House FCC Inquiry To Question Noble on Radio Station Deal

By the Associated Press. Three former Federal officials were under subpoena today to tell a congressional committee what part they had, if any, in the sale of New York Radio Station WMCA to a former Assistant Secretary of Commerce.

A subpoena for Edward Noble, assistant to Harry Hopkins when the latter was Secretary of Commerce, will be issued within the next few days, Eugene L. Garey, counsel for the House committee investigating the Federal Communications Commission, announced.

Mr. Noble, who recently acquired the Blue Network, purchased WMCA in November, 1940, in a transaction which the former owner, Donald Flamm, said he was told was "gessed from the White House down."

Others subpoenaed. Mr. Garey said subpoenas have been issued for Thomas Corcoran, former presidential adviser; William J. Dempsey, former general counsel for the FCC and later counsel for Mr. Noble; and Leslie Roberts, former radio executive for the WPA. These three, along with David K. Niles, now a presidential aide, were listed by Mr. Flamm as having been connected with the transaction in which he sold WMCA despite his unwillingness to do so.

Mr. Flamm was recalled today to continue his story of the sale, which he began yesterday, and to elaborate on his reasons for believing he would have lost his license if he had not made the deal. He would not have said, he testified, if he had not been convinced that the FCC was ready to transfer his wave length to Mr. Noble.

Mr. Flamm said he felt the commission was antagonistic to him after a hearing in 1939 in which his broadcasting of intercepted code messages sent out by Germany and Great Britain.

Engaged Roberts as "contact." At Mr. Niles' suggestion, he said, he engaged Mr. Roberts as a "contact man" in Washington. In November, 1940, Mr. Flamm told the committee, Mr. Dempsey, who had conducted the FCC proceedings against him, offered to purchase WMCA for $750,000 on Mr. Noble's behalf and warned Mr. Flamm that unless he agreed to the sale, an application would be made to the FCC for transfer of his frequency to Mr. Noble.

After the price had been increased to $850,000, which Mr. Flamm said was $250,000 less than he had been offered by others, he agreed reluctantly to the transaction in the representation of Mr. Roberts that "this thing has been gessed from the White House down."

Mr. Roberts' information, Mr. Flamm said, came from Mr. Niles, who had referred Mr. Roberts to Mr. Corcoran.

Mr. Flamm accused Mr. Roberts of having been "in on this deal all the way through," and said Mr. Dempsey admitted that it was Mr. Corcoran who helped him make the connection with Mr. Noble.

Mr. Garey told reporters he would produce testimony later to indicate that the White House "at first cautioned the FCC to be careful in this transaction, but later informed the commission the President didn't care either way."

Loneragan's Plea Argued By Opposing Counsel. NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—Opposing counsel waged a bitter dispute yesterday as to whether Wayne Lonergan, charged with slaying his wife, Patricia, had been offered a chance to plead guilty to second-degree murder.

Assistant District Attorney Jacob Grumet declared emphatically he had made no such offer. He added that defense counsel had sought such a plea, an assertion denied vigorously by Edward V. Broderick, Lonergan's attorney.

The argument began after General Sessions Judge John J. Freschi granted an uncontested defense motion for appointment of a commission to take testimony at Toronto, Canada, concerning the mental illness of Lonergan's mother, Mrs. Clara Lonergan.

Gov. Bricker Gains Burton's Support For Nomination

By GOULD LINCOLN. Senator Burton, Republican of Ohio, in a letter made public today, declared his support of Gov. John Bricker of Ohio for the Republican presidential nomination.

"Petitions are now being circulated in Ohio for my election at the May primaries as an Ohio delegate at large to the Republican National Convention pledged to him," said Senator Burton.

His letter was addressed to Drew Pearson, columnist, who suggested that Senator Burton would be a good candidate for the Republicans.

Senator Burton's letter expressed appreciation for Mr. Pearson's proposal.

Gov. and Mrs. Bricker will arrive here tomorrow. He will be the principal speaker at a Lincoln Day dinner in the Mayflower Hotel tomorrow night.

At 10:30 a.m. the Governor will hold a press conference in the hotel, and Mrs. Bricker will receive reporters there at 11 a.m. At noon Gov. Bricker will be entertained at a luncheon by the Republican members of the Ohio congressional delegation. Friday he will be the guest of honor and speaker at a luncheon in the National Press Club.

The Governor's visit to Washington is regarded as an important step in his drive for the presidential nomination. Reporters brought here by Bricker supporters say he has made much progress in recent weeks.

Gov. Bricker's name has been entered only in the presidential preferential primaries in Ohio. Some of his friends are urging him to enter the primaries in one or more States, where he may give evidence that he is a good vote getter.

Eden Silent on Russia As Protecting Power. LONDON, Feb. 9.—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden remained silent when asked in Commons today whether Russia is being sought as a protecting power in an attempt to halt Japanese atrocities against Allied prisoners of war.

Mr. Eden did tell Commons that the good offices of the Soviet government have been sought and have been forthcoming in connection with the dispatch of war prisoners' correspondence and also with the forwarding of relief supplies through their territories.

The Foreign Secretary indicated, however, that all protests against Japanese barbarities in the treatment of prisoners of war were still going through neutral protecting powers—not Russia.

Chicago News Earnings Up 100 Pct. in 1943. CHICAGO, Feb. 9.—Directors of the Chicago Daily News, Inc., in their annual report to stockholders, reported yesterday that the company's 1943 earnings were more than double those of the previous year.

The company in 1943 earned $1,010,004, or $1.97 a share, on common stock after preferred dividend requirements. This compared with a 1942 net of $462,348, or 58 cents a share. Consolidated earnings before Federal taxes in 1943 amounted to $1,985,846, a new record for any year since 1928.

Suspicious on Soviet Autonomy Inspired by Nazis, Reds Say. MOSCOW, Feb. 9.—The Soviet trade union magazine, War and the Working Class, today characterized as Nazi-inspired any suggestions that the new powers recently granted to the 16 Soviet republics in the field of foreign relations were designed to achieve territorial gains.

At the same time, the publication scoffed at suggestions that the Soviet Union would "return to isolationism." In another long article, a writer named Tolchenov blue-printed how the continent should be invaded, pointing out where the blow ought to be delivered and how.

The leading article said was natural for the individual Soviet republics to become federalized, noting that Russia was the biggest country in Europe and had the largest population. The population of the Ukraine, it added, exceeds that of France, while that of White Russia exceeds Belgium, Holland, Portugal and Sweden.

The publication declared suggestions that the reorganization was made in preparation for including other countries into the U. S. S. R., to serve as an instrument of a "policy of expansion" or to serve as a means for a "policy of force in the framework of the United Nations" were all "versions" and "guessings" bearing the Berlin label.

Referring to isolationism, the magazine said: "The world remembers that several years before the war of countries carried on a policy of isolating the U. S. S. R., which cleared the way for the Fascists to gain power to wage war."

The invasion article said that "the landing operations of the Allies south of Rome confirms the existence of unprotected intermediate lines on the European coast."

Ration Tokens Delivered To Washington Banks

Several million of the new red and blue ration tokens, to be used beginning February 27, are in the hands of Washington banks. The banks will begin distributing tokens to local outlets on February 17 and retailers will begin using the new "currency" as change for stamps on February 27.

One bank reported it has 350,000 of the red tokens and 185,000 blue tokens on hand.

Chester Bowles, Office of Price Administration chief, said the OPA already has shipped more than half the requisition totals for distribution to nearly 600,000 retail outlets. Use of the new tokens will reduce paper work and cut down the time required to handle food stamps, Mr. Bowles said.

Ensign Robert G. Hare Dies in Plane Crash

Ensign Robert Grice Hare, U. S. N. R., 20, of 2138 California street N. W., was killed Monday when his plane crashed into the ocean off Fort Pierce, Fla., during an operational flight, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald E. Hare, have been informed.

Ensign Hare had been assigned to the Vero Beach Naval Air Station, Fla., since his graduation as a pilot with the rank of ensign from the Pensacola base last January 4.

He enlisted in the service in January, 1941, as an apprentice seaman and was graduated from the Navy's Aviation Machinist School at Jacksonville, Fla., in July, 1941. He was transferred to flight school at Chapel Hill, N. C., in February, 1943, and later assigned to the naval airbase at Peru, Ind., before going to Pensacola. Prior to entering the service Ensign Hare spent a year at Tri-State College, Angola, Ind., studying aeronautical engineering.

Mr. and Mrs. Hare said they received a letter from their son this morning. It was mailed Saturday. The letter said he had gone to Daytona, Fla., and had bought a summer uniform and other clothes.

Services for ensign Hare will be held at the Fort Meyer Chapel at 10:30 Saturday. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Swedish Minister Returns From Moscow

Helsinki Disclaims Statement Attributed To Legation Here

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 9.—A declaration that the Finns would not surrender, even if Helsinki were razed, was disclaimed today by the Finnish Foreign Office.

A spokesman at the Legation in Washington said yesterday that Finland's position in the war had not changed, and added that even if the Finn capital were razed the country would not surrender.

The Helsinki newspaper Hufvudstadsbladet said a Finnish Foreign Office spokesman had denied that the Finnish Legation in Washington had issued such a statement. The Foreign Office said it had been advised by its Washington Legation that no such comment was made on Secretary of State Hull's renewed warning that Finland must quit the war or accept the consequences.

Machine Gun-Armed Police Recapture D. C. Jailbreaker

Earlier yesterday, Day evaded District detectives who spotted him as he drove a car through the Southeast section of Washington.

His capture last night came as the culmination of a two-day watch maintained by Fairfax County police over the home of relatives of the fugitive in nearby Virginia, where he is said to have spent the last two nights.

Spotted by Fairfax Police. Lt. Henry T. Magarity and Sgt. J. W. Maley of the Fairfax County police forced Day, who was driving an automobile belonging to a friend, to the curb on Route 211 near Fairfax last night. Washington police, following in another car, joined Virginia officers in covering Day as he stepped from the car.

Day was brought back to Washington, where, police said, he admitted robbing a store on Bladenburg road N.E. the day after his escape from the District Jail. He obtained a small amount of cash and a quantity of food, he said, and left for Pennsylvania, returning to this section Sunday night.

Police said that when Day drove through the southeast section he apparently recognized them and zig-zagged his car through traffic. The detectives, with machine guns ready, held their fire, they said, for fear of hitting pedestrians. Day disappeared in the evening rush-hour traffic and was not seen until picked up by Virginia police.

Day's Relatives Questioned. Meanwhile, police had arrested Day's father, George H. Day, 53, of the 600 block of I Street S.E., and Mrs. Dorothy Barrett, 31, first block of Fifth street S.E., the fugitive's sister, and an 18-year-old girl, said to be Day's girl friend. They were still being questioned today on their possible connection with Day's escape.

Day, who was awaiting trial on a charge of housebreaking, and William P. Thomas, 24, under indictment on a charge of robbery, escaped from the District Jail last Wednesday. They were scheduled to appear in court the following day.

The break, the first from the new modern wing of the jail, was made by removing a window and sawing through bars. How they secured the blade has not been determined, but police believe it was smuggled by friends.

Thomas is still at large. Martial Law in Transistria. STOCKHOLM, Feb. 9.—Premier Ion Antonescu of Rumania has declared martial law in the province of Transistria, which Rumania acquired during the Axis invasion of Russia and which now is threatened by the advancing Russian armies. Berlin dispatches to Swedish newspapers said today.

SENATOR BRIDGES AND HIS BRIDE-TO-BE—Before leaving for St. Paul, Minn., where they will be married Friday, Senator Styles Bridges, Republican, of New Hampshire and his bride-to-be, Miss Doloris Thauwald, posed for photographers in his office here last night. Miss Thauwald, whose home is in St. Paul, yesterday resigned her post as administrative assistant in the State Department World Trade Intelligence Division. Senator Bridges is a widower and father of three sons, one of them is serving in the Navy.

Japs Admit U. S. Attack On Paramushiro Base

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—The Japanese-operated Batavia radio acknowledged last night that American warships and planes had bombed the Japanese base on Paramushiro Island Friday, but declared damage was negligible.

The English-language broadcast, recorded by the United States Foreign Broadcast Intelligence Service, said the American flotilla included "several cruisers and destroyers." The broadcast also asserted that Japanese planes had opposed the attackers—a claim not borne out by the communique on the action issued by the Navy Department Monday, nor by dispatches from the fleet.

"Japanese planes immediately returned fire and repulsed the enemy within 20 minutes," the radio was quoted. "Damage suffered on the Japanese side was negligible."

Four Seek Senate Seat Held by Mrs. Caraway

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Feb. 9.—Col. T. H. Barton, refining company president of El Dorado, announced last night he would be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Senator in the July primary.

The 62-year-old business executive qualified for what apparently will be a multiple race for the seat now held by Senator Hattie Caraway.

Col. Barton's entry into the race pits him as a candidate against Senator Caraway, who also has filed for re-election; Representative Fulbright of Fayetteville, former Representative Terry of Little Rock and J. Rosser Venable, also of Little Rock. Gov. Homer Adkins also may enter the race.

Kreiser Signs Contract For Five Broadcasts

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—Fritz Kreiser, famed violinist, announced yesterday he had signed a contract for a series of five broadcast appearances, the first in his career.

The contract calls for the first broadcast this summer, with the others spaced within the next nine months. He will appear in the concert series Monday nights listed as "The Telephone Hour," under the sponsorship of the Bell Telephone System and broadcast by the National Broadcasting Co.

Willkie Declares GOP Victory Is Vital to Nation's Welfare

By the Associated Press.
TWIN FALLS, Idaho, Feb. 9.—The United States' relations with other countries "would be strengthened and clarified through new leadership" in executive positions, Wendell Willkie believes.

Mr. Willkie told a public meeting last night that "a change of administration would be less disturbing in wartime than during the period of reconstruction," and asserted that America's welfare "is involved in the Republican party winning the presidency in 1944."

Mr. Willkie carried his tour of the Pacific Northwest to Idaho's capital city today, conferring with Republican leaders at Boise. He planned to go on by train tonight to Tacoma, Wash., where he will make a public address Friday.

Dangers of Fourth Term

In his address last night, Mr. Willkie said he desired to speak not only to those who "recognize the dangers involved in giving the President a fourth term," but also to those who believe "these dangers are outweighed by the advantages that would be ours in this critical period if we continue the unbroken tenure of the present administration."

"Does this mean, then," he asked, "that administrations should never change, because change should not be attempted at any but a placid hour? Such a decision would mean an end of democracy. For you and I will never see in our time a placid hour."

"I know that there have long been in the Republican party forces which really believe that the party exists solely for the advancement of private, selfish, material interests," Mr. Willkie added, "and who would, if they could, turn back the clock of social progress, that negative and subversive elements flock to the party out of power."

New GOP Leadership Arises

"But I believe that it is demonstrable that every one of these elements is equally prevalent in the Democratic party. But there is a difference—in the Democratic party they are entrenched."

"The Republican party has been out of power for 12 years—chastened by defeat—new leadership has arisen; 90,000,000 Americans now live with satisfaction under the gubernatorial leadership of Republican Governors, and our congressional representation has recently been refreshed with men unhampered by past records, who know that real social progress, once established, cannot be destroyed; that the Republican party must represent the future, not the past."

McKeldin to Be Honored

Mayor Theodore R. McKeldin of Baltimore will be guest of honor at a Lincoln Day dance to be held at 9 p. m. Friday at the Prince Georges County and Country Club by the County Republican Club. Proceeds will go to the Prince Georges General Hospital at Cheverly.

Belgian Prince, a Private In Army, Made U. S. Citizen

By the Associated Press.
RICHMOND, Va., Feb. 9.—Pvt. Joseph De Riquet De Chimay became a naturalized citizen yesterday in ceremonies for 40 Camp Lee soldiers, and in so doing renounced his title—dating back to the Roman Empire—as a prince.

Pvt. De Chimay is a native of Chimay, Belgium, where he still owns land and houses which, he said, are now in the possession of the Germans. He first came to the United States in 1939 "to look up a very pretty American girl in South Carolina" whom he had met in France, he explained. He went home, but returned here in 1941 to see the girl again, "but she married a marine."

Called "Joe" by his associates, Pvt. De Chimay looks like the Hollywood version of a European prince, is dark and slender and wears a mustache. He received his B. A. degree from the University of Greenville, S. C., and engaged in the cotton business in South Carolina before going into the Army.

S. S. Oscar Underwood Launched on Coast

By the Associated Press.
WILMINGTON, Calif., Feb. 9.—Named for the late Alabama Senator, the Liberty ship Oscar Underwood slid down the ways last night as the 17th vessel launched by the California Shipbuilding Corp. last year.

The craft was launched by a friend of the Underwood family, Mrs. Roberta Munger Harris, wife of Maj. Barton Lyon Harris of the Army engineers.

Negro Reporter Attends President's Press Parley

A colored reporter, Harry McAlpin, representing the Atlanta World and the Negro Newspaper Publishers' Association, was admitted to President Roosevelt's news conference yesterday.

Mr. McAlpin, a graduate of the University of Wisconsin, received full White House credentials. The Atlanta World is a daily newspaper.

After the conference, Mr. Roosevelt greeted Mr. McAlpin and shook hands with him.

Roosevelt Explains Weapon on Desk Is Commando Knife

By the Associated Press.
A vicious-looking weapon was on President Roosevelt's desk at his news conference yesterday and the Chief Executive told reporters it was the latest Commando knife—perfectly balanced and the kind you can throw.

Some time later, while Mr. Roosevelt headed the American peace delegation.

That story, the President said, is largely untrue. It was advanced a year ago, he continued.

A reporter emboldened by this interchange remarked that there wasn't as much reticence about political gossip at the conference as he had thought there might be, and "in view of the fact that Vice President Wallace has been touring the country making what some people regard as political speeches there is quite a lot of interest in what you think about the Democratic candidacy for President."

Right about here the fog descended.

The President started to discuss those people who are interested in candidacies, then tacked and said he guessed the only thing for him to do would be to go out and make a speech. Now all this criticism about Henry A. Wallace, he began—when some one in the rear of the crowded room said "louder, please."

Suggests Reading Sermon.
Cryptically, the President resumed with the suggestion that people read the "Sermon on the Mount." Is that political or not, he questioned. Some people say it is, he added.

A reporter who was less interested in the Beatitudes than in other issues then came in with the fourth-term question.

A woman reporter probably addressed the understatements said she was getting all confused. So said the President, was everybody else. Referring back to the earlier colloquy when the reporter intimated that political questions were raised with hesitancy, Mr. Roosevelt said he loved to have questions asked; he didn't mind them a bit, he insisted.

The discussion shifted to the new tax bill and what the President will do with it.

Mr. Roosevelt said he didn't know about that, either.

Japs Report Missionaries Killed by Allied Strafing

The Tokio radio asserted today that American airmen had killed 58 and seriously wounded 80 missionaries or members of their families in a machine-gun attack against Japanese barges near New Guinea, last Sunday.

French Committee Seeks Pact With U. S. Fixing Exchange Ratio

By BLAIR BOLLES.
The French Committee of National Liberation is negotiating with the United States for a monetary agreement, aimed at fixing the franc in terms of dollars, it was learned today.

The agreement's conclusion would represent one more step toward factual recognition of the committee as the interim French government.

The present attitude of this Government is said to be that the committee is for practical purposes the interim French government and will return to France in that character, and that no general action of recognition by the United States is necessary.

The limited recognition accorded the committee last August 26 by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill is said to be elastic enough to cover satisfactorily the committee the questions that will arise in connection with its return.

Memorandum Submitted.
The committee has submitted a memorandum to the State Department and to the British Foreign Office outlining the three steps which the committee proposes to take toward the re-establishment of a French government. The committee has received no reply, but there has been no sign that the program is considered unsatisfactory here. The steps are:

1. First period of invasion of France, when the committee intends to remain in Algiers and send representatives into the liberated area.
2. When two thirds of France, including Paris, is liberated, the committee intends to proceed to Paris and with members of the resistance.

