legislation and to co-ordinate efforts of the Federal and State governments.

The chairmen of the Senate and House Privileges and Elections Committees were directed to name four men each, including themselves, to this committee.

Physicians and naturopaths would be required to obtain licenses by examination under the State Board of Medical Examiners, but would have representation on the board under provisions of a bill offered in the House. They are not now registered.

A proper amendment to the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act would allow the State Liquor Board, with the approval of the Governor, to purchase stock in liquor concerns when such stocks carry the right of alcoholic beverages.

The bill provides that the stock so obtained would not be kept by the State as an investment but would be used as soon as possible without undue loss. In recent liquor transactions by spirits figured in the stock sales.

Women would be made eligible for jury service under a bill offered by Senator Edward L. Breeden, Jr. The Senator said that such a measure was appropriate at this time because of the manpower shortage.

Prince Georges Warns Alexandrians About Bowling Alleys About Child Labor Violations For Charter Change

Operators of bowling alleys in Prince Georges County today were on notice that they may be brought into court if they employ youths under 16 years of age as pin boys.

The warning was issued by the county commissioners at their meeting yesterday in Upper Marlboro in response to complaints by G. G. Shugart, county superintendent of schools.

Declaring that many bowling alleys employ minor children between the ages of 11 and 14 and keeping them at work until 10 or 11 a.m., Mr. Shugart pointed out that this practice affects the pupils' school work. He explained that under State law boys under 16 are not permitted to work in bowling alleys.

School Protests Ignored.

"Although this has been going on for at least three years," he asserted, "complaints by school authorities have been ineffective. In addition, State labor inspectors have not visited the county often enough to stop the practice."

The board instructed Police Chief Ralph W. Brown to warn the operators to discontinue employment of children and to arrest violators.

A delegation from Mountingale's bowling alley, which is the only one in the subdivision was not performing the work correctly. Members of the group contended that drainage facilities are inadequate, and that the flooding of their property during heavy rain.

Work Still Incomplete.

A. G. Phillips, who originally was appointed by the residents as engineer, maintained, however, that the work was not complete and that he was following specifications contained in a contract with P. T. McDermott, who is building the road.

The commissioners suggested that the group withhold any further action pending completion of the work. They said that when the roads are completed the residents will appoint another engineer to check the work to determine whether it was done in accordance with specifications.

Trial Magistrate Alan Bowle reported a total of $2,760.45 in fines and costs received during December, of which $1,375.50 goes to the county.

Rosenberg Says Move For Shift Was Made 'By Courthouse Crowd'

Maurice N. Rosenberg, former Alexandria Delegate to the State Legislature, expressed his opposition to a referendum on the present form of city government at a meeting last night in the Potomac Community Hall, sponsored by the Sixth Ward Citizens' Association.

Mr. Rosenberg refused to state whether he favored a charter change, but said he felt the petition for an enabling act to permit a referendum had been rushed through by a "palace and courthouse crowd" and whose basic reason for wanting a change is that they dislike the incumbent councilmen.

He said he believed the voters should have more time to discuss various forms of government before being asked to vote at a referendum, and that no change should be made while so many of the city's voters are in the armed forces.

Cites Previous Move.

He disclosed that he had been approached in 1940 by the same group who now are pushing for a referendum, but that there was not sufficient support for the request to justify his action.

Paul Delaney, second ward Councilman, also spoke against the proposal, but said the argument of its proponents that the fifth and sixth wards are disproportionately large is now being considered by the City Council with a view to redistribution of the wards in accordance with legislation effective in 1944.

Mr. Delaney said that he favored the creation of a seventh ward, with four instead of three Councilmen at large, in order to permit a deciding vote.

Attorneys Nicholas Colasanto and Marion West also spoke against the proposed change.

Union Backs Council.

The Central Labor Union also has gone on record as favoring the present form of government.

The opposing view was expressed by Architect Newman Raymond, who claimed that the right of petition is one of the primary rights of the American people and that the need for redistribution of wards is an indication that the ward system is not the best form of government.

He charged that the purpose of the meeting was simply to hinder citizens from filing a petition. Mr. Raymond maintained that the ward system breeds sectionalism and does not carry out local self-government.

Arnold Bus Drivers To Meet Tomorrow On WLB Pay Ruling

A, B. & W. and Capital Transit Are Denied 5-Cent Wage Increases

The 250 employees of the Arnold-operated Bus Line will meet tomorrow in the Ballston Firehouse to consider the War Labor Board decision yesterday granting them a 7-cent-an-hour wage increase—7 cents less than the union's demand.

Meanwhile, union officials at the Capital Transit Co. and the Alexandria, Barcroft & Washington Transportation Co. could not be reached for comment on the WLB's denial of their requests for 5-cent hourly wage increases. Approximately 4,000 workers at the two bus lines are affected.

Declaring that he "doesn't think very much" of the board's decision, O. B. Hiner, president of the Arnold local union, said the matter would be placed before union members at their meeting at 11 a.m. tomorrow.

While Mr. Hiner said he could not predict what action the union would take, he added that the men with whom he talked had indicated they would reject the board's decision.

Some A. B. & W. Men Indignant.

Some of the drivers on the A. B. & W. line were reported to be "indignant" over the board's action and were talking of "tying up the line" one of the older drivers said.

"Anything can happen," he asserted, "with the type of drivers we have today. I wouldn't venture a guess as to whether there will be a strike or not—certainly hope there won't be one."

He explained that the drivers resented their last meeting instead of adjourning it. This means that they can be called into continuous session at any time. No notice has been given concerning resumption of the meeting, however.

In its decision the WLB also requested the three bus companies to draw up a proposed bonus system as compensation for "abnormal work" and as an incentive to meet the present emergency.

Raises Held Not Justified.

In rejecting company-union agreements for 5-cent increases for employees of the Capital Transit Co. and the A. B. & W., the board pointed out that neither the companies nor the unions made any showing that the increases were justified under the present stabilizing program.

Present wage rates for operating employees of the two firms are 85 cents an hour for Capital Transit Co. workers and 92 cents an hour for A. B. & W. employees. The increase granted employees of the Arnold-operated line will bring their wages up to 85 cents an hour.

The board also explained that on August 7, 1943, approved vacation and overtime pay provisions of the Capital Transit Co. company-union agreement.

In the A. B. & W. agreement the board approved a provision calling for a reduction in the progression schedule from a two-year period to one year, required to reach full rate. The salary schedule for operating employees of the A. B. & W. under the new schedule will be 78 cents an hour for the first six months, 85 for the second six months and 92 cents after one year.

Arnold Boost Retroactive.

Although the Arnold-operated line pay increase was approved unanimously by the board, the wage boosts sought by employees of the other two bus lines were denied by an 8-to-4 vote with labor members of the board voting for the increase.

In approving the increase for employees of the Arnold bus line, which was made retroactive to May 17, the board explained that its action was taken "to restore the differential between their salaries and those of A. B. & W. employees as existed in 1940 and to compensate them for an increased work load."

The board also unanimously approved time-and-a-half pay for Arnold workers after nine hours' platform time or after 14 hours' spread time, whichever is greater.

A special WLB panel, which had been appointed to arbitrate the wage dispute between local officials and the drivers, after the latter went on a one-day strike November 19, recommended a 9-cent hourly wage increase. B. J. Shave, labor member of the panel, dissented, recommending a 12-cent increase.

Silver Spring Store Swept by Flames

Fire today damaged the store stock of C. O. Geracy, 8113 Georgia avenue, Silver Spring, and slightly damaged adjacent buildings housing the real estate office of William Carlin and a Chinese laundry.

Although there was no estimate of the damage, firemen said all of the clothing in the Geracy store was either badly damaged by smoke and water or burned. In the laundry the fire was confined in the rear of the building and there was only slight damage.

The blaze started in the chimney of the Geracy store and was discovered shortly before 7 a. m. by Lee Cosgro, proprietor of the laundry.

Firemen kept the primary fire from spreading to other buildings of frame construction. Capt. Andy Snyder of Silver Spring received first-aid treatment for hand cuts.

Other fire departments responding were Takoma Park, Chevy Chase and Kensington.

Plea for Air Independence Seen Behind Leaders' Talks

By ALEXANDER P. DE SEVERSKY.

Two of the high-ranking airmen in the Allied air effort in the European theater, Air Marshal Sir Richard H. Peck and Gen. Carl Spaatz, last week submitted to a trans-Atlantic radio interview, staged by the National Press Club of Washington. They made some important comment on the air war against Germany.

Outwardly these leaders were answering routine questions about the air phase of the European war. But "between the lines" of their answers, those familiar with the air power thesis could discern ideas not explicit in the text itself. If the writer, for instance, were to sum up the meaning of what Air Marshal Peck and Gen. Spaatz had to say it would be about as follows:

Air power has never had a real chance in Europe. It was wrongly conceived from the outset, in that it was amassed primarily as an aid to surface forces, so that the available strategic aviation has been limited in relation to the job it had to do. Moreover, the available air power was dispersed for a variety of secondary tasks irrelevant to its strategic use and therefore never had a chance for concerted action on an adequate scale. We believe that air power by direct action can win a war, the British and American aviation generals said in effect, but Europe can never be a proof because we have already involved the other forces.

Peck's Reply Cited.

Air Marshal Peck came nearest to stating this proposition when he was asked whether "air power alone will knock Germany out of the war." To this he replied, in part:

"I think that whatever form victory takes, it will not have been won by air warfare alone because air warfare has not been employed alone. . . . We've got to remember that the strategy of the United Nations has been a combined all-service strategy, and that we did not set out to win by air warfare alone. Whether air warfare alone could have won is one of the might-have-beens which will forever remain a matter of opinion.

Gen. Spaatz indirectly supported this view that true strategic warfare has not yet been attempted. "Air power," he declared "has proved itself to be the most decisive weapon in this war," but he added pointedly: "A single cannon cannot win a battle and a few airplanes are not air power. Air power is air superiority."

That achievement of air superiority was delayed by diversion of our air effort elsewhere was supported by the tone of replies which Gen. Spaatz said: "I want to emphasize that the outstanding success of the anti-submarine campaign by all methods of attack has lessened the urgency of further air attack on sub bases." It is such diversion as the annihilation of submarine bases—or, to cite another case, the destruction of German plants producing tanks, trucks and other equipment for the eastern land fronts in order to aid Russia—which detracted our strategic air power from its main job: the elimination of the German Luftwaffe.

Confusion Feared.

Like all airmen, Air Marshal Peck and Gen. Spaatz apparently fear that the European experience may confuse public opinion on the matter of air power; that air power might be blamed for having failed to do a job which it was never permitted or properly equipped to do. Why is it important that this picture be seen in proper perspective? For good or ill, the European strategy is fixed, so why cry over spilt milk? The answer is that after Hitler is licked we still have another war to fight—the war in the Pacific. The European events must be fully understood in order that its lessons can be applied to the Far Eastern theatre of operations. Thousands of Allied lives can be saved, airmen believe, if the Pacific strategy could be made genuine air strategy, under the leadership of airmen.

Unlike Europe, the Pacific is not yet hopelessly committed to a mile-by-mile or island-by-island procedure. There is still time to cut down on barges and build more long-range, hard-hitting aircraft for achieving the air superiority over Japan proper, which Peck and Spaatz are talking about—to strike directly at the heart of the enemy without the necessity of spilling blood for intermediary bases. Citizenship for Filipinos Proposed in Randolph Bill

A bill which would grant American citizenship to an estimated 125,000 Filipinos who entered the United States prior to May 1, 1934, was introduced in the House yesterday by Representative Randolph, Democrat, of West Virginia.

Mr. Randolph, who offered the bill at the request of Dr. Diosdado M. Yap, editor and publisher of the magazine Bataan, said the Filipinos have proved their right to become citizens at Bataan and Corregidor by joining the armed forces of the United States.

Dr. Yap explained that under present statutes the Filipino in this country is considered as an American citizen for the purposes of wartime employment but that under the Tydings Act of May 1, 1934, he is considered as an alien so far as the immigration quota is concerned. The Randolph bill is intended to clarify this anomalous situation and to settle legal, racial and marital status questions of resident Filipinos, he said.

OPA Asks Sales Injunction Against Hardware Firm

Charging J. F. Meenehan's Sons Co., local hardware dealers, with selling iron cords, ash cans and other articles above ceiling price and with failure to keep required records, the OPA yesterday asked District Court for an injunction to prevent the firm from doing business until it ceased alleged violation of and complied with the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942. The firm operates two stores, at 2010 Fourteenth street N.W. and 3241 M street N.W.

The defendants were listed as John F. Meenehan, Jr.; Frank Meenehan and Vincent J. Meehehan, trading as J. F. Meenehan's Sons Co. The suit was filed by John L. Laskey, District enforcement attorney; Carl W. Beruety and J. Graham Walker, assistant enforcement attorneys, OPA.

Pointing to an affidavit filed with the complaint by Alice L. Garrison, an OPA investigator, the motion declares that "to allow these violations to continue will cause additional overpricing and immediate and irreparable injury to the purchasers of said services and to the ultimate consumers, contributing to the causing of an inflationary spiral, economic instability and harm to the national war effort."

Capital Hostesses Are Busy With Numerous Luncheons

Mme. Grouitch, widow of the former Minister from the Kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes, is back in Washington for a visit among her many friends in this Capital. The late Dr. Slavko Grouitch, who was Minister to the Court of St. James's when he died in 1937, came to Washington in February, 1919, and presented his credentials as the first Minister from the kingdom which had been proclaimed and had become effective December 1, 1918. Dr. Grouitch was here until the late summer of 1922, when he returned to Belgrade before going to his new post in London. About this time the country's name was changed to Yugoslavia.

Mme. Grouitch has been back each year or so for visits and thus she has kept in close touch with the many friends whom she made while she was hostess at the Legation. As always, her arrival is the signal for a series of small and informal luncheons and dinners, so that all of her friends may have a chance to see her and pay her honor.

Speaker Describes Nazi Brutality to Jewish Children

Not one Austrian Jewish child is believed alive today in Europe, according to Mrs. Walskill H. Sharp of Boston, who came from her home to address the annual Youth Aliyah rally of the Washington Chapter of Hadassah yesterday at the Jewish Community Center.