Financial relations between the United States and France have been soured, which was closed by the Argentine government January 27 for criticizing the rupture of relations with Germany and Japan, was reinstated yesterday under the name of El Federal.

Argentine Paper Revived

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 9.—The pro-Nazi newspaper El Pampero, which was closed by the Argentine government January 27 for criticizing the rupture of relations with Germany and Japan, was reinstated yesterday under the name of El Federal.

Kansas Warden Quits As Governor Denies Clemency to Killer

By the Associated Press.
TOPEKA, Kans., Feb. 9.—Gov. Andrew Schoepel denied clemency last night to Fred L. Brady, convicted holdup slayer; set April 15 for Kansas' first execution in 70 years, and Warden M. P. Amrine promptly resigned in protest against capital punishment.

Mr. Amrine, a veteran of 30 years in penal work, who started his third term as warden in 1939, said in explaining his resignation to the State board:

"First of all I am opposed to capital punishment. I am unable to find a single extenuating circumstance. The three other convicts are in Kansas' new 'death row.' Mr. Amrine declared he did not defend murderers. I simply say a 'legal killing of such men is a deplorable gesture. It is evasive action."

The Governor, in a statement reviewing the Brady case, said, "I am unable to find a single extenuating circumstance." The three other convicts are in Kansas' new "death row."

A monetary agreement between the committee and Britain was announced yesterday. It provides for a ratio of 200 francs to the pound.

Groups to Form an Interim Government, Whose Membership Would Be Ratified by an Elected Assembly

When all France has been liberated and imprisoned French citizens have been returned from abroad, the people will be asked to form a permanent government.

Roosevelt Quoted.
"The Government of the United States takes note with sympathy of the desire of the committee to be regarded as the body qualified to insure the administration and defense of French interests," President Roosevelt said last August.

"The extent to which it may be possible to give effect to this desire must, however, be reserved for each case as it arises."

A number of cases have arisen since, and in most of them the committee has gained factual recognition. The committee is the source of authority for all liberated French territory, including Corsica, which was freed last summer. It is a member of the Italian Advisory Commission. However, it is not a member of the European Commission in London, on which it has requested membership.

Financial relations between the United States and France have been soured, which was closed by the Argentine government January 27 for criticizing the rupture of relations with Germany and Japan, was reinstated yesterday under the name of El Federal.

Mrs. Goodbody Denies Mother Was Killed In Struggle for Gun

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, Feb. 9.—Mrs. Patricia Goodbody, daughter of the slain Mrs. Frank Starr Williams, describes as "completely absurd and untrue" a veteran police lieutenant's theory that her mother was accidentally killed in her Drake Hotel room January 19 after they had engaged in a struggle for a revolver.

CHICAGO.—DAUGHTER HANDLES DEATH WEAPON—Mrs. Patricia Goodbody (right), daughter of the slain Mrs. Frank Starr Williams, wife of a State Department official, shows Cook County Coroner Al Brodie (left) how the woman who she says shot her mother handled the gun. Mrs. Goodbody told of the shooting yesterday at a coroner's inquest into the fatal shooting of Mrs. Williams January 19 in a Drake Hotel suite.

Msgr. Sheen Decries 'Slave Labor' in Reply To Soviet Attack

By the Associated Press. Msgr. Fulton J. Sheen, in sharply worded criticism of Soviet agitation against the Vatican, declares that it is only natural for the Catholic Church to be opposed by a government "that has between 8,000,000 and 10,000,000 political prisoners doing slave labor in Russia."

Parents Get Medal For Wounded Flyer Dropped in Reich

By the Associated Press. MAXWELL, FIELD, Ala., Feb. 9.—The Air Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster has been awarded to Staff Sgt. T. C. Weaver, who parachuted into Germany so that possibly fatal wounds received in aerial action might be treated.

The latest theory advanced in the puzzling case was given yesterday by Lt. John Quinn, one of the first officers to arrive at the scene of the crime. It climaxed a five-hour coroner's inquest and contradicted previous theories that branded the fatal shooting as the crime of a mysterious woman.

Daughter Reveals Testimony. Continuing his testimony, Lt. Quinn related that Mrs. Williams had taken a gun from a trunk and shot at her daughter, "and Patricia ducked. I think that there was a struggle, and that another shot went wild. I think Mrs. Williams then was shot accidentally."

Earlier Mrs. Goodbody testified and related incidents about the shooting of her mother. Her testimony varied little from her previous statements to police. She testified that an unidentified, middle-aged woman, hiding in the bathroom when she entered fired at her but without effect. The assailant then ran out of the bathroom and fired several more shots at her mother.

Murray, Mead Discuss Small Business Needs In Forum Talks

Small manufacturers who are able to do so should be allowed to resume production of civilian goods now, Chairman Murray of the Senate Small Business Committee said last night on the National Radio Forum. They should not be held back because their large competitors are tied up with war contracts, he added.

Senator Mead, Democrat, of New York, a member of the committee, explained his bill to encourage risk capital for small business enterprises. The two Senators were introduced to a national radio audience at the Blue Network by Edward Boykin, conductor of the Forum, in the WMAL studio. The Forum is arranged by The Star.

"We hear considerable talk about the inequity of permitting small plants to resume civilian production while the big plants are still tied up in war work," Senator Murray said. "It is argued that it would be an unwise and unjust policy to permit the small civilian goods manufacturers to reconvert while their big competitors in the same field are still tied up in war production. This argument is just as unsound as the early argument that war production was a program for big plants."

Sees Small Plants Imperiled

"If this policy is followed, it will mean that thousands of small plants all over the country will go broke waiting at the barrier to give the big manufacturing organizations an even start in reconversion. The little concerns will be lost in the shuffle in the final mad scramble of resumption of civilian production."

"If small concerns can be turned over now to civilian production it will create a stronger competitive position for small business in the postwar period. It will provide sharper competition, lower prices, increased consumption and full employment."

Senator Mead said he had been "particularly interested in providing a permanent system to stimulate the flow of risk capital to small business in the postwar years. After several years' study of this problem, I have worked out a bill to create a small business finance corporation within the Federal Reserve System to serve as a permanent financial foundation under the small business structure of the country. Through this corporation, small business could secure working funds for periods up to 10 years."

Would Aid Trade Research

"Another handicap small business is up against, Senator Mead said, "is the lack of adequate business management and marketing research facilities. Large corporations are able to establish elaborate departments for this purpose, and thereby keep themselves informed on the latest business and marketing techniques. I have submitted a bill directing the Secretary of Commerce to establish a field service for the purpose of giving such technical aid to small business."

Senator Mead, referring to his recent tour of world battlefronts, told of natives of North Africa and India using modern American equipment. He said he was sure half of Australia's population was hoping to buy American automobiles. Leasehold goods, he said, "are planting seeds which will yield a tremendous harvest in the free world trade of the postwar world."

"There are two aspects of this question for small business," he concluded. "First, we should begin to study the type of organization which can carry the products of small and medium size industry into the world market alongside the goods of those corporations able to support individual sales organizations. Second, the goal of full employment in the postwar world, a precondition for a thriving small business, seems less distant when we consider the tremendous possibilities of the world market."

April Set for U. S. Visit Of Archbishop of York

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—The Most Rev. and Right Honorable Cyril Forster Cabel, Lord Archbishop of York and primate of England, is scheduled to visit the United States in April.

Bishop William T. Manning's office said the English churchman would spend a week in New York and that "the coming of a representative of the Church of England to visit the Episcopal Church in the United States."

The announcement said the churchman, who recently visited Russia, would preach at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine here Sunday morning, April 23. That night would address a mass meeting in the cathedral on "The True Foundations of a Just and Durable Peace."

The Archbishop of York is expected to attend the consecration of the Very Rev. Angus Dun of Cambridge, Mass., as fourth Bishop of Washington at Mount St. Alban here on April 19.

Walsh Will Ask Hannegan To End Hague Patronage

A row over Federal patronage in New Jersey, centering around Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, broke out in Congress yesterday, with Senator Walsh, Democrat, of New Jersey announcing he intended to carry it to Robert Hannegan, chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

Senator Walsh, protesting the designation of Dr. Edward Jennings as acting postmaster at Trenton, told reporters he had failed to get a "yes or no" answer from Postmaster General Walker in reply to a question as to whether Mr. Hague "is to continue to get all the Federal patronage in the State."

"I told Walker, Senator Walsh continued, "that to continue to permit Hague to name persons to Federal offices would make the Mayor very happy and give editorial writers all over the country more hooks to throw into the national administration. I think it is stupid politics."

Drop in Street Light Breaking Since 1939 Noted by Pepco

In contrast with the alleged increase in juvenile acts of vandalism—regarded by police as the springboard to more serious delinquency among children—are figures on deprecations of electric street lights in the Washington area, made public by the Potomac Electric Power Co.

Taking the value of electric street lamps and globes broken in 1939 by stones, air rifles and other missiles, presumably wielded by children, as representative of damage through vandalism in a normal year, C. Melvin Sharpe, executive assistant of Pepco, declared today that damage in 1943, despite increases in population, was actually less than in the last prewar year.

In 1943, an average of 8.5 globes were broken daily, Mr. Sharpe said, as compared with 9 globes a day in 1939.

Mr. Sharpe praised the Metropolitan Police Department and school officials for their efforts in aiding to bring about the reduction of losses through acts of mischievous children.

"I think the figures of 1943 speak very well for their combined efforts," he said, "when you consider the vastly increased population of 1943 over 1939."

Teacher Deferments Recreation Arranged In Mott School

The Recreation Board plans to start community recreation activities—games and dancing—in the Mott School, Fourth and W streets N.W., specifically for teen-age children. Hours will be from 5 to 10 p.m. Monday through Saturday nights.

Decision was made at the board meeting yesterday to ask the Board of Education to grant use of the school at its meeting next Wednesday. Requests for more recreation for colored residents of that area have been frequent.

Board members also decided to re-investigate the Engineer's Commission's office to include community recreation facilities in the design of the new Abbott Vocation School building, to be constructed immediately after the war.

5 Soldiers, Policeman Hurt in Street Fight

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Feb. 9.—Five soldiers and a city policeman were injured slightly here yesterday in a general melee involving Police Chief C. W. Dermid said, 600 colored soldiers from Camp Sutton, near Monroe, N. C.

The colored section along Eagle street was almost wrecked, Chief Dermid said, while the soldiers milled about fighting among themselves for about four hours.

The trouble began when two white military policemen arrested a colored soldier charged with being drunk. A crowd surrounded the MPs, they said, and city police helped take the soldier to jail.

On the advice of the white officers in charge of the cordons, Asheville police threw a soldier around the area, but kept out of the section until the fighting died down.

The injured, all first aid cases, included three colored soldiers, two MPs and Policeman A. B. Cole, who was hit on the head with a brick.

Child Receiving Home Buildings Inspected

The Commissioners yesterday inspected several buildings, adjacent to the National Training School for Girls, which are being redecorated for use as a new receiving home for children.

Welfare officials hope it will be possible to move from the present home at 816 Potomac avenue S.E. by the first of next month.

The city heads expressed satisfaction with the work being done on the buildings, formerly part of the training school. It is planned temporarily to use the redecorated buildings and to build after the war in Northeast Washington in the vicinity of Gallaudet College.

Sister Pascaline, 80, Dies; Aided D. C. Poor For Half a Century

A career of more than half a century of charitable work came to an end yesterday when Sister Pascaline died at the Sisters' home for the aged at 220 H street N.E. She was 80 years old and had been confined to bed for the last two weeks.

A familiar figure to thousands of Washingtonians, Sister Pascaline de St. Simon of the Little Sisters of the Poor had been seen on Washington streets for many years with her basket and mite box seeking aid for the aged poor.

Born in Dutchess County, N. Y., Sister Pascaline was Frances Leary before she entered the sisterhood. She entered the congregation of the Little Sisters in New York in December, 1886. Several months later she went to the Motherhouse of St. Joseph in LaTour, France, for her novitiate. Here, on July 7, 1890, she took her vows and donned the black, gray and white habit of the Little Sisters of the Poor.

Sister Pascaline then returned to the United States and was assigned to the Home for the Aged here. For the first five years of her service at the Sisters' home, she was in charge of laundry. Those were machineless days and she was faced with the task of providing clean clothes and linens for more than 200 helpless aged persons as well as for the home.

Her next assignment was the one she continued until last December, when she made her last collection trip, to the Bureau of Engraving. That was to seek funds for clothing and food for the charges of the nuns. During most of the last two years, failing health had forced her to remain in the home, where she mended clothing.

Early each morning, with a sister companion, she would start out on her rounds. Before the advent of the automobile she rode in a horse-drawn wagon.

In the evening, she would be found in front of Government buildings, holding her mite box. No matter how small the offering, it was accepted with a "God bless you."

Sister Pascaline was described by other nuns as "very retiring and modest in her work." Her mother superior, Anne de St. Cecile, said of her: "She was always able to help people in trouble by saying the right words of consolation."

In 1940, at the 50th anniversary celebration of her entrance into the sisterhood, the Most Rev. John J. McNamara officiated at the coronation mass, and many high figures of the Catholic church attended to pay homage to her.

Funeral services have been set tentatively for 9 a.m. Friday in the chapel of the Little Sisters of the Poor. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Cathedral Blast Averted

JERUSALEM, Feb. 9 (AP)—An apparent attempt to blow up St. George's Cathedral was disclosed yesterday with discovery of some dynamite in a wall near the gate. A civilian was killed by gunshots from two suspects fleeing from police.

A-6 ** WEDNESDAY, February 9, 1944

It apart from nearly every other land, is that it is made up of many races and many creeds bound together by a single political idea—the idea of freedom under which all of us stand equal before the law, with equal rights and duties.

It is not hard to imagine how Sergeant Kuroki must feel. As an American of Japanese extraction, he has gone on his bombing missions with other Americans of many other extraction—Italian, Jewish, German, Polish, Irish—virtually every extraction.

Under fire, a man's ancestry, what he did before the war, or even his present rank, doesn't matter at all. You're fighting as a team.

America can well afford to listen to Sergeant Kuroki. For, no less than they are needed to make a bomber crew work well, tolerance and co-operation among all groups are needed to make the American system work well.

The high hopes raised among the British and American publics by that spectacular venture were probably never shared by Allied military circles.

Mr. Frey does not defend or condone strikes. He says that they are indefensible and intolerable.

In the main his comments were directed to inept handling of labor problems by Federal agencies.

American labor has been forced to contend with "an almost impossible administrative condition" in our Government.

In the absence of a national labor policy to which labor leaders can look for definite guidance, it has been necessary to deal with some twenty-five agencies.

No reasonable person can doubt that this is a true indictment of the administration's labor procedures.

Whether, at this late date, the setting up of a central labor clearing house, with full authority over industrial problems, would bring an end to strikes is questionable.

Sergeant Kuroki In California the other day, a Nebraska boy named Ben Kuroki said things that should be taken to heart by all Americans.

Ben Kuroki is a sergeant in the United States Army Air Forces—a top turret gunner on a Liberator.

As such, he has become something of a hero, having twice won the Distinguished Flying Cross for doing his duty supremely well on thirty different bombing missions against the enemy in Europe.

Now he is waiting and hoping to be transferred to the South Pacific. Himself of Japanese extraction, he wants very much to help smash the Tojo war machine.

At the same time, too, Sergeant Kuroki wants very much to smash blind prejudice in America.

As he told his California audience, he has had to fight two battles since going into service—one against the Axis and the other against intolerance.

During his early months in the Army, because of his ancestry, he was left bitterly friendless, but he has since won the battle there.

Yet, outside the circle of his comrades-in-arms, back here in the United States, he has learned that the battle must still be fought.

In his own words: "Especially now, after the widespread publicity given the recent atrocity stories, I find prejudice once again directed against me, and neither my uniform nor the medals which are visible proof of what I have been through, have been able to stop it.

I don't know for sure that it is safe for me to walk the streets of my own country."

When Sergeant Kuroki says that, he speaks for a great number of good Americans whose Japanese blood is causing them not a little unhappiness in these days.

And to the degree that this is true, America is not living up to its traditions or to its basic character, for the uniqueness of our land, the thing that sets other nations work out a compact designed to encourage the efficient development, conservation and equitable distribution of the world's petroleum resources.

Misgivings along this line were expressed as recently as last November in a formal report drawn up by a special committee appointed by the petroleum administrator for war.

"Oil operations involve exploration, production, transportation, refining and distribution. Governments entering the oil business in one area will soon find themselves extended, directly and indirectly, into a far-flung complex of international complications transcending the original locus."

Direct participation by the Government of the United States in foreign oil operations, whether alone or in partnership with private corporations, will discourage private enterprise; and will not only increase the political complications, but will retard the orderly development of the world's oil resources.

To avoid international friction and the growth of dangerous rivalries, the national policy of the United States and the national policies of other countries should be co-ordinated.

Of the three possible methods for developing the oil resources of the world—government operations, private enterprise and mixed operations—private enterprise is the surest and soundest choice.

The committee report, of course, does not constitute the last word on the subject, and since it was drawn up by experts from the private American oil industry, it may be said to carry a note of special pleading.

Yet it reflects the opinion of men who are specialists of long experience in the overseas petroleum business and their views cannot lightly be brushed aside.

In entering that business, in however limited a degree, the Government has taken an unprecedented step, and though time may prove the action both necessary and wise, judgment must be reserved at the moment, especially because we do not know whether the national policies of other countries will be co-ordinated with ours.

To avoid international friction and the growth of dangerous rivalries.

Due to the United Nations' stoppage of gasoline to Spain all motor-traffic has been stopped there.

In this crisis, it is hoped that Spain will walk, not drive, to the nearest exit from unneutral neutrality.

Recently a passenger on a railroad slept right through a wreck. If the train had arrived on time, however, the shock would have been severe.

Many a youngster scorned by the older generation in time of peace and told to go fly a kite is now busy saving that same generation by flying a bomber.

This and That

By Charles E. Tracewell. "The little robin grieves when the snow is on the ground.

For the trees have no leaves and no berries can be found.

The air is cold, the worms are hid, for robin here what can he do? Let's throw around some crumbs of bread.

And then he'll live till the snow is gone." —Mother Goose.

This is excellent advice from an authority. It is seldom realized how much attention the old poetry book gave to birds.

It is a good idea to throw out bread crumbs for the first robins, now to appear in numbers.

Already a few have been reported, although in some cases towhees have been mistaken for them.

Perhaps better than bread for robins are raisins, an apple cut in half and bits of suet.

Lists Questions Before Congress Needing Statesmen's Attention

To the Editor of The Star: Champ Clark, Speaker of the House during the Wilson administration, when answering a question...

Editorial on Peace Approach

To the Editor of The Star: My compliments for a very fine editorial, "To Insure a Future Peace," reprinted recently in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

You have the right slant on what is necessary for that peace. I hope you will continue along that line, because the public needs the guidance of reliable information and advice.

If the American people ever learn the lesson, "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," we eventually might eliminate wars and needless strife.

If democracy is to survive, we will need peace.

My best wishes for your continued success. I. STAHLBEHL, St. Louis.

Defends French Language

To the Editor of The Star: On January 16 you reprinted a National Geographic Society map purporting to show the principal languages the men will cope with. It shows nothing of the kind. North Africa is shown as Arabic.

For the American soldier it is solidly French. Central Africa is not shown. We have soldiers there and they are speaking French, Italy, Sicily, and Corsica are blank.

In Corsica the dominant language is French, and Sicily and Italy the soldiers who know French are getting on comfortably by the use of that language.

Europe is left blank except for Spain and Portugal. In those two countries we have no soldiers. If we put any there, they would speak the second language of the country.

spoken by every one who has a high school education. In the Europe toward which our eyes are now turned in expectation of great events, French is the common tongue of almost all persons who are not of the French and Sicily.