Mrs. Sharp, who was a social worker in Czechoslovakia at the time of the Nazi occupation, told how her sympathy for the Jewish people was aroused after witnessing the brutality of the Nazis.

"Nazi boys in Prague would report daily at headquarters how many Jews they had killed just as our Boy Scouts strive to record a good deed a day," she declared.

Mrs. Sharp said that of the 100,000 Jewish children still alive in North Africa and the Balkan countries approximately 25,000 of them could be saved from concentration camps and sent to Palestine if the money were available. About 29,000 visas could be obtained immediately for admission of Jewish children to Palestine, she said, and with sufficient funds it might be possible to save the remainder of the Jewish children in Europe who are still in concentration camps in Bulgaria. The fate of Jewish children in Europe was illustrated by the speaker, who said that of 5,000 children transported from Germany to Northern France with the hope of eventually finding homes for them in this country, only 88 ever reached the United States.

Mrs. Sharp said she was convinced that Palestine is the practical future home of European Jews.

The speaker said the New England Inter-Faith Committee, of which she is a member, had raised more than $7,000 for the rescue of Jewish children to be sent to Palestine with the assistance of Youth Aliyah.

Mrs. Edward Cafritz, chairman of Youth Aliyah of the Washington Hadassah, gave a brief account of what the organization has done for the Jewish children of Europe.

Mrs. Sharp, who is the wife of a Unitarian minister, was introduced by Mrs. Aaron Shalowitz, president of Washington Hadassah. Guests attending the meeting included Mrs. Felix Frankfurter, wife of the associate justice of the Supreme Court, and Mrs. Arthur Watkins, president of the District Federation of Women's Clubs.

Hawaii's War Role Described at Club

Radical changes have taken place in the Hawaiian Islands since the attack on Pearl Harbor, converting the tourist resort into a serious-minded city feverishly engaged in war activities shared equally by the population, according to Mrs. S. Harrington Littell, wife of the former Bishop of Hawaii.

Speaking informally before members of the Washington Club yesterday, Mrs. Littell said that civil institutions, such as museums and universities, are functioning now as departments of the military. Thousands of defense workers live where they can find accommodations, she said.

Domestic servants have joined the ranks of the defense workers, she added, and owners of homes are doing their own dusting and cleaning, as well as entertaining wounded servicemen.

The speaker said barracks have been built in the parks and sugar and pineapple crops are being used in the war effort. Abolition of regulations requiring persons to carry the use of defense workers live where they can find accommodations, she said.

The speaker said Hawaiian girl lei makers are now employed at camouflage work.

She said loyal Japanese Americans are permitted to work on war contracts without racial discrimination.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Cloyd Heck Marvin, club president, who presided.

Citizens' Association 20th Anniversary Dedicated to Star

Expressing belief that the District of Columbia was gaining in its struggle for national representation, Jesse Star, writer of civic affairs for The Star, last night spoke to members of the Dahlgren Terrace Citizens' Association on the occasion of the 20th anniversary of the founding of the organization.

The meeting was dedicated to The Star for its long-time "reliability" and extensive coverage of civic affairs.

Mr. Suter, explaining why he believed national representation for the District was closer at hand, declared the struggle had been aided by the "question of giving soldiers overseas the chance to cast a ballot in the coming election."

Briefing the story of The Star's policy of the championship of civic organizations, Mr. Suter read the "Prospect" published in the first issue of the paper December 16, 1882, which stated that the publication would be devoted specifically to "local interests" of the city.

"The Star," he declared, "has continued through 61 years to cleave close to the lines laid down in the original prospectus."
Present at the meeting were several charter members and former presidents of the group, including the first president, Dr. Lewis Radcliffe, who urged members to fight against the proposed building of several dams to raise the water level of the Potomac River.

"They claim that the dams would provide greater power and flood control," he declared, "but the two just don't go together." The District, he continued, has one of the lowest power rates in the country so there is no need for greater power.

Suggests Moves for Groups.
Andrew F. E. Scheer, lauded as one of the organization's most active presidents, told the group that an "association dies because it doesn't have work to do." He suggested as possible campaigns for the organization in the coming year the abolishment of the tire and car inspection because it "wastes precious gas" and "there aren't enough cars on the road anyway"; no more taxes for parks because the District is already "park poor"; the establishment of a District sales tax and the organization of District liquor stores with restricted sale.

Mrs. Margaret Nowell of the Women's Page of The Star, also a guest speaker at the meeting, explained the workings of the page and urged members not to hesitate to use their service to answer any question of home management they might have.

William H. Lauers, president of the association, presided at the meeting which was held at the Crosby S. Noyes School, named in honor of the former editor of The Star. He proposed that the association plan for its program in the coming year the establishment of a recreation center in the vacant lot across the street from the school and the building of a gymnasium or assembly hall under the present school structure.

"All that would have to be done," he explained, "would be to dig the dirt out underneath and put in concrete walls and floor."

Citizens Group Bows To Housing Decision In Congress Heights

Organized spokesmen of the Congress Heights Citizens Association last night bowed to the decision of the Zoning Commission in rejecting their petition to block multi-family housing in their area—but still insisted "we do not approve of the decision and feel we have been treated unfairly."

The special meeting, called to consider Monday's action of the zoning group, heard an accusation that Mrs. Roosevelt had tried to inject a racial issue in the zoning controversy, and a remark was made later that "you can't butt your head against 1600 Pennsylvania avenue N.W." Mrs. Roosevelt mentioned the zoning problem in a syndicated column earlier this month, and made another reference to zoning at her press conference the first of the week.

Gelbman Outlines Fight.

J. Louis Gelbman, president of the association, outlined to the group the fight that had been made before the commission week before last and read to the committee the report of the Zoning Advisory Council, which voted two to one against the petition of Congress Heights and recommended to the commission that the rezoning be denied.

Mr. Gelbman said that the "issues had become clouded," but he did not elaborate. In discussing the presentation of their case before the commission, Mr. Gelbman said: "We left nothing undone to plead our case, to cite the facts and to bring our witnesses."

Mr. Gelbman informed the group that they had the alternative of accepting the decision or carrying the case to District Court with costs ranging from $1,500 to $2,500, depending upon whether they won or lost. He said he had been advised by several attorneys that it would "be about useless" to take the case to court, although they de-

Says Petition "Sabotaged."
The president told the group that in 1936 the zoning office itself thought the area ought to be rezoned and that the matter had been suggested to the association. He charged, however, that certain persons within the association had "sabotaged" the petition for rezoning at that time and that an unsuccessful attempt had been made to defeat the petition this time.

The motion to accept the decision of the zoning commission under protest was made by J. M. McCauley. The action of the committees will be submitted to the meeting of the association and Mr. Gelbman predicted it would be ratified if necessary.

The group, which included the Executive and Strategy Committees, met in the basement of the Congress Heights School.

Appeals Court Sets Invention Principle

Denying to Louis M. Potts and the Teletype Corp. claims for patents on the communication system servicing automatic stock quotation boards, the United States Court of Appeals yesterday laid down the principle that "neither the result of great industry in experimental research nor the successful product of a gradual process of experimentation over a period is invention."

"Routinizing, even by the most highly trained specialists," the court added, "step by step improvements, the carrying forward of a new and more extended application of the art, are not invention."

The court's opinion was written by Thurman Arnold, former head of the Justice Department's Anti-Trust Division, and Justin Miller, associate justices, and was concurred in by Associate Justice Henry W. Edgerton. It upheld the decision of District Court and of the United States Patent Office in denying the claims. The rejected claims at issue, explained the decision, "attempt to cover a communications system which uses single-impulse signals to display letters and figures on the board."

The decision dwelt at length on the far-reaching influence of research by big corporations, and declared: "To give patents for such routine experimentation on a vast scale is to use the patent law to reward capital investment and create monopolies for corporate organizers instead of men of inventive genius."

Explaining that the Teletype Corp. is a "wholly owned subsidiary" of Western Electric, the decision pointed out that Western Electric, in turn, is a manufacturing subsidiary owned and controlled by the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. Mr. Potts, the appellant, has been a member of the research staff of a subsidiary of the Bell System since 1920.

President Hints Halsey And Kenney Work Air Squeeze on Japs

By the Associated Press.
President Roosevelt tossed out a hint yesterday that Admiral William F. Halsey's carrier planes and Lt. Gen. George C. Kenney's land-based bombers may have worked out a new two-way air squeeze play against the Japanese in the Pacific.

Mr. Roosevelt volunteered to his news conference that he had conferred with Admiral Halsey and Gen. Kenney, and with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower here recently. The idea, he said, was to obtain co-ordination so as to bring the greatest possible pressure to bear against the enemy both in Europe and in Asia.

Admiral Halsey and Gen. Kenney are the air chiefs of the South Pacific war, the admiral as commander of the fleet in that area, the general as chief of air forces under Gen. Douglas MacArthur. They have functioned as a team while the group troops advance the "bomber line" with recaptured territory.

There was immediate speculation as to whether the President's reference to co-ordination meant that Admiral Halsey's carriers and Gen. Kenney's big bombers now are poised for a sharp slash to soften another Japanese stronghold for invasion troops.

The Jap-held Marshall Islands have been getting the major share of attention from American air offensive forces. The stepped-up bombings have held a day-to-day prospect of news that the amphibious forces are heading that way.

Military Unity Urged On French Assembly

ALGIERS, Jan. 19.—The French Consultative Assembly began a review of the military policy of the French Committee of National Liberation yesterday and heard repeated demands for a clearer unification of French armed forces under a single leader.

There is still too much talk of the Giraud army and the De Gaulle army," declared Francois Billoux, Communist member.

He said a single command over all army, navy and air forces should be established under the direction of a single commissariat of national defense.

"The union within the army will thus succeed the union within the nation," he said, "and all France would fight to receive us with pride." The discussion continued today, with Defense Commissioner Andre Letroquer and Naval Commissioner Louis Jacquinot scheduled to reply.

Gen. Charles de Gaulle also may answer for the committee. The assembly applauded messages from President Roosevelt and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek. The President, replying to a message from the assembly, expressed confidence that 1944 would bring victory to the Allies in Europe and liberation of occupied nations.

President Joshes Reporters Over Danger of Flu

By the Associated Press.
President Roosevelt held his first news conference of 1944 yesterday and, after wishing reporters belatedly a happy New Year, he joshed about an attack of influenza from which he still is recovering.

He assured reporters he was no longer contagious and said his physician hoped that they were not. The Chief Executive appeared somewhat thinner — he has lost about 10 pounds—but his color was good and he was in a jovial frame of mind.

Stark Back in London

LONDON, Jan. 19 (AP).—Admiral Harold R. Stark, commander of American naval forces in Europe, has returned to London after a month's visit to the United States, where he conferred with President Roosevelt, Admiral Ernest J. King, chief of naval operations, and other high officials.

Office of Censorship Warns of Gossip on Invasion Plans

By the Associated Press.
Emphasizing the need for doing everything helpful to "the fortunes of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's invading army," the Office of Censorship today called for "a complete moratorium on backstairs gossip and hairline authenticity" in connection with the coming assault on fortress Europe.

Byron Price, censorship director, issued this note to newspaper editors and radio broadcasters:

"The coming invasion of Europe confronts voluntary censorship with its greatest single responsibility. There is no way to conceal from the enemy that an invasion is in prospect, or that the British Isles will be used as a base. What we must protect at all hazards is information of the time and place of attack, the strength of the attacking force, and its technical makeup and equipment.

Could Help Enemy.
"This is not a field for the customary competitive newsgathering. No American newspaperman or broadcaster will want the distinction of being first to disclose where, when and how our troops will strike.

But no one should forget for a moment that inadvertent disclosures are exactly as valuable to the enemy as deliberate disclosures.

"In every reference to the coming operations you are earnestly requested to keep in mind the code provisions against publication or broadcast, without appropriate authority, of:

1. Secret war plans;
2. Movement of ships and troops (including movements or shifts of high officers and personnel known for specialized activities);
3. Allied or enemy secret weapons and equipment and countermeasures of defense. Weapons and defense measures of the enemy are included because it would be to his advantage to know how good our intelligence is.

"4. International negotiations which concern military operations.

Extra Caution Requested.
"Special precautions are necessary regarding information from abroad which bears on the invasion and involves any of the subjects listed above. No such information should be published or broadcast in this country if the enemy would be informed thereby. Information in the listed categories coming direct from a neutral or Allied country, but which might not be generally available in that country, should be submitted to the Office of Censorship before use. This restriction does not apply to material from enemy countries; material originating in the British Isles and cleared by British censorship; material cleared by

Allied military censorship overseas, or material which already has been published, sent by radio, or otherwise generally disseminated in any area abroad. The test should be, "Does the enemy know this?"

"All speculation about the invasion should be kept strictly within the limits laid down in the codes and no device of speculation or prediction used to disclose restricted information. Bear in mind that it is always hazardous, in connection with future operations, to mention dates, even by month or season, or to point out the likelihood or desirability of a landing in one country or on one particular section of the coast, or to forecast how many troops or units will be employed.

"Opinion on these subjects should be labeled as opinion and no attempt to set forth actual expectations of the high command should be made (except in case of formal official announcements) without prior reference to this office.

"The appropriate authority for any disclosure within the restricted list must be of absolutely unquestioned standing if security is to be protected. We need urgently a complete moratorium on backstairs gossip and hairline authenticity regarding this critical battle. In case of the slightest doubt, consult the Office of Censorship. Let us have no black market in information so dangerous to American life.

"Recently the codes have been relaxed in several respects but in no respect which touches the fortunes of Gen. Eisenhower's invading army. Please take no chances."

Navy Cross Awarded Officer Who Scared Japs With Fire Hose

By the Associated Press.
ADVANCE GUARD SOUTH PACIFIC BASE, Jan. 8 (Delayed) — Comdr. Wilhelm K. Busck, 40, who frightened off two Japanese bombers by pointing a fire hose at them, was awarded the Navy Cross today for heroism during the Vella Lavella campaign.