Proposes Prayers for 'Our Men'

To the Editor of The Star: I have noted the wave of indignation over the Japanese atrocities, but it seems to me that we have overlooked one thing.

It is well enough to desire to punish the criminals. That, however, is not going to help our men now, rather the reverse.

I have failed to hear any suggestions that we pray for our men, pray that the hearts of those over them be changed, that fairer treatment be given them and their lives saved.

This Changing World

The mightiest naval force ever gathered in any ocean is now concentrated in the Pacific.

The mightiest naval force ever gathered in any ocean is now concentrated in the Pacific. The most powerful battleships and air carriers and the speediest cruisers and destroyers ever built by any nation...

are being placed at the disposal of Admiral Chester W. Nimitz and William F. Halsey. This fleet, supported by the necessary auxiliaries, is being used for the "island-skipping" strategy which is replacing the old concept of island-to-island operations.

The American Navy and private yards have done a job which exceeded the most optimistic expectations so far the time for construction of men of war is concerned.

Before the war the construction of a battleship or a carrier took about four years; cruisers were built in three years and destroyers and submarines in two.

Now, in less than a minimum of 18 months after their keels were laid, in making instances this time has been out in less than half.

The American Fleet in the Atlantic and the Mediterranean has a very specific role to play. Its principal role is to escort convoys and prevent Nazi submarines from sinking them.

In the Mediterranean it is an important auxiliary to the ground forces. But for these activities it does not require any of the powerful modern battleships and cruisers. It can do the job with some of the pre-Pearl Harbor units to which are added modern destroyers and escort vessels.

The Nazi Navy has only a few strong units left. They no longer worry the Allied commanders. In any event, if there is any naval fighting to be done, the British Navy is fully prepared to take care of the situation.

Well-informed Washington quarters expect other important naval operations to take place in the Central Pacific in the next few weeks.

Before the forces of Gen. Douglas MacArthur can start a large-scale offensive certain Japanese strongholds must be reduced. The operations of the combined naval and ground forces under the command of Vice Admiral Raymond Spruance in the Marshall Islands have proved to the American high command that the reported weakness of the Japanese outposts far from their "inner defense circle" was not based on wishful thinking.

The Japanese soldiers still are fighting to the bitter end, but when confronted by an overwhelming power as was placed against them in the Marshalls they are not effective.

It can be expected that operations planned for the near future will be executed with the same overwhelming strength which has the advantage of crushing the enemy with a minimum of sacrifice.

The new attacks will give the central command in Washington time to dispatch to the South Pacific sufficient ground forces and supplies for Gen. MacArthur to undertake major moves.

The chief difficulty encountered by Gen. MacArthur so far has been the lack of supplies. Every barrel of oil and cal-geographical delineations in themselves have become increasingly meaningless.

So if it is advocated that Germany be divided into five states, it is meant that merely five separate political bodies are to be created, or do we also mean five separate economic, currency and educational systems? Is the whole stream of German life to be dammed at five points of frontiers? Just how could that be done, and what would be the effect of trying it, upon the life of Europe as a whole?

Will the division of the Soviet Union into 16 federated states bring about disunity? Obviously not, because the Soviet Union remains united in content. Sixteen Soviet Republics have a customs union, a single social structure and a single system of education—every school child learns the same thing, whether he learns it in German, English, in Ukrainian or in Russian.

All of the Soviet Union will continue to be administered by the Communist party, which is both a caste of administrators and a political priesthood.

And unless it is made impossible for any unifying idea, carried by any common political party, to emerge in post-war Germany, five Germanies, like 16 Soviet Republics may ultimately be not less but more effective in their influence upon Europe than one Germany.

Of course there is a way to split Germany into at least two—German types of states. That is to grant to Communist Russia a sphere of influence in one part and to the Anglo-Americans a sphere in the other—which might happen through the assignment of a trusteeship of occupation. But that could not prevent the transfer of political influences. One set of Germanies would compare with their brothers their personal fates and national possibilities.

EDWARD WILLIAMSON.

Street Photos Deplored

To the Editor of The Star: Why, with the present shortage of film, and the need of our armed forces, must we have boys (who should be otherwise employed) snapping pictures in the streets of Washington?

I have failed to hear any suggestions that we pray for our men, pray that the hearts of those over them be changed, that fairer treatment be given them and their lives saved.

When I enter the last war Mr. Roosevelt (35) was six years younger than Senator Lodge. But he did not resign as Assistant Secretary of the Navy, which was an appointive and not an elective office. And there have been others.

Constantine Brown

gasoline and the bulk of his planes have to come from the United States.

While the transportation problem no longer is as acute as it was early in the war when the Nazi submarines were sinking thousands of tons of shipping every month, the bulk of our oil tankers and merchantmen still are needed for the European theater.

Millions of fighting men in England, Italy and North Africa have to be supplied from the United States. Moreover, shipments of lease-lend goods to Russia, and other countries must continue. In the past only a small number of ships have been available to carry supplies and troops across the Pacific.

As our private yards continue to launch a large number of Victory ships every month the problem becomes easier and Washington sees its way to increase the supplies needed by Gen. MacArthur.

It is hoped that before the summer is over he will be given everything he needs to begin his own show leading the Allied forces toward the main Japanese strongholds in the South Pacific. No one, of course, expects to see Gen. MacArthur recapture the Philippines or the more important Netherlands Indies with the same speed as we are winning the Marshalls.

Hundreds of thousands of Japs are stationed in the large islands which form the main barrier to Tokyo. They have important air and naval bases which they can use successfully against the Allies.

The American headquarters in Australia is however, confident that as soon as the supply lines are opened this summer, the main offensive against the Japanese will not be long delayed.

In the long run each sphere—and its sponsors—would compete for the other. As in Russia, which happens to be one of the poorest parts of Germany, would be in the Russian sphere, there might soon be a resurgence of "Prussianism" with quite new and different slogans.

We who are outside Europe cannot clearly see what is happening there, but we can observe that a class conflict is mounting and cutting across all frontiers. It is not written in the stars that national questions will be the most virulent and profound at the end of this war—which has its roots in struggles of national ideas rather than between nations.

The spirit of the times and the necessities of Europe struggle however blindly toward unification, not toward Balkanization. Five Germanies, therefore, would actually seek to unite themselves under some new idea, or with a unifying idea would struggle in five directions for the integration of all Europe. If by chance any one or two of the five should meanwhile become integrated with the neighboring Soviet Commonwealth, that would exercise an enormous influence on the others and across the others, too, to the rest of Europe.

If I raise these questions, it is only because I think we must break away from the conventional ways of thinking, and the terms of traditional diplomacy, and open our minds to the great range of possibilities that are latent for development in Europe. It is unfair and unwise to pin the epithet of pro-German upon every one who entertains doubts about what may be official policies. The results of policies have too often been the exact opposite of their intent.

family tradition of public service (seven of his direct ancestors have been United States Senators) and with his own ability to carry on that tradition already assured. Yet, without pressure or prodding or any conceivable selfish motive, he throws up a career for which he is eminently suited, in which he is making a real success and for which he has an almost inherited title, to put on a uniform.

Perhaps after the war is over, he may be elected again to the Senate. But no one can tell about that. No one can look forward politically that long. Once out of office it isn't so easy to get back. The incumbent always wants to stay and always has the advantage.

There was no political risk for Senator Lodge in holding on to his seat; the political risk was in giving it up. His Army service, no matter how creditable, may turn out later on to be no more of a political asset than the lack of Army service has been a liability to either Mr. Roosevelt or Mr. Dewey. When the war is over and the full line of heroes, Every State will have them. Just having been in the Army will not mean a particularly advantageous position politically.

Nevertheless, considering the political and uncriticized security of his position in the Senate and the examples furnished by other public men of his age who in the last few years have gone on to that security, Senator Lodge's choice is a pretty fine one. It is refreshing to find one man in public life to whom holding on to his job is not the prime consideration; one man to whom this is not the matter of first importance; one man to whom other things seem paramount.

Those seven senatorial ancestors (most of them on his mother's side) need not feel ashamed of him because he quit the Senate. He is carrying on the tradition all right, and not in his paternal grandfather's groove either.

Here he is, a man with an unmatched

And, certainly, in the case of Mr. Roosevelt, the fact that though only 35 years old and then in perfect physical condition he held on to an unimportant and important Government job instead of seeking active military service not only did not hurt him politically, but has never even been thought of as a criticism by his opponents. Quite obviously, neither he nor Mr. Dewey has ever felt a lack of military record a liability. All of which goes to show that Senator Lodge could have remained comfortably in the Senate without adverse comment or political risk.

That he, recently re-elected and with five more years to serve, should have taken the other course is the more to his credit. It proves, for one thing, that lacking conceit, he does not consider himself an indispensable man. It proves, for another, that he has a pretty high personal standard of conduct—and lives up to it.

There is, in fact, very high precedent for Government officials who, under such circumstances and at service age, chose to stay out of uniform rather than go in. For example, there is the case of President Roosevelt himself. When he entered the last war Mr. Roosevelt (35) was six years younger than Senator Lodge. But he did not resign as Assistant Secretary of the Navy, which was an appointive and not an elective office. And there have been others.

To mention another conspicuous one—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York. Gov. Dewey is just about Mr. Lodge's age now. He was elected Governor in 1942, at the same time that Mr. Lodge was re-elected. Unlike Senator Lodge or Gov. Stassen of Minnesota, who is 37 years old, Mr. Dewey did not resign to go into the armed service.

Undoubtedly his reasons, like those of Mr. Roosevelt, were adequate and there is no room for criticism. And, certainly, neither the voters of New York nor of the country have held it against either of them. Mr. Dewey's success in the 1942 election was repeated in 1943 when his presidential prospects were concededly bound up in the cause of the Republican candidate for Lieutenant Governor, whom he had personally sponsored.

Lesson in Italy

Maj. George Fielding Eliot

We have just had another lesson, from Italy, to teach us the difficulty, almost the impossibility, of stopping traffic on a railway line by bombing.

Despite a truly terrific pounding of the railway junctions and yards south of Rome and of key railway points throughout North Central Italy, the Germans have managed to move reinforcements down to the beachhead area south of Rome.

Our air power did win us delay, however; it took two weeks for the Germans to bring the 715th Division from Southeastern France, and the SS troops from Germany, whereas, without the bombings of the railways, these might have arrived in four or five days.

(Incidentally, it is possible that "715" is not the number of a division, but only that of a regiment. It is a much higher number than any I have previously seen attributed to a German division.)

At all events, the initial German counterattacks on our beachhead have failed, which suggests that our troops must have entered the area in great numbers, but dug in very thoroughly indeed. One correspondent on the spot,

Lesson in Italy

whose early dispatches suggested that precious opportunities were being wasted because mobile columns were not being sent dashing ahead into Rome or at least to the railway junctions south of the city, now says more soberly that it is clear that any troops sent out for such a purpose would have been lost. In the successful accomplishment of the landing, it was inevitable that many of those taking part should have been impeded by a "dig in and consolidate" policy; but perhaps it will pay better in the end.

The Germans will, very certainly, try again. They probably will do so as soon as a few more troops have filtered down from the north through the precarious routes at which our bombers are still striking whenever weather permits. But there seems to be reason for confidence that the beachhead will hold. If so, then shall we see it heavily reinforced, and see a decisive advance across the German communications? Possibly. But in that case, we probably shall see first an expansion of the beachhead itself to the northward, so that it will include the port of Ostia.

A well-equipped port, with wharves and other facilities, is essential to supply of a large landing force. Those who recall the articles of this series on the landings in North Africa, Sicily and Southern Italy will remember how important the early seizure of the seaports entered in the last war. Mr. Roosevelt (35) was six years younger than Senator

Lodge. But he did not resign as Assistant Secretary of the Navy, which was an appointive and not an elective office. And there have been others.

'Ominibian' Warfare

U. S. Seizure of Marshall Islands Followed Months of Secret Planning

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

Months of planning under conditions of the utmost secrecy preceded the successful seizure of the Marshall Islands. The coordination of Army and Navy, of land and air and sea power was carried out according to plan in what may prove to be the first example of what has been called "ominibian" warfare.

The bombardment which the United States Navy gave the Marshall Islands was terrific. It was probably the most devastating bombardment ever made in such a small area by naval forces. The islands were literally plastered with shells. The Japanese who were not killed outright were so dazed and shocked by the shelling that the few prisoners taken were almost insane with fright.

David Lawrence.

How did the operations in the Marshalls differ from those in and around the Gilberts? There was a fierce naval bombardment in the Gilberts, too, and in both cases bombardment by land-based planes and planes from aircraft carriers played a decisive part. But in the landing on the Marshalls mobile artillery was brought ashore and put into effective use promptly so that the Japanese got it from the air, from the sea and from the land—bombardment probably unparalleled in modern war.

Fleet Size Secret.
The composition of the American fleet must remain a secret. It is doubtful whether the Japanese communication facilities remained effective long enough to make any kind of coherent report of what happened—what kind of a fleet was sent against them. The heavy guns of battleships boomed in the area, but just how many or what heavy cruisers or light cruisers were used will not be revealed. It is permissible to say that the size of the fleet was by no means determined by the need for shelling the Marshalls, but was based on a remote possibility that the Japanese fleet might come down to do battle just as the operations began.

The fact that a small task force of American warships attacked Paramushiro, just west of the Aleutians, is considered in some quarters as "diversionary" attack, meant to divert attention from the real objective—the Marshalls. The Japanese, however, know how vulnerable they are to attack from the Aleutian bases and it may be doubted whether the attack was isolated. Doubtless more attacks will be forthcoming in the northwest corner of the Pacific as well as in the South and Southwest Pacific, so that the Japanese will soon have to make up their minds whether they will abandon more and more garrisons or make an attempt to reinforce them.

It is reliably reported that many Japanese units are literally starving to death. It is doubtful whether in recent weeks supplies could get into the Marshalls from Japanese bases. The tendency of the Japanese high command to abandon their overseas garrisons when they are blocked by the American Navy is growing.

Havoc Wrought on Ships.
Incidentally, the havoc being wrought by American submarines against Japanese shipping is not told in the simple statistics of tonnage destroyed. An acute form of blockade has been carried out by our submarines. Also it is known that our task forces in and around the Marshalls and Gilberts have been aided materially by the submarine blockade.

The part played by the Army Air Forces in carrying huge quantities of bombs to the Marshalls in the weeks preceding the seizure is another chapter of the story that cannot be told in full for some time to come. It is sufficient to say that the Army Air Force and the artillery and ground troops of the Army and the ever-present Marine Corps have worked together as a team with the Navy's big ships and aircraft carrier forces in a synchronization of effort that spells in due time the doom of Japan.

Valuable experience is being gained in how to approach the atolls held by the Japanese and if the Japanese fleet does not risk a decisive battle earlier, the American Navy and the Air Force and ground troops of the Army and Marine Corps will be repeating during 1944 and 1945 in the Carolines and the Mariannas and in the Philippines some of the lessons learned and plans used in seizing the Gilberts and the Marshalls.

The most powerful Navy ever assembled in the Pacific and perhaps anywhere in modern times is on the move now. Naval operations do not come rapidly but what they accomplish nevertheless is a progressive march toward the ultimate victory. (Reproduction Rights Reserved)

Florida Flyer Becomes Leading Ace in Europe

LONDON, Feb. 9.—Maj. Walter G. Beckham of De Puniak Springs, Fla., shot down two more Nazi planes yesterday and became the leading American ace in the European theater of operations with a total of 18.

The figure is eight short of Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker's World War record of 26.

Until yesterday Maj. Beckham was tied with Capt. Walker M. Mahurin of Fort Wayne, Ind.

Katz Denies Ship Lag Is Proof of Need For Labor Draft

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 9.—Rear Admiral Emory S. Land's contention that a sharp ship construction decline in January is an argument for national service legislation was attacked yesterday by a CIO official, who quoted the admiral as saying on January 24 that production schedules had been slashed by the Maritime Commission.

Sidney R. Katz, secretary-treasurer of the Maryland-District of Columbia Industrial Union Council, asked in a prepared statement:

"Was that production decline deliberately planned by some one so that it could provide an appealing background for (for) Admiral Land's proposal that national service legislation is the 'solution' to production problems in the shipyard?"

Turnover Criticized by Land.
The admiral, chairman of the Maritime Commission, reported in Washington Thursday that a January production decline to 124 from 208 in December could not "keep pace with the needs of the armed forces." Admiral Land termed "entirely too great" a 96-per-cent turnover in shipyard jobs during 1943.

Mr. Katz, stating that "the admiral will have to do some explaining about this statement," said Admiral Land earlier had told CIO shipyard workers "that the schedules had been cut by the Maritime Commission."

Admiral Land's statement was made in defense of the Bethlehem-Fairfield shipyard," Mr. Katz said, "at a meeting of workers 'who complained about the drop in production in January' at the yard, builder of Liberty ships."
Inquiry Promise Recalled.
"It is two weeks now since Admiral Land promised to investigate CIO complaints about falling production at Bethlehem-Fairfield," Mr. Katz's statement declared.
The union official said that although newspapers had reported that the investigation would be made jointly by the Maritime Commission and the War Manpower Commission and the War Production Board, the Baltimore heads of the agencies "have heard nothing more about it . . . and are in no way participating in any kind of survey. Why not?"

By FREDERICK J. HASKIN.
Q. How many States have had membership in the League of Nations?—D. R. P.
A. Sixty-three nations have at one time or another been members.
Q. In what race did three horses finish in a dead heat?—S. P. B.
A. This occurred on August 22, 1943, at Agua Caliente, Mexico, when Pan Full, Maestro Sascha and Bill Mole reached the wire simultaneously in the fourth race.
Q. Is the Japanese language being taught in the territory conquered by the Japanese?—V. E. C.
A. According to various reports, the Japanese language has been forced upon the peoples of Greater East Asia. Thousands of language classes have been set up and it is taught in the schools.
Q. Do prisoners of war in Germany receive mail?—W. R. D.
A. Mail may be sent to such prisoners and is delivered subject to certain restrictions. The Post Office Department says that letters or parcels bearing patriotic slogans such as "V for Victory," "Win the War" and the like are confiscated by the German authorities. It is advisable, therefore, to hand all mail for prisoners of war in Germany to employes in local post offices for inspection to insure delivery.
Q. How does an English barrister differ from other lawyers?—L. F. D.
A. A barrister is a lawyer who pleads in the higher courts and acts as a consultant. He does not deal directly with the public but is employed by a solicitor who prepares for him a brief or summary of the client's case.

13 More Jap Planes Downed in Big Allied Attack on Rabaul

By the Associated Press.
ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Feb. 9.—Allied airmen have shot down 13 more Japanese planes over Rabaul, New Britain, bringing to 111 the number of enemy aircraft reported destroyed there so far this month and putting this Japanese South Pacific bastion high on the list of suicide assignments for the Mikado's pilots.
 Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique today said Mitchell medium bombers and Liberator heavies, with fighter cover—more than 150 planes—struck Lakunai Airdrome at midday Sunday with 124 tons of bombs. The planes were from Admiral William F. Halsey's bases in the Solomon Islands.
 It was the seventh raid on Rabaul since February 1 and the fifth on Lakunai Field.
 Airdrome repair shops and revetments were blown up or set afire, and aside from the 13 enemy planes positively accounted for, the attackers chalked up 10 probables. Damage to Allied craft was minor, the communique said.
 January communiqués reported more than 400 Japanese aircraft destroyed and 132 more probably destroyed against an Allied loss of at least 78.