Comdr. Busck, Jacksonville, Fla., and Washington, D. C., was commanding a flotilla of eight LSTs (landing ships, tanks) which were attacked by 30 dive bombers as they were unloading. One LST was hit and its cargo of gasoline and ammunition set afire. Comdr. Busck brought his flagship alongside, boarded the burning vessel whose crew had gone ashore. With his men they nearly had the fire under control when three dive bombers returned to the attack. Comdr. Busck was atop the deckhouse, playing a hose on the diving flames. He turned the stream of water toward the dive bombers and the first two planes veered off. "Guess they thought I had a secret weapon," Comdr. Busck said, "but unfortunately I didn't fool the third Nip who scored the hit that destroyed the ship beyond any possibility of salvage. The bomb exploded below decks and Comdr. Busck was unhurt."

Comdr. Busck is the son of August Busck, Agriculture Department entomologist, 217 Rock Creek Church road N.W. Born in Washington, he attended McKinley Technical High School and was graduated from Annapolis in 1926. Comdr. Busck, who has been in the South Pacific more than two years, makes his home in Jacksonville with his wife and son, Alphonso August, 12.

A sister, Gerda, is an Army nurse.

Boy Taken to Hospital After Sled Hits Auto; 2 Companions Unhurt

A sledding accident sent another youth to the hospital last night, while two friends, riding on the same coaster with the victim, escaped injury.

Edward J. Bryant, 15, of 33 Seaton place N.W., received head and back injuries and was admitted to Casualty Hospital for treatment and observation. His sled crashed into a parked car after failing to make a sharp turn at Lincoln road and Bryant street N.E.

Police said two other boys, Robert R. Gray, 1237 Randolph street N.W., and George L. LeCompte, 26 1/2 to place N.E., were thrown off the sled but escaped injury. The Bryant youth was to undergo X-rays today to determine the extent of his injuries.

Bus Driver Exonerated.
A coroner's jury yesterday exonerated the operator of the bus involved in the fatal injury of 8-year-old Thomas H. Williams of 1525 V street S.E., who was killed Monday night in a sledding accident.

The driver, John A. Boyd, 37, of 1012 Pennsylvania avenue S.E., testified he tried desperately to bring his heavy vehicle to a stop when he saw what appeared to be a dark shadow streaking toward the intersection where the accident occurred.

Witnesses testified that the sled struck the rear part of the bus when young Tommy was unable to check its speed. His 3-year-old brother Joseph was saved from serious injury and a possible similar fate by throwing himself from the sled a moment before the crash.

Two Injured in Falls.
Two women were injured in falls on icy pavements yesterday. Dollie Moore, 18, of 1612 Webster street N.W., slipped and fell at the entrance to the Army War College and was removed to Emergency Hospital in an Army ambulance. She was treated for a slight concussion and discharged.

Mrs. Elizabeth G. Kelly, 68, of 906 Girard street N.E., fell at Fourth and P streets S.W. and was taken to Providence Hospital in a police scout car. She was discharged after being treated for a bruised hip.

Georgia Escape Artist Stays Free 40 Minutes

By the Associated Press.
REIDSVILLE, Ga., Jan. 19.—Leland Harvey, Georgia escape artist, got away yesterday for 40 minutes and was caught 8 miles from the prison after fleeing into woods from a coal truck.

"You must be supermen," Harvey told guards and prison officials who traced him with a bloodhound.

It was the latest of a dozen or more escapes for the wily convict who once slipped out of the death cell of the State prison by soaping his body.

CLEANING COFFEEMAKER; MARSHMALLOWS; OLD BRASS.

(Thanks to Mrs. A. F. A., Washington.)

In response to Mrs. D. E. B. I have found that brass can be removed from glass or china containers by filling them with water to which has been added some chlorine bleach, about 2 tablespoons to each quart. Leave this solution in article overnight and in the morning wash the article well and fill with water to which a little baking soda has been added. This soda solution will sweeten and remove all trace of the bleach. Leave the soda solution in for about eight hours. This method is good for removing stains from lead-ted pitchers in summertime.

In response to Mrs. C. W. McM., I suggest that she use her hardened marshmallows in making cream. If she does not have a recipe, I would be glad to send her one.

Perhaps some one can help me. Some time ago I purchased an antique brass candlestick, badly stained and in need of polishing. I tried the salt-and-vinegar method suggested in one of my cookbooks but was not very successful. Can any of the readers suggest a good method of polishing old brass?

Many thanks for all the good recipes and ideas I received from your column.

(Thanks to Mrs. G. E., Washington.)

In answer to Mrs. D. E. B.'s request—cleaning glass coffee makers—I suggest she get a wire bottle brush. According to the shape, the brush will bend. Soap and cleanser will help nicely.

I am only one year here in Washington, but have enjoyed The Star right from the start.

(Thanks to Mrs. M. S. R., Arlington.)

I believe that if Mrs. D. E. B. Washington, will use any of the liquid bleaches in her glass coffee maker, the stain can be easily removed. I have found it very effective in cleaning the stain from enamel percolators, as well as other enamel pans and porcelain teapots, so am confident it would work on the glass. I usually use only a small amount—one or two teaspoons—rinsing it well around, and if necessary let it stand for a short period, then wash well with soap.

COLE SLAW DRESSING.

(Requested by Mrs. M. J., Washington.)

Could any of your readers tell me how the delicious cole slaw dressing served at local restaurants is made?

BROWN SUGAR.

(Thanks to A. W., Washington.)

Re: Brown sugar which has become too hard to measure or break. Several solutions have been given to keep brown sugar so it can be measured, but don't believe I have read how to get it in condition for use without waiting some time after it has been put in a can with apples and what-have-you.

I have softened brown sugar for immediate use and stored it in a tin can with a tight lid on it to keep it from getting hard again.

Take the sugar out of the box—tear box away if no other way—and place the sugar in a pan and set it in a warm oven, not hot, watch it and as soon as it will crumble from the hard sugar take a spoon and crumble it away. Will only take a few minutes and it is ready to measure and store away. Let cool before storing in a tight container.

NAME FOR PUPPY.

(Thanks to Miss O. E. C., Falls Church.)

A recent request of Mrs. J. C. H. of Charleston, S. C., for a name for her Airedale has attracted my attention, since I have a pedigree (female) Airedale about 13½ years of age named Bonnie Lass.

Your correspondent has a correct name concerning Scotch origin of this specimen, and I suggest the names Donald (Don), MacArthur (Mac), McGregor, or any of the Scotch Macs, Bruce or Sandy.

(Thanks to M. J. R. R., Washington.)

Several "puppy names" occurred to me when I read Mrs. J. C. H.'s request, and since I note they have not as yet been given I hereby submit them. Incidentally, National Geographic Magazine's "Dog Book" lists the Airedale as wholly English in origin from the Aire Valley.

However, these English names have a Scotch flavor, at least: "Barkis" (who was willin'), "Boswell," "Sir Walter."

(Thanks to Mrs. F. E. C., East Riverdale, Md.)

For Mrs. J. C. H., our Airedale's name: that is, we named him Sandy after he came to our house as an underfed stray. He was about 6 years old at the time, and a thoroughbred according to persons who really knew. Sandy had a sense of humor and loved babies and cats, although he merely tolerated puppies.

He died when he was about 12 years old, and I think it had been possible, his epitaph would have read, "Here lies Sandy, a gentleman dog." (Dog haters, please don't read the "gentleman.") No matter what an Airedale's real name is, he will always look like "Sandy."

CARRY ALL.

(Thanks to Mrs. F. A. S., Washington.)

About two weeks ago, a reader requested some suggestions about carrying packages. I thought maybe my solution of the problem might help her.

I had a pair of strong wooden handles left from a worn-out knitting bag. They are large enough to go over my hand, so that I can get a good grip on them. I looked everywhere for a remnant of strong tapestry long enough to make a bag deeper than the ordinary knitting bag. The usual sample squares are not long enough, and the remnants usually found in stores were very expensive. I finally found just what I wanted in an upholsterer's shop, left from recovering some furniture, and it cost only 75 cents. It is dark with a figured design. I made a wide seam on each side for strength and to act as a facing for the openings on each side. Also, I pulled the material through the slots in the handles and sewed it down to a depth of about 2½ inches, so that acted as a facing and no lining was required. As the finished bag is 14 inches deep and 19 inches wide, it holds all I can possibly carry, and has been much admired.

WEEVILS, MUFFIN BATTER, LAMP SHADES.

(Requested by Mrs. K. R. J., Washington.)

Weevils are repeatedly turning up in my flour canister and I can't seem to get rid of them. At first, I thought it was the summer weather, but now that it is winter, I am wondering I don't think I bring them from the store as the flour is all right for several days and then they appear. I have scoured the canister thoroughly each time and aired it before putting fresh flour in it, to no avail. Has someone else had this problem and found a solution? I am at my wit's ends.

Is it possible to make enough muffin batter for two days and keep

Make a New Half Hat

By Peggy Roberts.

The new half moon hat has bright possibilities. Although shown in every smart shop in New York, no two of them seem to be quite alike. Here is the basic pattern for you to do what you will. Trimmed with beads or sequins, it is charming for evening wear—or you can embroider the floral motif in floss or wool for a modish daytime chapeau. The matching purse-muff has room for cosmetics and mad-money.

Pattern envelope contains hot-iron transfers for three designs, two about 9 by 3 inches; one about 4 by 4 inches; color chart, stitch illustrations and full directions.

'Teacher's Pet' With a Sash

By Barbara Bell.

And why not—if she goes to school in this adorable panel-front, tie-sash frock with the cunning Peter Pan neckline?

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1938 is in sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 8 requires 2½ yards 39-inch material; plus ¼ yard contrast for collar.

For this attractive pattern send 15 cents, plus 1 cent for postage, in coin with your name, address, pattern number and size wanted to Barbara Bell, Washington Star, Post Office Box 99, Station G, New York 18, N. Y.

the leftover half in the icebox until ready for the next day? I wondered if the baking powder would be affected.

Has any one some ideas for making a few lampshade covers? They are hard to find these days and anyway I would like to make one.

FLAVORING TOMATO JUICE.

(Thanks to Mrs. R. L. H., Washington.)

I have found a good suggestion for flavoring plain tomato juice on a bottle of Worcestershire sauce. For each cup of tomato juice add 1 teaspoon of Worcestershire sauce, ¼ teaspoon celery salt and ¼ teaspoon pepper. Mix thoroughly, chill and serve. When I put up my own tomato juice, I add a few bay leaves before canning.

POTATO PANCAKES AND PUDDING.

(Thanks to Mrs. E. O. B., Washington.)

Potato Pancakes: 1 cup grated raw potatoes, 1 egg, 1 teaspoon grated onion, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 2 tablespoons flour. Drain potatoes thoroughly. Beat eggs; add to potato with onion, salt, pepper and flour. Drop by tablespoons on hot griddle with generous amounts of shortening; fry until golden brown on both sides, turning once. Make 8 cakes, 2 inches in diameter.

Grated Sweet Potato Pudding: 4 eggs, 2 cups hot milk, 2 cups sugar, ½ cup butter or margarine, 2 teaspoons ginger, 1 tablespoon cornstarch, 3 cups grated sweet potato (uncooked).

Beat eggs until light. Add sugar, ginger and cornstarch, beating until smooth. Add the mixture to milk which has been heated in top of double boiler. Add butter and sweet potato, stirring well. Cook over rapidly boiling water until thickened—about 30 minutes, stirring occasionally. Pour hot cooking mixture into well greased baking dish; bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) 40 minutes, or until lightly browned on top.

RECIPES WANTED?

(Requested by Mrs. A. G. E., Washington.)

"Southern Ambrosia," "Butter Scotch Rolls."

Do you think peeling of linoleum will prolong the wear of it?

CANDIED FRUIT PEELS.

(Requested by Mrs. E. L. D., Washington.)

Will you please give a recipe for making candied orange, lemon and grapefruit rind?

GIVE AND TAKE.

(Thanks to Mrs. T. E. M., Washington.)

I would like a recipe for chocolate butter cream, such as used in the bakeries for French pastries. Would appreciate getting same.

An sending my favorite recipe for butterscotch cookies.

Melt butter, add sugar, beaten egg and other ingredients. Form into rolls, place in refrigerator overnight. Slice thin and bake for 10 to 12 minutes.

DOUGHNUTS.

(Thanks to Mrs. L. F. B., Poolesville, Md.)

I am enclosing my recipe for doughnuts which was asked for in December. There were several recipes given, but none like mine. I hope the lady will try these, as they are digestible and very good.

One cup thick sour cream, less 3 tablespoons, 3 tablespoons sour milk, 1 cup sugar, 1 tablespoon salt (level), 1 cup flour, 1½ teaspoon ginger, 2 eggs.

Beat all together in bowl and add flour to make stiff, then pour into four to make dough stiff enough to roll, not too stiff. Cut with doughnut cutter and fry in hot oil. (Editor's note—Thank you, Mrs. B., for submitting your recipe for scripture cake. A similar recipe already has been printed.)

BAKED BEANS.

(Thanks to Mrs. M. B. D., Chevy Chase.)

A newcomer to this section, I have been reading The Evening Star and do enjoy the Readers' Clearing House so much.

In the evening when your pinner dishes are gone, take 3 cups peas or Navy beans, wash and cover with cold water (at least 2 inches over beans). Soak all night. In the morning bring slowly to a boil, let simmer. Test a few beans in spoon by gently blowing on them. If sufficiently cooked, the skins will burst.

Actual cooking time will be about 40 minutes. Drain, put in earthenware casserole or bean pot. Press ½ pound fat salt pork into beans. Mix 1 tablespoon salt, ¼ tablespoon dry mustard, 2 tablespoons molasses and 2 tablespoons granulated sugar. Add 1½ cups boiling water and pour over beans. Cover and place in oven tightly covered and bake from 6 to 8 hours. Keep adding water every hour or so. Beans will simmer in water to just below surface. The last hour, remove cover. Is the cooking slow, add small quantities of boiling water added from time to time that really turns out a good pot of beans.

If all are not put in one time, cool and then put in refrigerator; when wanted again, simply put back in oven and heat.

(Editor's note—Many thanks also to Mrs. C. H. H. and Mrs. R. W. K. of Silver Spring and Mrs. G. R. D. of Gaithersburg for similar recipes.)

INK STAINS.

(Thanks to Mrs. V. G. R., Washington.)

I have used this solution with great success on a white cotton seersucker dress.

CHEESE SOUFFLE.

(Requested by Mrs. A. A., Washington.)

Will you please help me to find some one that can make a cheese souffle, especially one that will not overflow?