Marshalls

 days after Kwajalein was invaded January 31.
 It can now be disclosed that on February 5, Admiral Nimitz stood at the invasion scene—about 2,500 miles from Tokio—and observed:
 Henceforth it will be very difficult for the Japanese to use the Marshalls as bases—even for submarines.
 The victory will "serve to speed up the tempo" of the Pacific war.
 It "definitely shortens communications to the South Pacific and the Southwest Pacific."
 "It is a great pleasure that we did it with such small losses (286 American dead—8,122 Japanese)."
 Japanese plane strength, particularly naval air power, obviously is considerably under its peak.
 The enemy lacks destroyers "to escort their supply convoys or to make up an adequate battle fleet."
 However, Admiral Nimitz firmly believes that Japan cannot be defeated from the sea alone and said yesterday, after returning from the Kwajalein inspection, that his objective is "to get our ground and air forces into China as early as possible."
 To correspondents at a press conference he remarked "the Japs can only be defeated from bases in China," and, although giving no indication of such an offensive time table, added:
 "I think that if you'll watch the communiques, you'll see us moving on."

 He hinted strongly that his Navy, Army and Marine Corps forces intended to take a leading part in the China offensive.
 Latest pictures and press dispatches from Kwajalein portrayed graphically how complete was the preparatory devastation wrought by battleship guns, bombing planes and artillery.
 One photograph taken by Frank Flinn, Associated Press cameraman representing the wartime still picture pool, showed broken concrete and twisted steel that once was a three-story enemy blockhouse. Another showed a half dozen bodies of Japanese lying near the remnants of a pillbox.
Attackers Go Ashore Quickly.
 Lief Erickson, Associated Press war correspondent who went ashore with United States 7th Army division forces on Kwajalein Island, said the preparation was so deadly that all assault waves were able to get ashore within half an hour. As one evidence of the destruction, he reported that twin-mounted 6-inch naval guns had been blown off the mount into the emplacement pit.
 Technical Sgt. Walter C. Cochran, a marine combat correspondent, also on Kwajalein Island, said shells and bombs sent pieces of concrete sailing "through the air like bits of paper."
 "What was once the island's air-

Tokio Radio Reports U. S. Labor Unrest

By the Associated Press.
 Reflecting the close attention with which American labor problems are followed in Axis countries, the Tokio radio today broadcast these two items which the Domei News Agency said had been received via Lisbon:
 (1) "A dispatch from Fall River, Mass., said that the United States Army took over operation of seven textile plants last night at the direction of Roosevelt, owing to a strike by independent unions which strip looked like a field plowed with a giant hook," he reported.

 In contrast with Japanese success in remaining alive in underground shelters in the Gilberts, the devastation on Kwajalein even searched them out in big reinforced caves.
 William L. Worden, Associated Press war correspondent, quoted a captain who visited one such cave as saying, "The place was a horrible mess, with dead Japs all around."
 The Kansas City truck drivers, members of Local No. 41, an AFL truck drivers' union, returned to work this morning after a 24-hour layoff. Their return was urgently requested yesterday by Government officials and an Army officer.

 They had stopped work in protest of a ruling of the WLB's National Trucking Commission denying them a 5-cent hourly wage increase. A key rate of 73 cents an hour is in effect. The drivers agreed to return to work pending further negotiations.

Commons Concerned Over U. S. Pipeline Along Persian Gulf

LONDON, Feb. 9.—British concern over proposed construction of an American pipeline from the Persian Gulf to the Mediterranean was reflected in Commons today when Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the House he is expecting a report from Lord Halifax, Ambassador to the United States.

Asked by Capt. Leonard David if the project meant the United States would acquire sovereignty over the territory occupied by the pipeline, Mr. Eden said he had no statement to make at present.

The Foreign Secretary answered "Yes, sir," however, when Emanuel Shinwell asked whether the British government "ought not to be consulted" on a subject that "so profoundly concerns the interests of this country and commonwealth."

Mr. Eden said the pipeline project is still in a preliminary stage and "it is obvious that before it comes to fruition, consultations will be necessary with all the governments concerned."

The British government is studying the demand of Italian political parties for the abdication of King Victor Emmanuel, Mr. Eden said. He did not disclose what action Britain plans to take.

Mr. Eden gave no reply when Laborite Aneurin Bevan demanded: "How many more British and American lives are to be lost in keeping the King of Italy on his throne?"

William J. Lytle Dies; Navigation Law Expert

William J. Lytle, retired assistant commissioner of navigation at the Commerce Department, died Monday at his home, 1852 Columbia road N.W., after a brief illness.

A native of Wadsworth, Ohio, Mr. Lytle had lived in Washington for more than 50 years. He attended Michigan Law School and received his LL. B. from the Columbia Law School (now George Washington University).

Mr. Lytle, a member of the District bar, first worked at the Treasury Department and later was transferred to the Commerce Department. After retiring as assistant navigation commissioner in 1932, he devoted much of his time to research preparatory to publishing a book on the history and laws of navigation.

He was well known in golf circles here and was a charter member of the Columbia Country Club.

Funeral services will be held at 4:30 p.m. tomorrow at Gawler's funeral home, 1756 Pennsylvania avenue N.W. Dr. J. Hillman Hollister, pastor of the Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church, will officiate. The body will be sent to Wadsworth for burial.

Coroner to Investigate Two Slayings Tomorrow

Two colored men, held in two separate killings, will face a coroner's jury tomorrow. Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald announced today.

William Copeland of the 2700 block of Sherman avenue N.W., charged with shooting his sister-in-law, Mrs. Dora M. Johnson, last week, was arrested in New York and returned to Washington last night. Mrs. Johnson died in Garfield Hospital shortly after she was shot.

Irving N. Parker, 33, of the 400 block of V street N.W., who was free in $1,500 bail on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon, was rearrested last night when John N. Harris, 50, colored, of the same address, died in Freedman's Hospital.

War Bonds

were: Tennessee, 51; Nebraska, 51; Washington, 50; Ohio, 47.7; Massachusetts, 42.8; Indiana, 40.7, and New Jersey, 40.3.

Division bond chairmen in the District Government were told yesterday by Budget Officer Walter L. Fowler, bond chief for the municipal departments, that "co-operation and progress at this point is far from satisfactory."

Only $333,125, or 33 per cent of the $1,002,159 quota has been raised. Mr. Fowler reported, 2,989 of the District Government's 15,109 employees have participated. Many of the offices, however, had so far failed to report, it was pointed out.

District employees held a bond rally in the board room of the District Building yesterday afternoon.

Other bond activities included:

A rally will be held at 8:45 o'clock tonight by the Lions Club at the Tivoli Theater, Fourteenth street and Park road N.W. The program will be headed by Charles Mayer and his all-girl orchestra and the war dog, "Rebel."

The Ahepa organization reported today its bond drive at the Statler Hotel Monday night netted $100,000 in sales, bringing the Greek society's total for the campaign to $380,000.

Fred Thomas, manager of the Edin Theater, said the drive to sell a bond for every seat was successful yesterday with the sale of the 2,544th bond. Loew's Columbia Theater has already chalked up a 20 per cent record.

The "Treasure Hunt" among pupils of the public schools will begin tomorrow when the children begin canvassing their neighborhoods to induce residents to fill and turn in bonds partly filled War Stamp books.

Nylon Still Available.

Meyer Revitz, manager of Washington's Haberdashery, at Eleventh and F streets N.W., reported that he still had 115 pairs of nylon hosiery to be given away with the purchase of $1,000 bonds at his store during the remainder of the week.

Dairymen, through Saturday, had subscribed $20,000 worth of bonds, according to T. E. Rogers, chairman of the dairies group.

Bond meetings scheduled today include:

Chevy Chase Citizens' Association, 8 p.m., at 5022 Connecticut avenue N.W., with Pvt. Jack Indictor as speaker, three meetings of the Welfare and Recreational Association, between 3:30 and 4:30 p.m., at the Independence Cafeteria, Seventh street and Independence avenue S.W., with Maj. Harriet West speaking, and the District Medical Society, at 8:15 p.m., at 1718 M street N.W., with Attorney Edward Curran as speaker.

Examiners Urge CAB To Extend Airlines To Smaller Cities

Two examiners recommended today that the Civil Aeronautics Board take steps immediately toward expansion of air service to small cities, but that consideration of proposals involving helicopters be deferred "until such time as commercial helicopters are available."

The recommendations were made by Examiners William J. Madden and Albert E. Bettel on the basis of a hearing conducted last fall during an investigation of local feeder and pickup air service.

They cautioned against expectations that air transportation could be made available immediately at every urban community, explaining that it appeared "unlikely that any considerable expansion predicated upon providing service into small cities can be accomplished without mail pay exceeding reasonable compensation for mail service rendered."

Among the recommendations were these:

1. Extension of air transport to small cities should be accomplished in part by adding points to existing "main line" air routes and in part by granting routes to new carriers committed to a policy of economical operation suited to feeder line service.
2. No general expansion of air service using only pickup operations should be authorized, except when postal service needs require it; pickup operations should be combined with passenger operations.
3. Single engine airplanes with one pilot should be authorized to operate in a combination pickup and passenger service.
4. To assure economical operation of feeder routes, a 25-cent-per-mile maximum should be established for carrying mail.
5. A separate classification for feeder air carriers should be established so as to distinguish their function from that of trunk airlines; a balance between the operations of each class should be maintained, with trunk lines limited to cities of 25,000 or more.

WFA Fights to Save Butter 'Bank Reserve' For Future Needs

The War Food Administration is waging a "behind-the-scenes" fight to hold a 20,000,000-pound "bank reserve" of butter for possible emergency needs by the military forces or foreign relief agencies, lease-lend or American civilians.

Pressure is being exerted by consumer and trade groups and some Government leaders to release this reserve to civilians now, but the Food Administration is resisting it.

Requests for release of WFA stocks developed after publication of reports that the Government held about 130,000,000 pounds of butter February 1, and that additional supplies were being brought in from Argentina.

The WFA said that all but 20,000,000 pounds of the Government stocks had been earmarked for war programs. The 20,000,000-pound stock is being held in what is called a "contingency reserve."

Necessity Outlined.

Government stocks were accumulated during the heavy production season of 1943, and officials said that if the 20,000,000-pound stock were released now, Government purchases would have to be 20,000,000 pounds heavier during the coming heavy production season, with the result that there would be smaller civilian supplies later.

As to the Argentine butter, they explained that was being used to supply the United Nations merchant marine calling at American ports, and if part of these supplies were made available to civilians, future merchant marine requirements would have to come out of future civilian supplies.

Because of the seasonal variation in production, it is necessary, officials explained, that Government management of butter supplies be put on a year-long basis, with the Government acquiring needs during the heavy production season and withdrawing from the market during the low production season.

Frozen Food Quota Upped.

Meanwhile, WFA estimated that civilians will get approximately 28,000,000 pounds more frozen vegetables during the year than were available in 1943. With the 1943-44 production for all purposes expected to reach an all-time record of 233,000,000 pounds, frozen weight, by June 30, civilians should receive approximately 158,000,000 pounds. Vegetables usually frozen include snap beans, lima beans, corn kernels, peas, spinach, asparagus, broccoli, Brussels sprouts, cauliflower and corn on the cob. The biggest increase promises to be in peas, lima beans, spinach and snap beans, WFA said.

WFA also announced an allocation of 7,500,000 bags of milled rice for civilians this year. This will make available about 6 pounds a person, slightly less per capita than civilians have been consuming.

Miss Kellems Asserts U. S. Treads Nazi Path

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 9.—Vivien Kellems, the woman who has refused to pay taxes on her war plant earnings until after the war, said today the United States has "traveled far on the road which led to the destruction of Germany."

In a speech before the Philadelphia Rotary Club, she said, "We are but one step removed in this country from the firing squad and the concentration camp."

Reporting that she has been "violently smeared" for advocating, in a Kansas City speech, that other business classes should be maintained in order to build postwar reserves, Miss Kellems denied advocating "anything illegal."

"When a taxpayer cannot pay the tax, the collector allows him to wait until such time as he can pay, and per cent interest is charged for this non-payment," she said. "When I was informed that for 6 per cent interest I could save my business, I decided to do so . . ."

Hospital Benefit Planned

A bingo party to raise funds for the Prince Georges General Hospital at Cheverly will be given by the Decatur Heights Community Club, February 22 at the St. Luke's Parish Hall, Bladensburg, it has been announced.

OPA at Peak of Benefit To Public, Bowles Reports

The Nation's price control program is now at the point of "greatest good to the greatest number," and the aim hereafter will be to keep prices at current levels, Price Administrator Chester Bowles said last night.

Mr. Bowles in a radio address said he realized that "there are a few in all groups . . . who aren't doing as well as the majority under present price ceilings."

"But to attempt to further from out these few remaining inequities," he added, "would be to risk wrecking our entire network of price levels. No system of wartime controls on such a vast scale can ever be perfect."

Nazi Embassy Clerk Surrenders to Allies

ISTANBUL, Feb. 9.—A German who deserted the Nazis and surrendered to the British several days ago was officially identified by Allied spokesmen today as Erich Vermehren, clerk to the military attaché in the German Embassy here and a son of the German author, Petra Vermehren.

Vermehren's wife, the former Countess Elisabeth Plettenberg, accompanied him. His mother is now in Lisbon.

The 24-year-old attaché and his wife declared they deserted the Germans because they were disgusted with Nazi brutality. He is said to possess detailed information of greatest value. At the German Embassy he served directly under Dr. Paul Lovaguel, assistant military attaché in Turkey.

Vermehren said he and his wife reached Allied-controlled territory despite every effort by Germans in Turkey to apprehend him. Under investigation by the Gestapo, he disappeared several days ago. German Ambassador Franz von Papen interrupted a vacation in the Bursa Mountains to rush back to Istanbul to direct an investigation of his disappearance.

Kidnaped Baby Found 65 Miles From Scene

DENVER, Feb. 9.—A husky, 16-month-old boy, kidnaped last night at Denver's Union Station, was found on a doorstep at Fort Collins, 65 miles north of here, several hours later and was returned to his mother, Mrs. Lucille Rose Horn, 22, of Strasburg, Ill.

Mrs. Horn said she left the baby, Mrs. Lynn Horn, in the care of an unidentified woman and went into the station restaurant for a cup of coffee. The woman and baby were gone when she returned, she said.

The child, apparently none the worse for his experience, was found by W. E. McKinney on his doorstep in Fort Collins.

Police Chief O. P. Kelley of Fort Collins said an arrest was expected soon.

Mrs. Horn was en route home from San Francisco, where she visited her husband, James G. Horn, a Navy man.

Bataan Relief Group Urges Heavier Allied Drive Against Japs

The Nation's primary war aim must be the rescue of the survivors of Bataan and Corregidor and a drive on to Tokio, representatives of groups working for the relief of American prisoners captured in the Philippines declared yesterday on their arrival in Washington for two meetings under their organization.

Dr. V. H. Spensley, Albuquerque, N. Mex., founder of the Bataan Relief organization, said: "The White House has said that it is impossible to get relief to our boys in Japanese hands, so the only thing to do is to get them out."

He explained the various groups were meeting in Washington to coordinate their plans so they will be "all working along the same line."

He added he planned to offer a petition or resolution at the meeting asking each group to urge Congress to speed action for a major offensive against the Japanese.

Albert McArthur, president of the American Bataan Clan, Maywood, Ill., emphasized that the release of the account of Japanese atrocities on American survivors had intensified the demand of the American people for a major offensive against the Japanese.

The groups were to meet this afternoon in the conference room of the Washington Building, Fifteenth and New York avenue N.W., under the sponsorship of the Organization Committee for the Bataan Relief Foundation and Philippine Relief.

Guest speakers at tomorrow's meeting at the Mount Vernon Methodist Church will include Senator Chavez, Democrat, of New Mexico; Chairman Reynolds of the Senate Military Affairs Committee, and Representative Knutson, Republican, of Minnesota.

Representatives of 37 Bataan relief organizations from 16 States will attend the meetings. Dr. Spensley will preside.

Mrs. Rose Millard, 75, D. C. Educator, Dies

Mrs. Rose E. Millard, 75, co-founder of the Millard Preparatory School, died last night at her residence, 1918 N street N.W. She had been ill for two months.

Mrs. Millard came to Washington in 1923 with her husband, the late Homer Millard. Two years later she and her son, Col. Homer B. Millard, founded the school, a preparatory school for West Point. Mrs. Millard had not been active at the school for the past seven years.

Born in Eugene, Ore., Mrs. Millard was a graduate of the State Normal School and the University of Oregon. She taught for 10 years in the public elementary and high schools before coming to Washington. She attended the First Christian Science Church at Columbia road and Euclid street N.W.

Besides her son Mrs. Willard is survived by four sisters, Mrs. J. S. Medley, Eugene, Ore.; Mrs. A. W. Wallace, Portland, Ore.; Mrs. Robert Gross, Long Beach, Calif.; and Mrs. A. C. Miller, Ashland, Ore., and a brother, Frank Hanson, also of Eugene.

Private funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. tomorrow at the Hysong funeral home. Following cremation, the ashes will be taken to Oregon.

Col. Mills Hit by Auto; Receives Broken Leg

Col. Ben W. Mills, 50, of 2017 Klinge road N.W., received a broken leg when struck by an automobile while crossing Adams Mill road, near his home, early today. He was taken to Walter Reed Hospital.

Nation Can't Afford Postwar Output Fall, Arnold Warns Bar

High costs and low production are a luxury America cannot afford after the war, Justice Thurman Arnold of the Court of Appeals for the District last night told 400 members of the District Bar Association as he urged a new industrial democracy stressing decentralization.

"Cartels," he asserted, "can work only under a dictatorship. Repeal of our antitrust laws are held essential by British mechanized industry to postwar economic collaboration. Free enterprise means giving a new man the chance to make a million dollars, not restricting this opportunity solely to those who already have made a fortune."

New Age in Light Metals.

A new age of light metals and chemical developments means industry will start up in new places after the war, Justice Arnold emphasized. "I have not lost faith in industrial democracy, even if many businessmen are sold on the Karl Marx theory of the inevitability of centralization in the machine age," he asserted.

He envisioned a "concerted move to cartelize transportation to protect a railroad investment of $26,000,000,000. Airlines will give railroads freight and passenger competition but they, too, don't want much competition among themselves." Domination of postwar production, he said, will be an economic struggle between "vested interests and independent technicians."

Justice H. W. Edgerton, Justice Arnold's colleague, suggested that appellate judges stop the practices of writing lengthy opinions, a view shared by Judge Oscar Bland of the United States Court of Claims.

Justice Justin Miller said it would be interesting to take a poll among District lawyers on this subject, provided lawyers would agree to shorten their own briefs and petitions when advocating this course "for the other fellow."

Predicts Rise in Appeals.

Justice Miller, after reviewing the work of the tribunal of which he is a member, predicted a larger volume of appeals would arise after the war as a condition growing out of war contracts, property held by the alien property custodian, and interpretation of wartime legislation.

Former Justice Fred Vinson, now

Julian I. Richards, 50, Dies; Was Assistant United States Attorney

Julian Imbrie Richards, 50, prominent lawyer and former assistant United States attorney for the District of Columbia, died yesterday at Mount Alto Hospital after several months' illness.

As assistant United States attorney from 1929 to 1934, Mr. Richards prosecuted many criminal cases. Among the most notable was that of Charles Harris, convicted of first-degree murder in the shooting of "Millsie" Henry, gambler, and sentenced to death in 1932. Harris maintained he was innocent and that he was in New York when the murder was committed. He won a series of reprieves and finally was pardoned by President Roosevelt in 1940.

When Mr. Richards resigned in 1934, Leslie C. Garnett, then United States attorney, said: "Your career as assistant United States attorney has been marked by fairness, courage and ability. You have successfully prosecuted many cases, and many of the most notorious criminals who have appeared in our courts for some years."

Native of Maryland, Mr. Richards had been a resident of the Washington area for many years. He lived at 4 West Blackthorne street, Chevy Chase, Md.