Thank you in advance, and believe me when I say it gives me great pleasure to know of your column.

About the House

By Margaret Nowell

"What is the best color for a baby's room? She is 8 months old and at this point has only a crib and a chest of drawers for furniture. We are planning to redecorate the room and wish it to be practical and attractive during her toddling years. What would be the best floor covering, and what material for draperies?"

I think one of the sunshiny colors is best. Yellow, peach color, soft pink or a combination of these shades. There are many ways you may make the walls interesting. Keep in mind that at the toddler age there are bound to be hand marks and scars on the wall. So a painted wall that is easily washed is in order.

If you like the attractive nursery wallpaper borders, set these on the wall like a dado, above the height where your toddler can reach them. They help to break the height of the room and make it more in scale with juvenile furniture.

Another good plan is to use one of the washable wall fabrics for the lower part of the wall and use a light shade of one of the colors of the fabric in paint for the upper wall and the ceiling.

Make the curtains as simple as possible; white muslin or washable dimity or percale, to sill length, would be best.

Linoleum is ideal for a floor covering because it is so easy to keep clean. The baby will be in her play pen for another year and after that a wash rug placed on the floor will give her a warm surface to play on.

Keep her furniture simple in design, scaled to her size, and leave as much of the floor space uncluttered as you can. A small table and chair under the window, shelves for toys and books, will be about all she will need for some time to come.

"Can you answer a question for a group of our friends, namely, 'What is an antique?' We argued the question back and forth one evening and every one's idea was different. Is anything over 100 years old an antique? Does the method of making anything to do with it—such as handmade versus machine made?"

A psychologist, who must have scant personal knowledge of the dispositions and ways of women, recently asserted that mother love was the only love that had no jealousy in it. Face it from me to question the conclusions of such an eminent scientist, but I wonder where he was when Mamie had her first beau and it dawned on Mother that her darling child was more interested in a little freckle-faced boy than she was in him or when Tom broke the bad news that he was going to get married; or Grandma took possession of the baby and practically shouldered its mother out of the nursery?

Why, women are the jealous sex and any one of them who is born without green eyes could get a job in a museum as a freak of Nature and people would come miles to see her. Furthermore, women don't confine their jealousy to the tender passion, or to people. They extend it to things and all the minutia of life, and it gives them more headaches and heartaches than anything else in the world.

Of course, wifely jealousy is such a common complaint that we expect every married woman to have it. With cause, or without. No matter how homely and dull and boring a wife may be, nine times out of ten her wife is obsessed with the man who every woman who sees him is trying to take him away from her.

About the first thing a man learns after he gets married is never to praise another woman to his wife and especially never to say a kind word about his secretary. One of the reasons why there is so little conversation in our homes is because husbands dare not open their mouths for fear of hurting their feet in them.

It is jealousy that is at the bottom of the in-law trouble, over which women have shed enough tears to float the Queen Mary. Mother simply can't bear the thought that some mean, scheming adventurer, by underhanded and nefarious ways, has kidnaped her innocent, trusting little boy, who is only 30 years old, in it. Face it from me to question her and marry him. She knows that the way a man feels towards his mother and the way he feels towards his wife do not conflict any more than his fondness for both roast beef and ice cream but she wants to be all-in-all to him. She doesn't want any other woman to have any part in his life whatever. And so she carries a knife in her sleeve where she can get at it handy for his wife.

And, as the daughter-in-law reciprocates these sentiments, they start a family feud that keeps them both miserable and wrecks the happiness of the man over whom they fight.

If you should tell mothers that their jealousy is what makes them shut their fathers out of their children's lives and is responsible for a lot of juvenile delinquency, they would bitterly deny the charge. But it is true, nevertheless. Many mothers are so monopolistic, so determined that their children shall love them best, that they practically never let the youngsters get acquainted with their fathers, or permit their fathers to have any hand in rearing them.

Haven't you known mothers who have slipped extra money to children when their fathers were attempting to teach them how to handle an allowance? Haven't you known mothers who would connive at their children doing things that their fathers had absolutely forbidden, until Father's discipline was made a mockery?

You have. Plenty of them. And you have seen many a broken-hearted father paying the wayward children who were the victims of their mother's jealousy, out of the scrapes they had gotten into.

Fashion Look-Outs

Last week at New York's Hotel Plaza, the New York Dress Institute gave a "star" party, reception and fashion show to wind up a week's showings of dress collections for the out-of-town fashion editors (yours truly included).

The fashion show presented a galaxy of star attractions... fashions that had been chosen as the important ones that will shine on the spring horizon. Here they are—nine of them—trends to watch for this spring, fashions to look out for when you're planning your own spring wardrobe:

1. DRESSMAKER SUITS ARE BIG NEWS! Biggest news of all are those with the short jackets and boxy ones. Look out for the box jacket suit with Roman-stripped overblouse, for Adele Simpson's "Stroller," for Jo Copeland's knock-out dandy suit and the diminutive fitted jacket with its fullness buttoned in. Look for the bolero suit—such as the one photographed—and the softer costume with waistcoat overblouse. In fact, watch the waistcoat—it's an important spring highlight!

2. "SILK SUITS" ARE CRISP AND CHIC! If you want a dress-up suit, keep in mind that crisp "silk" ones are good—such as the raw silk model with stripes stitched on for the jaunty bolero of faille or the more sophisticated alpaca dinner job.

3. LOOK BACKWARD THIS SPRING! Lots of the news and interest in spring fashions will be in the rear. You'll see—and be seen in—skirts that dip or drape over the derriere, in peplums that ripple gently, in dresses with their own scarfs and that stream dramatically and slenderly down the back.

4. TALL TORSO LOOK FOR SPRING! Keep your eye peeled for the tall torso look—and also the sleeveless look. They're typified and dramatized in long-bodied jumpers, also sleeveless sweaters that can be worn with or without a blouse. By all means, don't miss Norman Norell's white wool jersey sleeveless dress with scarlet jacket, new for day or evening.

5. COAT N' DRESS MAKE FOR EACH OTHER. Welcome a fashion favorite of former years as a returning trend—the related costume. It's the print dress with its own coat designed to go with it. Another old friend you'll welcome is the little jersey suit in beige with black, a color combination, by the way, which sets the pace for many new spring costumes.

6. NEWS IN PRINT; PRINTS IN THE NEWS! New York designers have shown how beautiful are American-designed prints—and how skillfully they can be handled. Look out for prints made of care seat patterns, jungle motifs and paper doll cut outs. (The "Hit Parade" might have inspired this one!)

Ab! Spring!

It may be wishful thinking, but we thought we saw the first signs of spring at the opening of "Kiss and Tell" at the National Theater on Monday night. The three or four notes opening the spring song were bright little hats bravely fighting for place among a welter of sequins.

There was, for example, a delectable confection of strawberry pink roses on lime green felt hat looked good enough to eat. And then there was an exquisitely coiffed silver-haired lady who, when she walked down the aisle, seemed to be wearing a simple black band with one bow resting near her ear, only to startle a winter-weary audience, when she sat down, by a burst of brilliant beading in snood effect suspended from the band. So decorative was this and so good for our spring-hungry soul that we almost said "thank you" to the pretty lady.