A graduate of Georgetown University in the class of 1922, he was admitted to the District Bar that year. He engaged in private practice here after resigning as assistant United States attorney and was professor of criminal law and law of bailments and carriers at National University law school.

A lieutenant in the 110th Field Artillery of the 29th Division during the World War, Mr. Richards was active in veterans' organizations. At the time of his death he was senior vice commander of the Bethesda-Chevy Chase Post, No. 105, American Legion and a member of the Volunte Local, No. 265, Forty and Eight. He also belonged to the American Bar and District Bar Associations.

Funeral Rites Tomorrow.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Louise Richards; two daughters, Misses Barbara J. and Elizabeth A. Richards, and a son, Lt. Julian Richards Jr., U. S. A. F., stationed at Randolph Field, Texas.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at the Reuben Pumphrey funeral home, 7557 Wisconsin avenue, Bethesda, Md. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Honorary pallbearers will be Julius Lulliey and the following committee named by Milton W. King, president of the District Bar Association: Walter Bastian, Samuel P. Beach, J. Edgar Burroughs, Jr., Lowry N. Coe, Paul B. Cromelin, Leslie C. Garnett, Irvin Goldstein and Leo A. Rover.

Elizabeth S. Hatton, Friend of Lincoln, Dies in 100th Year

A woman who knew President Lincoln and who had been prominent in Washington life from Civil War days until the death of her husband near the end of the century, died yesterday in her 100th year.

She was Mrs. Elizabeth Snyder Hatton, widow of Frank Hatton, an early owner of the Washington Post. Mrs. Hatton collapsed a week ago in her Chatham Court apartment at 1707 Columbia road N.W. An early convert to Christian Science, she took great pride that her advanced age and activity were without benefit of medicine.

Mrs. Hatton was born in Iowa in December, 1844. Her marriage brought her to Washington. Her husband was a close friend of Robert Todd Lincoln, the President's son, and because of that came to know the President during Civil War years.

Her husband, who was active in politics, was First Assistant Postmaster General during the Arthur administration. Together with Beriah Wilkins, a Representative from Ohio,

Mr. Hatton bought the Post in 1869 from Silas H. Hutchinson, who had started it in 1877. Mr. Hatton died five years later, and his interest was sold to Mr. Wilkins.

Richard Hatton, a son, who was financial editor of the Washington Herald for 12 years, died in 1898. Mrs. Hatton is survived only by a niece and a nephew, Edith Elizabeth and Henry Evans Snyder of Fairfield, Iowa.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow in her apartment. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

HENDERSON, WILLIAM. A tribute of love to the late WILLIAM HENDERSON, who entered into eternal rest February 9, 1934, at Falls Church, Va.

Gone are the steps we loved so dear,
Silent the voice we loved to hear.
Too far away for sight to reach,
But not too far for thoughts to reach.

WATKINS, LOTTIE R. In memory of my mother, LOTTIE R. WATKINS, who departed this life four years ago today, February 9, 1940.

Why should we weep when mother's at rest
In the bosom of Jesus Supreme.
In the mansion of glory prepared for the dead.
For death is no more than a dream.

Vatican Stands Firm On Giving Refuge After Basilica Search

LONDON, Feb. 9.—The Vatican radio, commenting on the Fascist raid on St. Paul's Basilica last Thursday in which 64 Italian officers and Jews given sanctuary there were arrested, said last night the church would never yield in offering charity to every one.

The radio, in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press, referred to "hospitality granted the arrested persons" and said: "It is not a paradox, nor is it absurd that the church is for everybody and for nobody. Charity is above human constitutions. On this point the priest can never yield. It is the demarcation line between good and evil. Men of honest views will permit us to continue with it."

The Vatican radio earlier had reported that armed Fascist guards of Mussolini's government violated the Vatican's extraterritorial rights by forcing their way into the basilica, outside the Vatican City, and searched it from cellar to roof, talking with them the men they found.

The Rome radio, answering Monday's Vatican criticisms, said war material stolen from the Italian Army was seized in the raid and added: "The Osservatore Romano (Vatican newspaper) confuses extraterritorial rights with immunity just at a time when Negroes of Gen. Clark's army run through Italian streets."

Grew Warns Japs May Offer Soft Peace

By the Associated Press. Joseph C. Grew, former Ambassador to Tokio, warned today against a "sugar-coated" compromise peace offer from Japan and declared victory in the Pacific industry, he told the Senate Military Affairs Committee.

Fire at Toronto Airfield Causes $370,000 Damage

TORONTO, Feb. 9.—A fire which blazed through two hangars and repair shops at Barker Airfield yesterday destroyed or damaged 35 small RCAF training planes and caused damage estimated at $370,000.

killed 14 of them and captured 6. The rest of the Nazis fled, abandoning their flame-throwers. Five German planes were shot down during the day. Medium bombers, besides hammering Glettern, bombed the rail yards at Siena north of Rome.

'Georgie Porgie' Sues to Block Use of Picture

By the Associated Press. COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa, Feb. 9.—"Georgie Porgie" is an Army Air Force trainee now, and he doesn't want to be known as "Georgie Porgie" any more.

That was the substance of a suit filed yesterday for Alfred Francis Savage, 19, seeking to enjoin the use of the picture of here from using his picture, taken when he was about 5 years old, on boxes of cereal and other company products.

tion on the WLB, as have the AFL and CIO, which he described as "organizational enemies." A determination to obtain such representation was made by a major motive behind the strike.

The MESA head, called under subpoena with eight other officers of the union, said it was unjust that their "organizational enemies" should sit as judges in decisions affecting unaffiliated unions like his.

Claiming that his union was fighting for its life, Mr. Smith said "We cannot long exist under that setup." Then, firing a broadside at board policy, Mr. Smith declared: "As a matter of policy or indolence the board never takes action on a grievance while the men are on their jobs, and they never act on a grievance while the men are not on their jobs. I want to protest against what I call being pushed around."

Infant's Life in Balance As Scarce Serum Is Sought

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 9.—The life of 13-month-old Anna Bradley, critically ill of a rare disease, hung in the balance today while physicians searched the country for a scarce serum which they say is her only hope.

By the Associated Press. President Roosevelt yesterday signed a proclamation putting into effect repeal of the Chinese Exclusion Act and fixing a Chinese immigration quota of 105 persons a year.

Funeral Rites Held For Arthur Keith, 79, Prominent Geologist

Funeral services for Arthur Keith, 79, noted geologist and former president of the Geological Society of America who died Monday, were held today at Gawler's funeral home, 1756 Pennsylvania avenue N.W.

Born in St. Louis, a descendant of John Alden, Mr. Keith was the son of Harrison Alonzo and Mary Elizabeth (Richardson) Keith. His mother was said to be the first woman college graduate in the United States. She was graduated from Antioch College, Yellow Springs, Ohio.

Entered Harvard at 16. After being graduated from Adams Academy in Quincy, Mr. Keith entered Harvard University when 16. He received his B.S. degree cum laude in 1885 and his M.A. in 1887. He took postgraduate work at the Lawrence Scientific School at Harvard in 1887.

While at Harvard he was heavyweight wrestling champion, No. 2 in the varsity crew and a letter man at football. His first job after graduation was with the Massachusetts State Topographical Survey. Shortly after that, he joined the United States Geological Survey, and went to Tennessee to begin a survey of the Appalachian Mountains.

He had illustrated numerous books on architecture, translated French artillery manuals and was co-author of "The Book of Public Buildings," which describes the work of the PBA and was published in 1938. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Katherine S. Stanley-Brown, a daughter, Katherine Oliver Stanley-Brown, all of Washington; two sisters, Mrs. Herbert Seis, also of Washington, and Dr. Margaret Stanley-Brown of New York, and his mother, Mrs. Mary Garfield Stanley-Brown, New York, daughter of President Garfield and widow of Joseph Stanley-Brown, once private secretary to President Garfield.

Japs Reported Building 1,200 Planes a Month

An estimate that Japanese factories are turning out aircraft at a rate of 1,200 or more a month came from high quarters here today, coupled with a report that the Japanese—like the Germans—are concentrating on defensive types.

3 Axis Attaches Detained In Argentine Spy Inquiry

By the Associated Press. BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 9.—The German military air attaché, Gen. Friedrich Wolf; the Japanese naval attaché, Rear Admiral Katsumi Yukishita, and his assistant, Capt. Tadasi Kameda, have been detained after an investigation showed they participated actively in espionage activities.

New Anti-Nazi Revolt Reported in Bulgaria

LONDON, Feb. 9.—An anti-German revolt—the second in a week—has broken out among Bulgarian troops and several clashes have occurred with German garrisons in Bulgaria, a report reaching London said yesterday.

R. Stanley-Brown, 54, Garfield's Grandson, Dies in Augusta, Ga.

Rudolph Stanley-Brown, 54, prominent Washington architect and grandson of President James A. Garfield died yesterday in a hospital in Augusta, Ga., after a 10-day illness, according to word received here.

He had been in Augusta since January 11 to plan a long-range program of recreational facilities for that city. He was consulting architect for the Public Buildings Administration. He made his home at 2750 Thirty-fourth street N.W. In 1924 he joined the Federal Security Agency, and was in charge of the project of the Recreational Division.

A native of Mentor, Ohio, he was educated in the public school there and attended St. Paul's School, Garden City, Long Island. He received his B. S. degree at Yale University in 1910. He studied architecture at Columbia University and the Ecole Des Beaux Arts in Paris.

During the Mexican border dispute Mr. Stanley-Brown served with an Ohio cavalry squadron as a first lieutenant. He was a captain in the World War, serving in the field artillery overseas and as an aide to Maj. Gen. Ernest Hinds.

After the war he practiced architecture in Cleveland from 1919 to 1934. While with the PBA he designed 35 public buildings, courthouses and other public buildings throughout the country.

Your U. S. Income Tax (This Is No. 38 of a Series.)

A limited amount of expenses actually paid during the taxable year for medical and dental care of a taxpayer, his wife or dependents, may be deducted from income in computing Federal normal tax and surtax (but not victory tax).

These expenses, after subtracting any reimbursements (from insurance or otherwise) actually received in the same year, are deductible to the extent that they exceed one per cent of the taxpayer's net income before figuring this particular deduction. However, the deduction may not exceed $2,500 for a married couple or a "head of family," or $1,250 in the case of other taxpayers.

The method of determining the deduction may be illustrated by this example: Mr. and Mrs. A file a joint return on form 1040. Their net income, before figuring the medical deduction, is $3,000. During the year, they spent $500 for medical care of their family but received $150 reimbursement from a health insurance policy.

Balance deductible $200 On form 1040, the method of determining the medical and dental expense deduction must be shown in schedule H on page 3 and the result entered in item 15 on page 1. On short form 1040A, no deduction should be entered, because the tax benefit of an average amount for such deductions.

The expenses which may be considered for this deduction are any actual payments made for the diagnosis, cure, mitigation, treatment, or prevention of disease; also, any amount actually paid for hospitalization, accident or health insurance, for membership in an association furnishing co-operative or so-called free-choice medical service, or group hospitalization, and clinical care. These expenses may be deducted in the year actually paid, regardless of when the expense was incurred.

Japs Form Prisoner 'Shooting Squads,' To Be Killed If Any of Group Escape

By COMDR. MELVYN H. MCCOY, U. S. N., and LT. COL. S. N. MELLNIK, U. S. A. As Told to LT. WELBURN KELLEY, U. S. N. R.

Chapter IV—The Death March From Bataan. Comdr. McCoy: There was a feeling, particularly among the enlisted men, that Uncle Sam had merely been caught off balance by a ploy but cunning foe in the first round, and that the knockout punch even now was on the way. In Old Bilibid Prison, in Manila, this feeling was expressed in such statements as "We won't be here long—a couple weeks, maybe, or a month."

But those of us who had served as staff officers knew something of the problems involved and were not optimistic. We knew that the United States had suffered her worst defeat in history and we knew that the job ahead would be long and hard. From our few furtive contacts with civilian Filipinos outside our prison walls, we learned the Japs were losing no time in bringing the New Order in East Asia to the Philippines. We had the additional advantage of two listening points, one of us (Comdr. McCoy) being in prison with staff officers at Pasay, and the other (Col. Mellnik) in Old Bilibid.

All Filipinos, we learned, were forced to bow to the Japanese. All streets with American names were being given Japanese names. All commercial enterprises were being given Japanese direction. Cultured Filipinos were being told subtly that their place in the greater East Asia co-prosperity sphere was in the rice paddies and abaca fields. In addition, the English language (spoken by almost every Filipino over 35) was to be forbidden, and was to be replaced by Nipponese, a sort of simplified "basic Japanese."

Col. Mellnik: Comdr. McCoy still was at Pasay when I learned on May 27, 1942, that I was to be transferred to the prisoner-of-war camp at Cabanatuan, about 75 miles north of Manila in Luzon. It was their custom when American military prisoners were to be moved, the Japanese waited until the heat had reached its peak before loading some 1,000 of us into iron boxcars. There were 100 men to each car with no room to sit or lie down. The cars were tightly closed so that there was no ventilation. The inside of the car was like an oven, with no water or sanitary facilities. Several men fainted, but there were no deaths.

When we got off the train at Cabanatuan we were taken to a field surrounded by barbed wire and patrolled by sentries. We were told that we would remain overnight. Filipino civilians watched us from a respectful distance, some of them bearing bananas, papayas and mangoes, but the Jap sentries kept them warned back with their bayonets.

Guard Boys Fruit. Lt. Col. Carl Eastgater and I were trying to keep cool under a pup tent which we had put up. The sight of the fruit was tantalizing beyond description. Carl had been a language student in Japan and spoke a few words of Japanese. He spoke in Japanese to a nearby guard, asking him to buy us some fruit. The Jap seemed delighted at hearing an American speak his language. Much to our surprise he not only bought the fruit, but hastened away. We were wolfing down the fruit when the guard returned, smiling and bowing. He spoke to Carl in Japanese.

"Something's up," Carl said to me. "The Jap C. O. wants to see us." The guard escorted us to the commanding officer. He greeted us in perfect English, but we could see that he was in a murderous mood. After the greeting he fixed us with that same interminable scowl. Then he spat at us suddenly. "What did you machines mean by bombing and machine-gunning Japanese cities?"

Capper Expects Real Estate Tax Revenue Rise Early Action to Clear D.C. Slums

Kansan Believes Congress Is Ready To Approve Plan Assessment Increase Estimated at $6,400,000

Senator Capper, Republican, of Kansas, declared today "there are good prospects" of early action by Congress charting new financing and a new program for slum clearance and provision of decent dwelling for those now inhabiting sub-standard housing.

Commenting on the McCarran bill to authorize the District to borrow $20,000,000 from the United States for the purposes, Senator Capper said "We have got to clean out these slums. It ought to have been done a long time ago."

"I can't see where we have been making any real headway and I have reached the conclusion that the main trouble is these properties are profitable to their owners who get good return and want to hang on to them."

"We will have to work out a system to provide decent homes for the people living in alley dwellings and other sub-standard housing." Referring to the tours of inspection and public hearings conducted by Senator Burton, Republican, of Ohio, and of which he is a member, Capper said he felt these studies had brought to the attention of Congress and the public on the problems.

Chairman Bilbo of the Senate District Committee yesterday promised to throw his support to the McCarran measure, and later Chairman Randolph of the House District Committee issued the statement: "Certainly, there should be an orderly improvement in housing conditions in the National Capital. Slums should be eliminated insofar as possible by concerted congressional action and civic cooperation. The House District Committee will give prompt attention to any well formulated plan toward the desired goal of a more beautiful Washington, where the well-being of the residents is paramount."

Senator Bilbo will refer the bill to the Burton Subcommittee to avoid any possible delay in having it subjected, to hearings, Senator Burton said today. As soon as the measure is presented to his subcommittee, Senator Burton added, he will announce that the current exhaustive hearings on the work of the NCHA will be broadened to include study of the McCarran bill.

President Roosevelt yesterday forwarded to Congress a request for a supplemental appropriation of $14,000 for the National Capital Housing Authority for the maintenance and operation of 12 dwelling units erected about six years ago at a cost of more than $550,000.

The Government's investment, the President was advised by the Budget Bureau, "definitely is being jeopardized by the failure to do maintenance and repair work due to insufficient funds. In the past fiscal year, Congress eliminated permission for the NCHA to use its receipts and unobligated balance to carry on its work and NCHA revenues now are deposited in the Treasury. This is one of the issues being considered in the Senate hearings."

Sedition Jurisdiction Is Upheld by Eicher Chief Justice Edward C. Eicher of District Court today ruled the chief has jurisdiction in the indictment here of 30 persons charged with conspiracy to aid in establishing a Nazi form of government in the United States.

The ruling was made in denying a plea as to jurisdiction made by Joseph E. McWilliams, New York anti-Chicago organizer of the Christian Mobilizers. Yesterday George Sylvester Viereck, already under sentence for violation of the Foreign Agents Registration Act, was arraigned on the conspiracy charge and pleaded not guilty. At the same time he declared his objection against him in the sedition indictment was "fantastic."

Arguments on demurrers in behalf of William Robert Lyman, jr., and Prescott F. Dennett were begun yesterday by their attorney. Trial on the sedition charges probably will begin sometime next month and may last two months. O. John Rogge, special assistant to the Attorney General, is prosecutor.

Lt. J. F. Kehoe, Jr., Killed; Graduate of Georgetown Second Lt. James F. Kehoe, 23, U. S. M. C., of 3283 Fessenden street N.W., has been killed in action, his parents were informed yesterday. He was reported last word from his home was received from the Central Pacific area.

Lt. Kehoe, for several years a sandlot baseball player here, received his B. S. degree in social economics at Georgetown University in 1942. At the university he won his letter in basketball and also played intramural football. Shortly after graduation he was called to active service from the Marine Corps Reserve.

During his undergraduate days he was employed for a time by the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Besides his parents, he is survived by three sisters, Miss Mary E. Kehoe of the WAVES, Miss Ann C. Kehoe and Miss Edith W. Kehoe, all of this city.

A request mass will be held at 9 a. m. Friday at St. Anne's Catholic Church. Wallet Containing $566 Lost in Barber Shop Clarence N. Packer, 705 Eighteenth street N.W., reported to police that a wallet containing $566 disappeared from the washroom of a barber shop in the 900 block of Fifteenth street N.W. when he left it there after changing his clothes yesterday.

Mrs. Packer said she left the wallet on the window sill and returned for it a few minutes after he discovered the loss, but it had vanished. 37 Scarlet Fever Cases Reported Here Overnight

The total number of scarlet fever cases in the District this year stood at 598 today, after reports of 37 new cases were recorded overnight. Dr. James G. Cumming, head of the Bureau of Preventable Diseases, said today.

Fifty-two new cases were listed yesterday, Dr. Cumming said, the disease was almost entirely among children and still appeared to be principally in the city's Northeast and Southeast sections.

Clerics Oppose Curfew Here, Blame Parents

Urges Citizen Councils And Adult Education To Curb Delinquency

Formation of neighborhood councils and the education of parents in child care were urged by religious leaders today before the special House subcommittee investigating juvenile delinquency in the Capital. Three churchmen were unanimous in opposing a curfew law in the District. They also rejected any suggestion of a curb on the admission of children to entertainment places at night. Rather, they sought to place the responsibility in the home.

The three witnesses representing the Jewish, Catholic and Protestant faiths—were Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld of the Washington Hebrew Congregation, the Rev. Thomas E. Mitchell of Catholic University and Dr. Fred E. Reissig of the Washington Federation of Churches.

Urges Recreation for Children. Criticizing the "immoral conditions" in some Washington homes, Dr. Reissig declared that under certain conditions he would rather see children on the streets than in their homes. He said proper recreation should be provided for them outside their homes.

Rabbi Gerstenfeld asserted that the parent is the key to the solution of juvenile delinquency, and warned against any tendency to make social institutions the "scapegoat."