At this point we give the gentlemen a hand, too—that is, those who had the courage to break out in the Christmas gift ties. They were springlike bright spots in a sea of uniforms and dark suits. One white-haired, uninhibited male wore a pale blue shirt with dark blue suit, startling his non-conservative suit-and-tie us—with his tie that was frank and unblushingly pink and red roses on a white ground. Once this caught our attention we couldn't help spotting others that, all in all, convinced us spring can't be far behind. E. H.

CHECKS AND STRIPES—MAY

THEY WAVE! Checks and stripes, perennial spring favorites, look new again in suit jackets with plain skirts and in shirtwaist dresses. Newest of the stripes are the thin Roman-stripped wool jerseys that Norell uses to make the tops of suits and the revers-facings of box jackets to match.

8. COATS PLAY A PRETTY ACCOMPANIMENT. Coats play a pretty accompaniment to the spring fashion show. Look out for short topcoats this spring. They'll be everywhere—and that means the bright, soft swayer for day and evening, the gayer and decorative three-quarter coat, the Churchland spring, the briefest of box coats and Hattie Carnegie's honey of a satin coat for day or evening.

9. THE NIGHT IS SHORT OR LONG FOR DRESSES. For spring evening festivities, you can have your dress short or long. If you take a short cut, your dress may be sleeveless or it may have the pretty oval neckline. Look out for the camouflaged day-dinner suits that are decorous by day (with jackets) and low décolletage by night (with jacket removed). On the other hand, if you choose the long road to chic, look for a slinky affair with front slit skirt. More anon! But these are the "lookouts" for spring!

AFL Urges Careful Program or Use Of War Prisoners

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 19.—The AFL Executive Council proposes that the Government work out a definite policy of employing prisoners of war on useful projects that neither invite danger of sabotage nor compete with free American workers.

President William Green said complaints about the actual and proposed employment of prisoners had reached the Federation. A formal statement issued by the council said: "This practice is dangerous and is calculated to arouse deep resentment among American workers. It cannot be justified on the grounds of manpower shortages or for any other reason."

Mr. Green, offhand, cited a complaint from woodcutters in Wisconsin and the proposal to use the war prisoners in railroad work.

Half end of Rail Dispute.

AFL officials halted settlement of the railroad wage dispute, which involved more than a million affiliated rail workers. Mr. Green said: "It will end a period of Government suspense. We will all share the feeling of satisfaction of the non-operating employees."

The council began discussion of some of the problems relating to the postwar and reconversion periods and the current cutbacks in production, particularly in the employment angle. Large numbers of building mechanics have not been able to find work at their own trades. Mr. Green said that in New York alone this was true of 90 per cent of the bricklayers and 50 per cent of the electrical workers.

"We have encouraged them," said Mr. Green, "to go into shipbuilding and other war plants, but the new difficulty is that in a number of plants there have been cutbacks, the production has been so great."

The council called for representation of the war on all boards, directed an appeal to Government agencies considering such problems; commissioned Mr. Green to call on all AFL central (city) bodies to obtain representation on local postwar agencies; reaffirmed its demand for labor representation on all boards and agencies; and agreed to prepare instructions to give all possible encouragement to the launching of a private house.

Cathedral Heights Citizens Discuss Extension of Area

Inclusion of McLean Gardens residents as members of the Cathedral Heights-Cleveland Park Citizens' Association was discussed last night at the meeting of the organization although no action was taken on the extension of invitations to such residents.

Members pointed out that boundaries of areas set up for civilian defense here do not conform to boundaries set up as limits for citizens' associations, which in many cases overlap one another.

While the Friendship Heights Citizens' Association has assumed that McLean Gardens is within its area, members of the Cathedral Heights group contended that because of recent development, the McLean Gardens area should be divided, at least.

An appeal was made to the group to lend every aid to the Fourth War Loan campaign.

Australia and New Zealand Back World Air Authority

CANBERRA, Australia, Jan. 19.—The Australian-New Zealand Conference agreed today to support the principle that ownership, operation and control of international civil air routes be vested in an international air authority.

Attorney General Herbert V. Ewart of Australia and Prime Minister Stanley Bruce of New Zealand urged their governments' support of the proposal, subject to two conditions.

These were, first, that international trunk routes should be specified as part of any international agreement for air transport, and secondly, that the right of each country to conduct air services within its own territorial jurisdiction should be recognized.

The council called for representation of the war on all boards, directed an appeal to Government agencies considering such problems; commissioned Mr. Green to call on all AFL central (city) bodies to obtain representation on local postwar agencies; reaffirmed its demand for labor representation on all boards and agencies; and agreed to prepare instructions to give all possible encouragement to the launching of a private house.

Points for Parents —By EDYTH THOMAS WALLACE

When father goes to war, mother should make every effort to give children the older male companionship they need.

This —Mother—"Do you have a depend- able high school boy whom I can pay to take hikes with my Jimmie and work with him on airplane models? He misses his father very much."

Not This —Mother—"Talking about how much you miss Daddy doesn't do any good. I miss him too. . . I'm sorry I can't help you with your airplane models, but women don't understand such things."

Take My Word for It —By FRANK COLBY

Surprise Word of the Week.
 Most readers will run for the dictionary, shouting "The man's mad!" when I say that the word CANDI-DATE should not be pronounced "KAN-di-tat." But I have checked my various dictionaries and you can take my word for it that most American dictionaries do not even list "KAN-di-tat." That pronunciation does appear, however, in Merriam-Webster's, but it is designated as "especially British."
 In best American usage, the third syllable should rhyme with "bat, gait, wait." Be sure to say KAN-di-tat.
 Still more surprising is the fact that the word is the English form of the Latin candidatus, meaning "clothed in glittering white." A candidate among the Romans always whitened his garments with chalk when he went abroad. This was to signify the purity of his purpose in seeking public office. Today it sometimes happens that the candidate has to be whitewashed after the election and not before.
 It's Hard to Believe.
 Erie—Please pronounce and give the origin of the word MELEE, meaning "a fray." Mrs. F. E.
 Answer—First, second and third choice, in that order, are may-LAY, MAY-lay, MEH-lay. No dictionary sanctions "MEE-lay."
 The word is from the French. In that language it is pronounced meh-LAY. Surprisingly, it also has given us the words meddle, medley and pell-mell.
 Sent for my compilation of word parodies which have appeared in this column from time to time, such as the "O. B. S." parodies and others. For a free copy send a stamped (3-cent), self-addressed envelope to Frank Colby, care of this paper. Ask for WORD PARODIES. (Released by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Sailor Flashes $1,000 Bill, Barkeeps 'Buy' the Drinks

By The Associated Press.
 CHICAGO.—Hearken to the tale of a sailor from New York, and the woes of the tavern-keepers in his path.
 The sailor would go into a West Madison street bar, order a drink and plank down a $1,000 bill to pay for it. The only hitch was that the West Madison street tavern-keepers have learned to call the police were confronted by a puzzle.
 Consequently his course was well charted, and after the 18th call, the desk sergeant sent Detectives John Walsh and Charles Cullinan to 649 and he . . .
 "Yeah, I know," said the sergeant. Well, to make a long story short, warily, "he bought a drink and gave the salt was taken to headquarters, you a $1,000 bill."