Declaring a guidance manual on child problems should be prepared by school authorities with the assistance of a committee of clergymen, and that it be given to every parent registering a child in school.

Citizen Councils Proposed. Father Mitchell, declaring that neither the church nor social agencies could solve the problem of juvenile delinquency alone, proposed organization of neighborhood councils which could work together.

Need for more funds to permit expansion of the District's recreation program was outlined by Milo F. Christiansen, District recreation director. He said the War Production Board had been holding up a large portion of the $500,000 play improvement program because of the manpower shortage. He told the committee an appeal now was being made for $250,000 for improvements to 10 recreation areas and said the work would not involve critical materials.

District Marine Officer Killed in Action in Pacific. Lt. William R. West, 2939 Macomb street N.W., an officer of the 4th Marine Division, has been killed in action in the Pacific. The Navy Department has announced. His unit played an important part in the invasion of the Marshall Islands.

Word of Lt. West's death was received by his father-in-law, Eugene F. Lacy, of the War Department, Chevy Chase, Md., last night shortly after Mrs. West had left Washington to visit her husband's family in Indianapolis, Miss. She has been notified.

Lt. West, 24, is a native of Indianapolis and a graduate of the University of Alabama. He was killed in action in the Pacific. The Navy Department has announced. His unit played an important part in the invasion of the Marshall Islands.

Guffey Renews Attack On Ruhland; Assails Letter Disclosures

Senator Guffey, Democrat, of Pennsylvania last night renewed his attack on Health Officer George C. Ruhland for refusing certain hospital privileges to the Senator's personal physician and denounced him for the "unauthorized disclosure" of the 1942 Guffey threat letters.

In July and December of 1942, in letters to Commissioners Young and Mason, Senator Guffey protested the refusal of the health officer to list Dr. Eugene De Savitsch for chest surgery work at a District Government hospital and had threatened a Senate investigation as a way to "get action" out of the Health Department.

Dr. Ruhland has stated he had photostatic copies made of the Guffey letters but this he did not give them out for publication. Copies were given reporters on Capitol Hill by one of Washington's civic workers.

Senator Guffey declared his letters about Dr. De Savitsch had no connection with the later investigation of Gallinger Hospital by a subcommittee of the Senate District Committee, which produced, last September, a report calling for the ouster of Health Officer Ruhland and others.

Mr. Guffey said that "because this defendant, aside from this conviction, has led an estimable life and because he is the first to be convicted of an offense of this kind, I will impose the maximum fine without imprisonment. Let others take warning, however. The next offender will go to jail."

Mr. Guffey said that "where purely technical violations of the rent act have been brought to the attention of this office, it has been the policy to give the person involved the benefit of the doubt and attempt to settle the matter amicably."

"But if any landlords have been so reckless as to assume that this office will not enforce to the limit the criminal provisions of this act, when investigation develops that it has been violated with impunity, this case should put them on notice that they are likely to find themselves in the same situation as the defendant in this case."

Mr. Guffey said that if a landlord has any doubt about whether he is violating the law "it behooves him promptly to put all the facts in writing and submit the matter to this office for decision."

Tribute to McCarran. In his tribute to Senator McCarran, in which he inserted in the Congressional Record two editorials from the Star, Senator Tydings said of the Nevada's service as District Committee chairman:

"It is not a job for which usually the chairman receives much credit. But Senator McCarran has been oblivious of whether he has received credit or not.

His courtesy, his constructive statesmanship, his patience and desire to promote the welfare of the National Capital—while after all belongs to all the States—I think entitles him to some word of commendation."

He added he rarely had noted "such detachment, such application to duty and so many constructive results" flow from a congressional committee.

11 Re-elected Directors Of Visiting Nurse Society. Eleven members of the Board of Directors of the Instructive Visiting Nurse Society were re-elected for a term of three years yesterday at a board meeting in the Albee Building.

They were James L. Houghteling, Miss Anne Carter Greene, Mrs. Emory S. Land, Mark Lansburgh, Harold N. Marsh, Mrs. Cresson New-Harlan, Mrs. John M. Sternhagen, Mrs. Harlan F. Stone, Mrs. Ellen S. Woodward and Mrs. John Marvin Wright.

Miss Gertrude H. Bowling, executive director of the society, reported the staff had given care to 2,917 patients in January, 1,274 of them in quarters, and had made 9,654 visits to these patients in their homes.

338 Cafe Theft Reported. Theft of $338 by thieves who sawed through an iron window grill to gain entrance last night, was reported to police today by Gladys M. Lee, co-owner, proprietor of a restaurant at 1543 Seventh street N.W. The money, $246 of which was in quarters, was concealed in two beer coolers, police said.

Residents Are Advised To Appreciate Work Of D. C. Committees

Tydings Praises McCarran; Chavez Hits Delegation For Stand on Bilbo

Pointed suggestions that District residents give due appreciation to the chairman and members of the Senate and House District Committees for their attention to National Capital affairs were spread on the record of the Senate late yesterday as praise was given to Senators McCarran and Bilbo, past and present District Committee heads.

The question was brought up by Senator Tydings, Democrat, of Maryland in lauding the services of Senator McCarran as head of the committee and inserting in the Congressional Record a letter written by Chairman Randolph of the House District Committee praising Senator McCarran's "constructive leadership."

Senator Bilbo, Democrat, of Mississippi, who last Saturday succeeded Senator McCarran as District Committee chairman, stands ready to render "as fine service" as any ever given by a member of the Senate.

Japs Form Prisoner 'Shooting Squads,' To Be Killed If Any of Group Escape

Chapter IV—The Death March From Bataan.

Comdr. McCoy: There was a feeling, particularly among the enlisted men, that Uncle Sam had merely been caught off balance by a puny but cunning foe in the first round, and that the knockout punch even now was on the way. In Old Bilibid Prison, in Manila, the feeling was expressed in such statements as "We won't be here long—a couple weeks, maybe, or a month."

But those of us who had served as staff officers knew something of the problems involved and were not so optimistic. We knew that the United States had suffered the worst defeat in history and we knew that the job ahead would be long and hard.

From our few furtive contacts with Filipino civilians outside our prison walls, we learned that the Japs were losing no time in bringing the New Order in East Asia to the Philippines. We had the additional advantage of two listening points, one of us (Comdr. McCoy) being in prison with staff officers at Pasay and the other (Col. Mellnik) in Old Bilibid.

All Filipinos, we learned, were forced to bow to the Japanese. All streets with American names were being given Japanese names. All commercial enterprises were being given Japanese direction. Cultured Filipinos were being told that their place in the greater East Asian co-prosperity sphere was in the rice paddies and abaca fields. In addition, the English language (spoken by almost every Filipino over 35) was to be forbidden, and was to be replaced by Nipponese, a sort of simplified "basic Japanese."

Col. Mellnik: Comdr. McCoy still was at Pasay when I learned on May 27, 1942, that I was to be transferred to the prisoner-of-war camp at Cabanatuan, about 75 miles north of Manila in Luzon.

As was their custom when American military prisoners were to be moved, the Japanese waited until the heat had reached its peak before loading some 1,800 of us into iron boxcars. There were 100 men to each car, with no room to sit or lie down. The cars were tightly closed so that there was no ventilation. The inside of the car was like an oven, with no water or sanitary facilities. Several men fainted, but there were no deaths.

When we got off the train at Cabanatuan we were taken to an open field surrounded by barbed wire and patrolled by sentries. We were told that we would remain overnight.

Filipino civilians watched us from a respectful distance, some of them bearing bananas, papayas and mangoes, but the Jap sentries kept them warned back with their bayonets.

Guard Buys Fruit. Lt. Col. Carl Englehart and I were trying to keep cool under a pup tent which we had put up. The sight of the fruit was tantalizing beyond description. Carl had been a language student in Japan and, finding a few pesos between us, he spoke in Japanese to a nearby guard, asking him to buy us some fruit.

The Jap seemed delighted at hearing an American speak his language. Much to our surprise he got us the fruit, and then hastened away. We were wolfing down the fruit when the guard returned, smiling and bowing. He spoke to Carl in Japanese.

"Something's up," Carl said to me. "The Jap C. O. wants to see us." The guard escorted us to the commanding officer. He greeted us in perfect English, but we could see that he was in a murderous mood.

After the greeting he fixed us with what seemed an interminable scowl. Then he spat at us suddenly: "What did you Americans mean by begging and machine-gunning Japanese cities?"

Citizens Meet Tonight To Adopt Constitution Drops Paid Workers On Air-Raid Phones

Judge James R. Duncan of the Alexandria Juvenile Court has called a meeting for 8 o'clock tonight in the Maury School auditorium to adopt a constitution and by-laws and to elect officers for a group tentatively called the "Citizens' Association to Co-operate With Youth."

The meeting is an outgrowth of previous meetings called by Judge Duncan and a group of interested citizens to discuss means of combating juvenile delinquency.

A committee headed by Dr. Ernest F. Campbell has been working with Judge Duncan on a constitution, and suggested the name for the organization, subject to the approval of tonight's meeting, which is open to any one interested in the work.

The steering committee has suggested an organization with president, two vice presidents, a secretary, treasurer and chaplain, and a man and woman to represent each of the city's six wards.

The officers and executive board will be proposed by a nominating committee headed by T. Mollen, a member of the faculty of the Episcopal Theological Seminary and acting rector of St. Paul's Church, and including the Rev. Edward L. Stephens, pastor of St. Mary's Catholic Church, and Rabbi Hugo Schiff of Temple Beth-El.

The aims of the organization as brought out by previous meetings are the co-operation of church, civic and educational groups interested in the welfare of young people, and in the promotion of recreational activities to occupy the leisure time of the youth.

Red Cross Workers Top $30,000 War Loan Quota

Employees of the Eastern area of the Red Cross have exceeded their quota of $30,000 for the Fourth War Loan campaign, reporting a total of $30,125, not including pledges, it was announced yesterday.

Ramone S. Eaton, manager of the Eastern area office, said he expects a substantial increase in the figure before the drive ends February 15.

E. T. Moore, Alexandria chairman of the campaign, said that Reserve figures as of February 4 indicate a total of $995,735.25, or 42.5 per cent of the $2,365,000 quota subscribed, with $369,168.75 or 42.2 per cent of the $875,000 E bond quota subscribed.

New Prince Georges Budget Will Include Teacher Pay Raises

Two $200 Annual Bonuses To Be Permanent Part Of Basic Salaries

The Prince Georges County Board of Education today prepared to include in the proposed new salary schedule for county teachers in the 1944-5 school budget to be presented next week to the county commissioners.

The schedule, which was approved unanimously by the board at its meeting yesterday in Upper Marlboro, provides that the two $200 annual bonuses being paid by the county and State be made permanent part of the teachers' basic salaries.

It also calls for annual increases of $75 instead of the present $50 increase every two years.

The schedule was drawn up last week by a committee of the County Teachers' Association in an effort to make teachers' salaries in the county more comparable with those paid in surrounding areas.

Resolutions endorsing such a move have been adopted by the County Federation of Women's Clubs and by the Oxon Hill Community Women's Club.

At present, teachers are leaving the county school system at the rate of one almost every school day, and school officials are finding it virtually impossible to obtain replacements. The resignations have been caused by offers of jobs at higher pay.

J. Albert Miller, principal of the Hyattsville High School and chairman of the committee that had charge of drafting the proposed schedule, declared that no county teacher is now receiving a salary of more than $1,850 a year.

Declaring that, in his opinion, the county could "well afford" the proposed increases, Mr. Miller said teachers are confident that the proposed schedule "would help strengthen the teacher situation in the county."

Montgomery Board Names New Teachers

Mrs. English Resigns As Woodside Trustee

Appointment of eight elementary school and two high school teachers was approved by the Montgomery County Board of Education at its meeting yesterday in Rockville.

The elementary teachers are: Mrs. E. B. Resnikoff, Glenmont School; Mrs. Ruth Krenn, Takoma Park; Dorothy Weller and Clarke Freeman, Bradley; Mrs. Helen McCay, Rockville; Virginia M. Farrow, Four Corners; Helen G. Miller, Sandy Spring; and Mrs. Alice M. Burr, Germantown.

The others are Mrs. Thelma Finnefrock, Takoma Park Junior High, and Elia Mae Scott, Silver Spring Intermediate.

The board also accepted the resignation of Mrs. Beryl R. English as trustee of the Woodside Elementary School.

A delegation seeking improvements for the Rockville colored high and elementary schools was assured the requests would be taken up in planning for summer work and later construction programs. A representative of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Glenmont School, John School that the lighting in the school building be improved was submitted. The board received a Federal offer of continued assistance in child care activities. The offer was accepted.

Dr. Broome, county superintendent of schools, reported that a county-wide age-grade study conducted by the teachers in November showed that 23.5 per cent of the pupils were under age for the grades they were in; 70.5 per cent were normal age; and 6 per cent over age. Dr. Broome said that the percentage of average pupils has been greatly reduced in recent years.

7% of Virginia Draft List Listed as Venereal Cases

RICHMOND, Feb. 9.—Selective service serologic tests reveal that approximately 7 per cent of men between 18 and 45 years of age were classified as positive venereal disease cases, the State Health Department reported today.

Positive reactions were shown by 241,539 men of 241,539 men who took the tests, one and one-half times more than the number recorded for the 1941-42 period, the report showed.

The rate for colored men was many times as great as that for white men, with colored cases listed as 15 per cent of the total and the white 1.8 per cent.

Veneral disease cases reported to the State Health Department from all sources showed 21,179 of syphilis, 9,854 gonorrhea and 572 of other veneral disease cases. The 1941-42 cases were listed as 18,925 syphilis, 6,906 gonorrhea and 332 other cases.

Takoma PTA to Assist At School Bond Rally

The regular meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Takoma Park Junior High School has been postponed until next Wednesday to coincide with a bond rally scheduled for that time, it was announced yesterday by George P. Adair, president of the association.

Morgan Beatty, radio commentator and newspaperman, will be the speaker. Richard F. Green, chairman of the Montgomery County War Bond drive, will be master of ceremonies. Music will be furnished by the school band. William Marks, principal of the school, is arranging the quiz program.

Guard Officers Promoted

Perry W. Browning, jr., Hyattsville, has been promoted from second to first lieutenant in the Maryland State Guard, Gov. O'Connor announced today according to an Associated Press dispatch from Annapolis. Ten other promotions and commissions were announced by the Governor.

Postmaster Nominated For Upper Marlboro

President Roosevelt yesterday nominated Russell M. Buck to be postmaster at Upper Marlboro, Md. Mr. Buck is a native of Prince Georges County and has served as acting postmaster at Marlboro since the retirement last fall of Guy M. Coale. Prior to that he served as assistant postmaster for 15 years.

Mr. Buck is a director of the Marlboro branch of the County Trust Co. of Maryland. He is married and has two children.

Prince Georges Police Act to Tighten Dog Quarantine

Enforcement of the dog quarantine in Prince Georges County was given further impetus today with the assignment of a policeman to accompany the county Animal Control League truck two days a week in picking up stray dogs.

Police Chief Ralph W. Brown was instructed by the county commissioners at their meeting yesterday to assign one of his officers after a delegation from the league, headed by its president, J. M. Walton, appeared before the board.

Pointing out that the league has no authority to pick up stray dogs unless a policeman or a private person assumes responsibility for such action, Mr. Walton asked that police officers be assigned to the league's efforts to rid the county of stray animals.

League Cites Costs. After Mr. Walton declared that it costs the league approximately $50 a month to operate its dog pound, the commissioners authorized an appropriation of $250 from the county fund for such a purpose.

Mr. Walton said the league has picked up a total of 1,400 dogs since the quarantine went into effect last August.

Chief Brown then suggested that the league swear out warrants against stragglers claiming dogs at the pound charging them with violating the quarantine.

Female dogs are kept at the pound for a three day and males for five days. A $2 fee is charged for each animal claimed, to cover the cost of food.

State Senator L. Harold Sotheron appeared before the board on behalf of the owners of the Hilltop Manor and Castle Manor apartment projects to seek a reduction in the assessments on the two developments.

Figures Revealed. At present, Mr. Sotheron said, Hilltop Manor, in Bladensburg, is assessed at $567,500, while Castle Manor, in Mount Rainier, is assessed at $213,100.

County Assessor Thomas Baxter emphasized, however, that these assessments were made on a tentative basis. He explained that the owners of the two projects refused to furnish information concerning the cost and gross revenue of the developments.

Mr. Sotheron then revealed that the gross rentals received from Hilltop Manor totaled $102,630, while those from Castle Manor totaled $46,572.

On the basis of those figures, Mr. Baxter proposed that Hilltop Manor be assessed at $427,800 and that Castle Manor be assessed at $194,050. The commissioners took the matter under advisement.

Hutcheson Confirmed As Federal Judge

Former U. S. Attorney Fills Eastern Virginia Post

The Senate yesterday confirmed the nomination of Sterling Hutcheson to be judge of the Federal Court for the eastern district of Virginia.

Mr. Hutcheson, former United States attorney for that district, will succeed the late Judge Luther B. Ware.

Mr. Hutcheson, 49, who is the first judge to be appointed to the Eastern Virginia district by a Democratic administration since the Civil War, was born in Mecklenburg County, Va.

He was educated at William and Mary College and the University of Virginia, and before becoming United States district attorney was in private law practice at Boydton, Va.

The second judgeship of the eastern district, held by Judge Robert N. Pollard, was created in 1939.

Welfare Group to Discuss County Juvenile Court Need

The need for a juvenile court in Prince Georges County will be discussed at a meeting of the Juvenile Delinquency Committee of the County Volunteer Welfare Association at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the County Service Building, Hyattsville.

The committee, headed by Daniel M. Greene, was named at an organization meeting of the association two months ago. At that time, it was instructed to investigate juvenile delinquency in the county and to determine whether a juvenile court is necessary.

Other members of the committee are Miss Mildred Alexander, Dr. Peter Lejins, assistant professor of sociology at the University of Maryland; Mrs. R. S. Allen and Mrs. Betty Taylor.

Luis Granados, chairman of the Juvenile Welfare Association, urged all interested persons to attend.

Virginia House Begins Consideration of New 235-Million Budget

Bill Exceeds Estimated Amount Available for Spending by $345,000

RICHMOND, Feb. 9.—Virginia's record-breaking $235,000,000 budget bill, exceeding by $345,000 the estimated amount available for appropriation, was before the House of Delegates today for initial consideration on the floor.

The important measure was set as a special and continuing order of business. Chairman C. C. Loderback of the House Appropriations Committee, which reported the bill Friday, expressed the hope that the House will finish action on the measure this week. It reached the House floor almost two weeks earlier than usual.

Few Major Budget Changes. The committee made comparatively few major changes in budget recommendations submitted by Gov. Darden. Revisions, giving increases in many instances, have not unbalanced seriously the Governor's budget. Chairman Loderback said.

The largest single item added by the committee was $290,000 for Catawba Sanatorium, for building and equipment. A statutory limit of one gallon of liquor per month per customer at the State's retail stores is provided for in a bill which Delegate Stuart Campbell, Wythe County, said he was planning to introduce in the House.

Mr. Campbell said the "fundamental responsibility for control" of hard liquor sales rests with the General Assembly and that the State Liquor Board "has not attempted the control of such sales except insofar as this has been necessitated by the current liquor shortage."

Senate Passes Nine Bills. The Wythe County Delegate said he believes the "time has now come when some attention should be given to the control or regulation of liquor sales."

The Senate passed nine bills, for the most part of a minor nature, and postponed second reading on the Harris-Battle Senate bill providing for higher interest rates on small loans after an amendment was offered from the floor to make the charge a flat two per cent a month.

The bill in its present form calls for a 3 per cent charge on unpaid balances of $150 or less and 2 per cent on unpaid balances of $150 and up to the maximum of $300 allowed as a small loan. The House passed eight bills, including the Clarke Senate bill to raise the compulsory school attendance age from 15 to 16 years, the Stuart-Breeden-Gray Senate bill to name the Virginia Protective Force the Virginia State Guard, and the Spiers House bill removing the fee of $18 per month for a first child and $12 a month for a second in aid to dependent children.

Sales Tax Hearing Monday. The Senate Finance Committee set a public hearing for 8 p.m. Monday on the Hodges sales tax bill. The measure provides for a 2 per cent sales tax for school purposes and for the relief of taxes on real estate and tangible personal property.

Just before the Finance Committee action, Charles W. Crush, Christiansburg, secretary of the League of Virginia Counties, announced that 90 per cent of county officials who have answered the poll conducted by the league have pressed favor of enactment of a "sales tax now."

Mr. Crush said that of the 300 who have thus far responded to the poll question 20 have expressed opposition to a sales tax while over 60 per cent of those favoring a sales tax are opposed to the Governor's proposal for a referendum on the question.

Alexandria Veteran Presented Soldier's Medal at Georgetown

James H. Moore, Jr., of Alexandria Shown Receiving the Medal

A discharged veteran, James H. Moore, Jr., 1517 King street, Alexandria, Va., yesterday received a medal for his heroism in North Africa on July 16.

Dressed in civilian clothes, former Sgt. Moore received the Soldier's Medal from Maj. Gen. John T. Lewis, commander of the Military District of Washington, in a special ceremony in front of Copley Hall, Georgetown University. Army students at Georgetown paraded in his honor.

Sgt. Moore was in charge of a gun crew on a pier in North Africa and was seriously injured when an ammunition ship exploded. The citation says: "Disregarding his own injuries and in grave danger from gasoline and ammunition exploding on a nearby pier, he sought out each of the members of his gun crew, administered first aid to them and assisted them to safety before permitting himself to be evacuated or his wounds to be dressed."

Award of the medal was ordered by Gen. Eisenhower.

Virginia Bill Provides For New Circuit Court in Arlington County

Measure Introduced To Change Method of Alexandria Elections

RICHMOND, Feb. 9.—A new circuit court for Arlington and a special election in Alexandria and a special election in the method of electing council members were proposed in the Virginia General Assembly yesterday.

The Senate received three bills providing for the new circuit and for the immediate election of a judge. The patron, Senator William D. Medley of Arlington, proposed that the new circuit be created as the thirty-fifth judicial circuit.

Judge Walter T. McCarthy, Arlington, judge of the Sixteenth circuit which now includes Arlington, together with Fairfax and Prince William counties, and Alexandria, has the endorsement of the bar for the new post. Senator Medley said.

One of the bills provides that the Governor appoint a new judge to fill the vacancy which would occur if Judge McCarthy is named to the proposed new circuit.

Election Proposed in March. The bill calling for a special election on the method of electing council members in Alexandria was introduced in the House by Delegate W. Selden Washington, who represents that city. The election would be held March 28.

The bill provides, as an amendment to the charter, alternative plans of election.

One, designated as the "council-at-large" plan, provides that after September 1, 1944, the council shall consist of four members elected for two years, with the terms of office to expire on their expiration day, August 31, 1946. Under this plan the present presiding officer of the council would continue to serve until his term expires. Vacancies in the council would be certified to the Judge of the Corporation Court by the council.

The other plan, designated as the "council ward plan," provides that the council shall be composed of nine members, of whom one shall be elected from each of the six wards for two-year terms, and three elected at large.

Teachers Back New Tax. Any equitable tax—even a sales tax—will be backed by the Virginia Education Association, its Legislative Committee said yesterday.

Miss Ethel Spillman, president of the VEA, said the association did not feel it was its place to suggest what type of taxation should be set up, but that it would back any plan the Legislature might set up and the sales tax will come out of our pocketbook just like everybody else's.

She said the VEA had reaffirmed its stand on Dr. Dabney S. Lester's proposal for $1,200 per teacher unit.

Virginia Nurses' Group Elects Officers. Mrs. Mae C. Bowman, Alexandria, was elected president of District 8, Graduate Nurses' Association of Virginia, at a recent meeting held at the Arlington County Hospital.

Other officers include Mrs. Myrtle D. Woods, Alexandria, and Mrs. Naomi Hatcher, Purcellville, vice presidents; Mrs. Sue W. Brown, Arlington, secretary, and Mrs. Virginia Scamblvey, Arlington, treasurer. Members named to the board were Mrs. Ella Turner Goodhart, Arlington, and Mrs. Marjorie Moore, Alexandria.

Luther N. Chamberlain Rites. WARRENTON, Va., Feb. 9 (Special)—Funeral services for Luther N. Chamberlain, 76, who died Monday in Presbyterian Hospital, Charlottesville, N. C., from injuries suffered three weeks ago while on a business trip, will be held at 3 p.m. today at the Presbyterian Church here. The services will be conducted by the Rev. Thomas MacLean, pastor of the church. Burial will be in Warrenton Cemetery.

Virginia Legislators Postpone Annexation Action After Hearing

County Spokesmen Favor, City Officials Rap Bills In Two-Hour Session

RICHMOND, Feb. 9.—The House Privileges and Elections Committee yesterday postponed action on two bills to restrict annexation after listening to a city versus county battle for two hours in the hall of the House of Delegates.

County representatives contended that the bills, which would require a favorable vote of the qualified voters in the territory to be annexed, would put annexation on a democratic basis.

Cities contended that the bills would strangle cities and change the annexation procedure from a factious to a political one.

Delegate G. Alvin Massenburg, sponsor of one of the bills and chairman of the committee, presided at the hearing which was attended by delegations from Alexandria, Fairfax and other interested areas.

The other bill, introduced by Delegate Robert J. McCandlish, jr., Fairfax County, stronger than the Massenburg bill, provides for a referendum in the city seeking annexation as well as in the area to be annexed. It also prohibits a reopening of the question for 10 years after it has been defeated by popular vote, and forbids any annexation proceedings from being instituted until one year after the emergency has been declared at an end. The Massenburg bill requires the referendum only in the area to be annexed.

Chief arguments in favor of the bill were the claims that under a democratic form of government residents have a right to decide where they want to live, and that the county voters should not seek from cities annexing those portions of their territory which will bring the most revenue and leaving behind the portions which are a liability.

County spokesmen pointed out that if cities will make their government and their facilities attractive to residents of outlying areas they need have nothing to fear from a referendum on annexation. County spokesmen also said that courts have always decided in favor of the cities in annexation proceedings, thus stifling the ambition of a county to improve its facilities while faced with the prospect of being swallowed up by a neighboring municipality.

City Officials' Arguments. City attorneys speaking against the bill said that the municipalities should not have to seek permission of their own or county voters for the right to sue, after considerable sums of money had been spent in seeking expert advice on an annexation case. They added that the provisions of the McCandlish bill calling for a referendum of the city voters was a reflection on the government of the elected city government.

City spokesmen also claimed that the vote of the small number of persons in the area affected, whether or not they are property owners, was not true yardstick as to the value of both city and county from annexation.

They added that if the bills pass, the counties may expect to find the adjoining cities refusing to supply facilities and to permit the use of their schools by county children, the provision of tuition, on the grounds that "a city will not contribute to building of stone walls around it."

Cities Make Complaint. City officials pointed out that it is unreasonable to suppose that the residents of any county area would vote for annexation when they can have all the advantages of a neighboring city without paying for them. They asked the committee to consider the matter which can be handled by the considered thinking of an unbiased court, rather than a political matter for unthinking settlement by a small number of voters.

Those speaking for the bills included Delegates Massenburg, McCandlish, W. H. Irvine of Campbell, Commonwealth's Attorney Potter Sterne of Dinwiddie, Commonwealth's Attorney S. J. Thompson of Campbell, Commonwealth's Attorney W. H. Carter of Amherst, Commonwealth's Attorney Conway Shields of Warwick and Frank Kearney of Phoebus.

Appearing in opposition were City Attorney J. Gordon Bohannon of Petersburg, City Attorney Charles E. Ford of Newport News, City Attorney R. B. Baskin of Portsmouth and City Attorney Horace Edwards of Richmond.

Lack of Equipment Delays Cheverly Hospital Opening

Inability to obtain delivery of essential equipment is delaying admission of patients to the Prince Georges General Hospital at Cheverly, it was announced today. Hospital officials explained the needed equipment has been on order for several months. It includes an anesthesia unit, bassinets and laboratory materials.

Visitors to the hospital donated more than $400 during an open-house Sunday. The money will be used to purchase equipment not provided by the Government.

Flores, which filled the central corridor of the hospital on Sunday have been sent to the convalescent section of Walter Reed Hospital at Forest Glen, Md.

Four From D. C. Area Finish Chaplains' School. Three Washington men and one from nearby Virginia are among 33 clergymen being graduated today from the Army Chaplain School at Harvard University.

The District graduates are Joseph A. Crazini and Francis N. D. Reilly, Catholics, and Douglas F. Hall, Baptist.

The Virginia clergyman is Thomas P. Scannell, Arlington, Catholic.

Spinnell, Arlington Planned for Hospital Benefit Planned

A bing party to raise funds for the Prince Georges General Hospital at Cheverly will be given by the Decatur Heights Community Club February 22 at the St. Luke's Parish Hall, Biadensburg. It has been announced.

Andrews Holds Slim Lead
In Race for Steagall's Seat

By the Associated Press.
DOTHAN, Ala., Feb. 9.—Lt. George Andrews, U. S. N. R., held a slim lead over Hubert Farmer, attorney, in the unofficial count of returns from yesterday's 3d congressional district primary, and indications today were that the official tabulation would be needed to settle the race. With only 13 of 216 boxes missing in the 10-county district, Lt. Andrews, now on active duty in the Pacific, polled 12,963 votes to 12,671 for Mr. Farmer.

They seek the congressional seat left vacant by the death last fall of Representative Steagall. Nomination in predominantly Democratic Alabama is tantamount to election. The term expires in January and the winner is considered almost certain to run in the May 2 general primary for the full two-year term.

Esquire Wins Stay Of Mail Ban Order

Through an agreement, signed by attorneys and approved late yesterday by Justice T. Alan Goldsborough of District Court, Esquire magazine will continue to have its second-class mailing privileges until its injunction suit against Postmaster General Walker is decided.

It was stipulated that in the event "it is ultimately decided by the highest court which may consider the case" that Esquire is not entitled to go in the mails at second-class rates, that the magazine agrees to pay to the Post Office Department the difference between the second-class rates and fourth-class rates from February 26, 1944, to the date of final decision.

An order issued by Mr. Walker banning the magazine from second-class mail was scheduled to become effective February 28. On January 21 the injunction suit was filed in District Court to enjoin Mr. Walker from carrying out the order.

Signatures on the stipulation included Attorneys Bruce Bromley, John T. Harding, Edmund L. Jones and Howard Boyd for the magazine publishers, and Assistant Attorney General Francis M. Shea and United States Attorney Edward M. Curran for the Government.

By Katharine M. Brooks.

The Brazilian Ambassador, Senhor Carlos Martins, spent yesterday and Monday in New York and joined Senhora de Martins at the Embassy last evening. Several Brazilians have stopped in Washington during the past ten days, though few parties were arranged for them as their time here was very brief. Among those who stopped here en route to or from Miami was the newly appointed Consul at Puerto Rico, Senhor Edison Nogueira, who was on his way from Los Angeles, where he has been Vice Consul for some time. He went on to Miami and left there a day or so ago. The Vice Consul at Los Angeles, Senhor Octavio Augusto Diez Canero, with Senhora de Diez Canero, also stopped here, only they were on their way back from Rio de Janeiro, where they have been on vacation for several weeks. They went on from here several days ago for the West Coast. A third member of the consular service of Brazil to visit in Washington recently was Senhor Jorge de Carvalho e Silva, Vice Consul at Portland, Oreg., who has been visiting in Havana and now is en route to Portland.

Another visitor from Brazil who will be here Sunday is Dr. Andre Dreyfus, dean of the faculty of philosophy, science and letters and professor of biology at the University of Sao Paulo. Dr. Dreyfus has arrived in Miami, where he is spending this week. He will be the guest of honor at a luncheon Monday, when Dr. Charles A. Thomson, chief of the Cultural Relations Bureau of the State Department, will act as host. Dr. Dreyfus, who is a distinguished geneticist, is a guest of the State Department and will work with Dr. Theodore Dobzhansky, professor of zoology at Columbia University. He will be in Washington until the middle of the week, when he will start a tour of large cities in this country and Canada. In the Dominican he will be the guest of the Canadian government during his fortnight's stay.

A very popular Brazilian couple shortly to leave Washington are the retiring Minister Counselor of the Embassy and Senhora de Alencastro Guimaraes. They plan to leave here the first of next week and will take the plane from Miami February 18 for Rio de Janeiro. Senhor Alencastro Guimaraes will be attached to the foreign office for some time before being assigned to head a diplomatic mission in another country. Last evening they dined very informally with the assistant chief of the Bureau of American Republics of the State Department and Mrs. Walter N. Walmesley. Senhora de Alencastro Guimaraes was entertained at a luncheon today by Senhora de M. Daniels, wife of the Chilean Ambassador, and tomorrow she will lunch with Mrs. Thomas Burke, wife of the former chief of the International Communications Division of the State Department. Others at the luncheon tomorrow will be a number of the ardent workers for the Chamber Music Guild in which Mrs. Burke is prominent and deeply interested. Senhor and Senhora de Alencastro Guimaraes gave up their house here the end of January and are staying at the Sheraton until they leave next week.

The Chilean Consul General in New York, Dr. Alfonso Grez, has gone to Santiago for a month's stay. Senora de Grez did not accompany him, but remained in their New York home. Their son, Senor Armando Grez, is a student at Georgetown University.

Senora de Oreamuno, wife of Senor Rafael Oreamuno, Costa Rican representative on the Inter-American Financial and Economic Advisory Committee, has gone to Havana for a month's visit. She will be with her father, the Costa Rican Minister to Cuba, Senor de la Guardia.

By the Way—

BETH BLAINE

Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, wife of the Representative from Illinois, has been doing Red Cross work for 10 consecutive years—in the United States, in Poland where her husband was American Financial Advisor, and in France, where the Deweys owned a charming house and spent considerable time.

Mrs. Dewey has been decorated by the Polish government with the Polonia Restituta and by the French government with the Legion of Honor. She is chairman of the Foreign Co-ordinating Council of the French Relief Society, Inc., director of the Chicago Chapter of the Red Cross, a member of the Board of Emergency Hospital here, and a chief of hospital for the local Emergency Feeding Unit which operates under the Red Cross and the OOD.

Less than two years ago, Mrs. Dewey organized the wives of the members of the House into a surgical dressing unit known as the "Congressional Wives Surgical Dressing Unit." Twice a week it meets at the Library of Congress under the auspices of the Red Cross, and you'd be amazed at the amount of work these women turn out. Most of the women—in fact nearly all of them—had been doing volunteer war work in different groups. Mrs. Dewey told us, but this Surgical Dressing Unit was the first to be organized for the wives of Representatives as such. The Senate ladies have had an organized group for the past 26 years, as you probably know.

Washington is not new to the Deweys, who lived here when Mr. Dewey was Assistant Secretary of the Treasury under President Coolidge. They have a host of friends here, just as they have wherever they go.

Mrs. Dewey says that she really is a home-body. She loves her own home and her own family. She likes planning meals and attending to the smooth running of her house. She likes good food and she not only knows how to plan it, but she can cook it herself—and beautifully, too.

She speaks French fluently and Polish and German. She is well read and well informed on current events, and above all she is at all times completely herself—which is one of the very nicest things about her.

Engaged to Wed Midshipman

Mr. and Mrs. William E. Mill of Rockville announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Margaret Catharine Mill, to Midshipman William Walker Goldwell, son of Mrs. Will Mell Booth of San Antonio and Maj. Philip Goldwell, U. S. A., retired, of New Orleans.

The bride-elect is attending the University of Maryland while Midshipman Goldwell is attending the United States Naval Academy, from which he will be graduated in June. No date has been set for the wedding.

Wedding Is Held In Missouri

Mr. and Mrs. George Frank Eppley have issued cards announcing the marriage of their daughter, Miss Anna Mae Eppley, to Pfc. John Glynn Sandefer, U. S. A., son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Sandefer of Dresden, Tenn. The wedding took place January 26 at Unity Chapel in Kansas City, Mo., Mr. L. E. Meyer officiating.

Mrs. Amy Hannan was matron of honor and Mr. Roderick Friend was best man.

Pfc. and Mrs. Sandefer went to St. Louis on a short wedding trip, after which the former returned to his duties at Camp White, Wash., and his bride resumed her work in Kansas City where she has been making her home for the past year.

Luncheon Party

Mrs. Wales Latham entertained at a luncheon yesterday at the Mayflower, when her guests were Mrs. Joseph Ball, Mrs. William Fulbright, Mrs. Clarence Streit and Senora Minerva Bernardino.

Marriage Ceremony Performed in Dallas

Capt. R. R. Gasser, U. S. N., and Mrs. Gasser of New York announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Georgia Ann Gasser, to Ensign Edward Franklin Hufstetler, III, U. S. N. R., son of Mrs. E. F. Hufstetler of Dallas, Tex. The ceremony took place February 1 at Sacred Heart Cathedral in Dallas.

The bride, who was escorted by her brother, Cadet R. R. Gasser, II, in the absence of her father, wore an ice-blue satin suit with matching calot and carried a bouquet of gardenias and stephanotis. She was attended by Mrs. Browning Adams of Norman, Okla., as matron of honor, and by Mrs. Reed Carney, sister of the bridegroom. Lt. Carney, A. A. F., served as best man for his brother-in-law.

A reception was held at the home of the bridegroom's mother. Capt. and Mrs. Gasser will be remembered in Washington, as they have spent many years here while the former was on duty in the Navy. The bride is a graduate of Woodrow Wilson High School, where she was president of Phi Sigma Chi. She attended St. Joseph's College in Emmitsburg, Md., and the University of Texas, where she was affiliated with Alpha Chi Omega.

The bridegroom attended Southern Methodist University, where he was a member of Kappa Sigma. Ensign and Mrs. Hufstetler make their home at 2605 Niagara street in Corpus Christi, where the former is on duty at the air station.

Mary Armstrong Engaged to Wed

Mr. George Alexander Armstrong of New York now stationed as American Consul at Manchester, England, announces the engagement of his daughter, Miss Mary Howard Armstrong, to Mr. William Elery Channing Eustis, son of Mr. Frederic A. Eustis of Milton, Mass.

Miss Armstrong is a graduate of Milton Academy and has been attending Bryn Mawr College. During her father's absence on foreign service she has made her home in Washington with her aunt, Miss Elizabeth Howard Armstrong.

Mr. Eustis attended Milton Academy and is a graduate of Fountain Valley School and of Harvard University in the class of 1942. He is present in Washington at the Navy Department in Washington.

The wedding is set for March 4 in New York.

Miss Stewart Bride

Mr. Vernon Ross Stewart of California, N. C., announces the marriage of his daughter, Miss Ethel Stewart, to Mr. Donald S. Dupue, son of Mrs. Perry McQuillin and the late Mr. Stanley C. Dupue. The wedding took place January 28 in the parsonage of the Westminster Memorial Church, the pastor, the Rev. Harry V. Porter, officiating in the presence of a small number of relatives and intimate friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Dupue are at home at 1227 North Utah street in Arlington.

Ludlum-Atwood Wedding Held

The marriage of Miss Noelle Marian Atwood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Bailey Atwood, to the Rev. John Henry Ludlum, Jr., of the Collegiate Church of St. Nicholas in New York, son of Mr. Ludlum of Albany, took place January 31 at the Metropolitan Memorial Methodist Church, the Rev. Herman Luben, assisted by the Rev. Edward Gardiner Latch, officiating.

The bride, who was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father, wore an ivory satin gown embroidered in seed pearls, with a finger-tip veil of illusion which fell from a coronet of seed pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses.

Miss Mabry Griner, daughter of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. George W. Griner, was the maid of honor, wearing a gown of rose-color taffeta with a matching shoulder-length veil and carrying an arm bouquet of Johanna Hill roses.

Second Lt. Robert Ludlum, U. S. M. C. of Albany, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man, and the ushers were Mr. Richard Suffer of Suffern, N. Y.; the Rev. Marion Gosselin and the Rev. Coert Rylaarsdam.

A reception immediately followed the 3:30 o'clock ceremony at the home of the bride's parents on Macomb street, and the couple left later for their wedding trip.

The bride attended American University, where she was a member of Delta Gamma International Fraternity, and she will attend Barnard College in New York, residing at 99 Claremont avenue while in that city. The bridegroom attended Rutgers University and New Brunswick Theological Seminary, and he is a member of Phi Beta Kappa and Chi Psi.

Afternoon Party Will Be Given

Former United States Ambassador to Chile and Mrs. William S. Culbertson have issued cards for a late afternoon party February 19 when their guests are asked from 5 to 7:30 to meet the president of the United States Chamber of Commerce and Mrs. Eric A. Johnston. Mr. Johnston comes of an old Washington family, his grandparents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Ballinger, having lived here. He is a nephew of Mrs. Miriam Ballinger Berryhill, for many years an official of the Agriculture Department; Mr. Webster Ballinger and Mrs. Edward A. Keys.

Here for Visit

Hassan, wife of the Egyptian Minister; Mrs. Randolph Huntington Miner; Mrs. McCeney Werlich, Baroness Stackelberg; Mrs. Charles Fletcher, Martin; Mrs. Robert E. Patchin; Mrs. Warren Lee Pierson; Countess Cassini; Mrs. Consuelo A. Sedane; Mrs. Thomas Burke and Mrs. H. Welles March.

Miss Callicott Will Be Bride

Mrs. V. H. Jackson of Berryville, Ark., announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Patsy Ruth Callicott, to Mr. John Frank Miller, III, U. S. N. R., son of Mr. and Mrs. John Frank Miller, Jr., of this city. Miss Callicott is employed here in the claims division of the General Accounting Office and Mr. Miller is a member of the February graduating class of the Officers' Training Corps at the University of North Carolina.

The wedding will take place February 26.

To Christen Ship

Mrs. A. Mitchell Palmer will leave tomorrow for Savannah, where she will christen a Liberty ship named for her husband, the late Attorney General, Saturday. Mrs. George W. Crawford of New York will be her matron of honor. Mrs. Palmer will return to Washington Monday.

Hostess at Tea

Mrs. J. Bernard Joseph entertained at a tea yesterday afternoon, in compliment to her sisters-in-law, the Misses Cecilia and Adele Joseph.

Belgian Diplomat Tells of Suffering In His Homeland

An account of the suffering and starvation of the Belgian people under Nazi rule was presented yesterday by Jacques de Thier, counselor of the Belgian Embassy, before the Washington Club.

Asking that limited quantities of food be sent to his countrymen if possible, M. de Thier declared that if relief could reach Belgium as it has Greece it might assist in retarding the rapid spread of anemia and tuberculosis. With only 1,000 calories a day available per person, the people are dying of slow starvation, he asserted.

In spite of the fact that more Belgian patriots were executed in 1943 than during the four years of occupation in the World War, the resistance of the Belgians to the Nazi occupation continues unabated, he declared. Belgian workers are recruited by the Nazis in the most brutal manner and sent as slave labor to Germany, he explained. As far as can be ascertained, approximately 7 per cent of the population of Belgium have been deported, imprisoned or shot since the first day of the present occupation, he continued.

While Belgium proper is dying of starvation, the Belgian Congo continues to be an important source of strategic raw materials for the Allies, M. de Thier pointed out.

"This territory has become the world's greatest producer of copal, cobalt and industrial diamonds," he commented, "and the largest producer of copper and palm oil. It is now the United Nations second largest source of tin."

In addition to raw materials, the Belgian nation has supplied several troop units to the Allies, the speaker added. A Belgian commando unit and colonial troops from the Congo have given valuable assistance in the Mediterranean theater of war.

M. de Thier quoted from a speech delivered recently in London by the Belgian prime minister, Mr. Hubert Pierlot.

"The closer co-operation which the United Nations must be continued after victory, for it is the essential condition of the lasting security both in the economic and in the political sphere. I am certain that Belgium will accept in this connection all duties compatible with the extent of her capacity, provided the powers on whom peace depends maintain the strength and the unity of action without which respect for international justice cannot be assured."

Mrs. Cloyd Heck Marvin, the president, presided and introduced the speaker. Announcement was made that a Valentine party will be given for new members from 4 to 6 p. m. next Wednesday.

Panama Auxiliary To Meet Tuesday

The Women's Auxiliary of the Panama Canal Zone Society will hold a luncheon meeting February 15 at the Fairfax Hotel for members and friends.

Mrs. William D. Wrightson is president of the society; Mrs. E. H. Davidson, secretary, and Mrs. Ben Jenkins, treasurer.

Gonzaga Mothers To Hold Benefit

A card party and dance, for the benefit of a scholarship fund, will be given by the Gonzaga Mothers' Association Friday evening at the Mayflower Hotel.

The chairman, Mrs. John F. Hilliard, is being assisted by Mrs. Eugene F. Langan, in charge of reception; Mrs. William Gleason, patrons; Mrs. Joseph S. McGrath, tickets; Mrs. Raymond P. Murray, entertainment; Mrs. William Carbo, prizes, and Mrs. Joseph McGill, tallies and favors.

Sorority Chapters List Meetings

District sorority chapters have several meetings scheduled this week. The Alumnae Chapter, Gamma Phi Beta, will meet at 8 o'clock tonight at the home of Mrs. Seymour Payne, 4917 Crescent place, Crestview, Md. Mrs. C. P. Akre, province director, will preside and discuss her tour of the sorority's chapters. Mrs. Payne will be assisted by Mrs. James M. Cracker, Mrs. J. W. Tilley and Miss Erma Hughes.

Musical entertainment will be featured at the supper meeting of the Alpha Gamma Deltas tomorrow at the home of Mrs. J. E. Sautstad, 2021 Massachusetts avenue N.W. The hostess will be assisted by Miss Ethel Riley.

A tea in honor of the Alpha Chi Omega Chapter, American University, will be given by the sorority's alumnae at 4 p. m. Sunday at 2929 Connecticut avenue N.W. Miss Molly Blackwood will preside as hostess assisted by Miss Marian Belknap and Miss Sybil Burdeshaw. Mrs. Stanford Stelle is in charge of reservations.

Voteless League To Meet Tuesday

The District Voteless League of Women Voters will hold its first evening meeting of the season at 6:15 p. m. Tuesday at the YWCA, 614 E street N.W. The meeting is designed to permit members unable to attend day sessions to follow the league's study of how Washington slums and inadequate housing contribute to the problem of juvenile delinquency.

Dinner will be followed by a presentation of slides, "They Are Our Slums," by Mrs. William H. Wells, and a talk, "Housing and Juvenile Delinquency," by Capt. Rhoda Milliken of the Women's Bureau, Metropolitan Police Force. Mrs. Eugene Duffield, president of the league, will preside.

Tickets are in charge of Mrs. Edna Johnston, 2301 Connecticut avenue N.W., through whom reservations may be made by calling Michigan 3322 after 7 p. m. Saturday. The meeting is open to members and others interested in the subject of the program.

Board Meets Friday

AMG Asks Grace Moore To Form Opera Group

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—Opera Singer Grace Moore says she has been asked by the Allied military government to form a company of American opera stars to perform soon for troops in Italy at the 200-year-old San Carlo Opera House in Naples.

She said selection of singers chosen from a list of those voted favorites of the troops in a poll was under way. The operas to be sung, she added, also were selected by a soldier poll, the first two requests being "La Boheme" and "La Tosca."

Miss Moore said she hoped the Naples performance could be given by early summer.

Back From the Wars

Big Sea Battles Off Guadalcanal Were Seen but Not Heard

Twenty miles off the beaches of Guadalcanal the soundless fireworks of night sea battles took place. In the South Pacific darkness big guns and broadsides flared and explosions flashed white, illuminating suddenly the superstructures, but not identifying the crippled ships.

On the beach, Marine Corp. George A. Craig, 20, son of Lt. and Mrs. A. J. Craig, 5230 North Eleventh road, Arlington, used to watch and worry.

"We could never tell until morning what the score was," he said. "We couldn't cheer a hit because we didn't know whether it was ours or a Jap ship going down. We just went around saying, 'Gosh, hope that was theirs!'"

Corpl. Craig, a graduate of Washington-Lee High School, joined the Marine Corps Reserve a week before his 1940 graduation. He was enrolled in George Washington University when he was called up for

Stories of Veterans Wanted by Star

This is another of a series of interviews with men from the Washington area who have returned from overseas duty. Friends and relatives of servicemen returning from battle zones are urged to write or telephone the city editor of The Star at NA. 5000. The Star wants to give these men of the armed forces a chance to tell their stories to the thousands of interested Washingtonians.

active duty with the marine engineers November 7, 1940. He shipped for the South Pacific the following April.

Landed With Marines

September 18 he landed with the reinforcing marine divisions on Guadalcanal in time for the two battles of Matankau and the engagement at Koli Point.

"We laid out roads," Corpl. Craig said. "Anywhere a truck could go we laid out a road. We'd mark them out from where we stood to some coconut tree and then around the corner, if we could get around the corner, on the next landmark. When we came to jungle growth we just cut our way through. But when we got our turn with the bulldozer we could do in one day what it took manpower several days to do."

The roads he had a part in building were just crude trails to allow initial passage of equipment, he said. The Seabees came in later and constructed the present road system on the island.

Stood Night Watches

"I've heard some of the men who came off Guadalcanal after I did talk about buzzing along the roads down to the point. We used to fall in a hole with every turn of the wheel."

Corpl. Craig's duty included standing watches on the beach by night. He was stationed close to the naval operating base and through the grapevine would hear when sea battles were expected.

Then he would watch the grim, silent display and wonder who was coming out victor. Survivors were brought in past his post and given medical aid. The seriously wounded were flown off the island to a base hospital.

Corpl. Craig went from Guadalcanal to Australia and then was shipped to the United States. He is now on temporary leave from the Naval Hospital at Bethesda, where he is under treatment for malaria and a tropical disease.

January Fat Salvage Record Set for D. C.

Collections of used household fats last month broke all previous records for the District, officials of the District Salvage Committee announced today. The collections totaled 122,420 pounds, representing an increase of 260 per cent over November.

The "January Is Fat Salvage

Month" campaign conducted here played an important part in increasing the collections, James E. Colliflower, chairman of the Salvage Committee, said.

Official War Production Board figures disclose that in December the District outranked 34 States in the percentage of fat quotas collected.

Hanneken in Terror Of Danish Revenge, Traveler Reports

By NAT A. BARROWS,
Foreign Correspondent of The Star and Chicago Daily News.

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 9.—(Maj. Gen. Hermann von Hanneken, supreme German authority in Denmark, does not appear to be enjoying his job very much as he sits in his headquarters at Silkeborg and studies his anti-invasion plans. He seems to be trying to find the answer for the Danish sense of humor and its subtle application against German oppression.

"Von Hanneken has always been a bully, full of arrogance and bluster, but now he is showing deep worry about his own fate," a traveler just back from Denmark tells your correspondent. "He has just increased his personal bodyguard and it is possible to see him only in its presence. He is more subdued nowadays as if realizing finally what Danish resistance really means.

Von Hanneken, this informant is convinced, fears that the Danish underground is going to kill him as part payment for the Nazi-inspired murder of the beloved pastor and playwright, Kaj Munk.

Underground members shrugged their shoulders with a patient gesture when they learned that Pastor Munk's murderers—three members of the Danish Nazi Schalburg corps—had been able to get refuge inside Germany, hardly a leap and a bound ahead of the underground agents who had solved the murder in their own way.

Your correspondent has a firsthand account of German duplicity in the Munk murder. At first 40

Danish detectives were working on the case, which stirred all Scandinavia as few other deaths could have done, when the trial got hot orders came from Von Hanneken's Silkeborg headquarters and two investigators were withdrawn from the case, then two more until the entire force was gone.

The Germans were calling on the telephone for the latest reports every half hour during the height of the investigation.

"They got the murderers safely away, but we can wait—we can wait," said the underground. "Our memories are long and our revenge is certain."

Atrocity Stories Called Hurdle to 'Just Peace'

By the Associated Press.
PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 9.—Dr. Albert W. Palmer, president of the Chicago Theological Seminary, says that the publication of Japanese atrocity stories will tend to prevent a "just peace."

Dr. Palmer, who described the Japs as the "cleanest, most polite" people in the world and "the greatest experts in the training of youth," told a United Peace Chest meeting: "There are always atrocities in war. War itself is the supreme atrocity. When atrocities are unilateral, one party is shocked. When they are bilateral, we have a way of playing the game so they don't shock us too much."

D. C. Navy Corpsman's Heroism in Gilberts Told by Companion

The following story was written by Sgt. Jack Pepper, Oklahoma City, a Marine Corps combat correspondent, about Pharmacist (Second Class) Jack Barnett, son of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Barnett, 2515 Thirteenth street N.W.

TARAWA ATOLL, Gilbert Islands (Delayed).—A Navy corpsman usually is a noncombatant, but I have just spent 13 days with one who went through the hell of war to render first aid to the marines.

An 180-pound bunch of energy, Jack Barnett has red hair and a belief that God helps those who help themselves.

He endured the entire 76-hour battle of Tarawa Atoll and was still going strong after the battle, for, with one other corpsman, he helped to keep several hundred men on their feet for nine nights and days to bring vital material ashore.

For a flame-thrower assault unit it would have proved a lot harder battle had not "Red" (or "Doc") been with them.

When the unit was called to go ashore the commander wasn't going to let Red go with them. He was told he could go in a few days, but Red hit the ceiling. He screamed, he swore, and he went ashore.

50-Yard Beachhead.
It was night when the unit reached the beach. There was only a 50-yard beachhead, and behind that were the Japanese. The men dug foxholes and went to sleep, ready for the next day's work, but adventure started that night for Red.

A lone Japanese bomber flew over the island, and the pilot picked the spots he wanted to drop his three bombs. We had no antiaircraft defense weapons set up. The third bomb fell near Red's foxhole, and he received a shrapnel wound in the cheek.

My foxhole was near Red's, and the next morning I could see his was a good 4 feet deeper.

"You know," he said, "I don't know where I put that dirt. I just laid there and dug, and sank, and dug, and sank."

The unit got its flame thrower gear together and started out to burn the Japanese from their underground pillboxes.

Soon the Leathernecks were coming back to the beach suffering everything from bullet and shrapnel wounds to blistered feet and home sickness. Red completely dominated the situation.

Tests Water and Rations.
They asked him to sample the water when it didn't taste right. He tasted a can of field rations when they thought it might be rotten. Expecting him to know all the tropical diseases, he was asked what each one was, expected to treat it and cure it in a few minutes. The marines looked on him as a combined traveling medicine salesman and modern hospital.

When he could not treat a marine, he would order him sent to a hospital ship. Many a marine argued, faked good health and pleaded with Red to be left ashore. Red's word was law and the marine was sent back.

His affect on the morale of the marines was summed up by one tough sergeant who said:

"You know that guy not only doctored my feet, but he gave me a mental shot in the arm that made me feel a lot better. Guess that's what they call keeping up the morale."

Red went on some of the flame throwing trips carrying his first aid equipment. We had left our packs on the beach, carrying only two canteens of water and a rifle.

Run Into Jap Sniper.
One evening Red and I went back to the beach for supplies. At the end of the air strip we ran into a Japanese sniper who had a machine gun in a palm tree. We made for a shell hole, sat down, lit a cigarette and waited for the Jap to run out of ammunition, or go to sleep, we hoped.

In 10 minutes Red stuck his head against the shell hole and looked toward the general direction of the sniper. A slug landed three feet in front of us. As long as we stayed against the side of the shell hole we were all right, but the direction we wanted to go was away from the side. "You know, Pepper, we can't stay here," said Red. "It's getting dark and this is not a safe place to spend the night."

"Yes," I said.

Race 100 Yards.
It was a good 100 yards across that air strip to where there was safety.

After one hour, and two packages of cigarettes, Red said: "Well, we haven't any more matches, our water is gone, the guys back at the front need me, and besides I want another cigarette, so let's go." And we took off.

How we got across that air strip I'll never know. Three feet behind Red, I could feel the machine gun trained on my back. That Jap must have been a lousy shot. After running "100 miles" during "three weeks" of mental agony, we jumped into a large shell hole. We had made it.

"Gee, you know," Red commented. "I used to read about this in books once. Why this is just like those times in France during the last war!"

Civil Service Head Warns Of Postwar Job Problems

War veterans must be given job preference in the postwar period because some 11,000,000 of them will have been "completely out of touch with rapidly changing events in this country," Commissioner Arthur S. Flemming of the Civil Service Commission said last night before the War Association of New York.

He warned, however, that civilians discharged from war plants and Federal agencies likewise will need employment to keep the Nation's economy balanced.

those to be placed in key war positions, adding that 30,653 among 190,171 persons investigated from July 1, 1940, through December 31, 1943, were rated ineligible because of perjury or a reasonable doubt as to their loyalty to this country. Discussing personnel turnover, Mr. Flemming said the Government recruited slightly more than 1,000,000 new persons in the last six months of 1943, though total employment in the period actually declined by 190,000, compared with the preceding six months.

Mme. Espil Finds Argentine Upper Crust Outdresses Her

By HELEN LOMBARD.

Mme. Felipe Espil, wife of the former Ambassador from the Argentine to the United States, was adjudged, during her husband's long tenure of office in Washington, one of the six best-dressed women in America.

Mme. Espil, the former Courtney Letts of Chicago, had both the taste and the means to implement it, and she became one of the ultrachic matrons of Washington. Ambassador Espil was recalled to Buenos Aires when the Argentine Republic was at its lowest point of co-operation with the United States. A long-time friend of this country, he took his time in getting back to his own country. On their way the Espils stopped in Peru and did some other Latin American sight-seeing. This week he was appointed Argentine Ambassador to Brazil.

Mme. Espil has written her old friends in Washington of the lavishness of South American social life is beyond imagination. In Buenos Aires the ultra-smart Chicagoan-Washingtonian finds herself outdressed, outjeweled and outfurred and says she does not know how she is going to keep up with the Argentinian upper crust.

Where is this Latin American money coming from? Even Argentina has been able to do only a limited business with the Axis through neutral Spain and Portugal. Direct business between the Argentine and the United States had reached a virtual standstill due to the poor diplomatic relations existing between the two countries. It appears it was not moral and diplomatic pressure exerted on the Buenos Aires government or economic attrition which swung the country into line. Observers here believe the Argentine broke off with the Axis not because of the desire for direct lease-lend or because of economic pressure, but because the government was alarmed at the rate

Lt. Joseph T. Brophy Wounded in Italian Action

Lt. Joseph T. Brophy, 31, a former attorney at the General Accounting Office, was wounded in action in Italy January 3, it was learned yesterday.

From a hospital in Italy Lt.

Brophy wrote the following account of the incident to a friend, Joseph L. Fitzmaurice, 8-D Hillside road, Greenbelt, Md. "A German grenade did the damage, roughed up the right side of my face and left hand. But I'm getting along and the only thing I have to show for it is what looks like scratches, which the 'docs' say won't even leave scars."

Lt. Brophy, who has been overseas since December, 1942, entered the Army as a private in March, 1942, and was commissioned at Fort Benning, Ga. He is a graduate of Georgetown University Law School and a member of the District Bar Association.

Cautious Role Blamed As Allies Lose Initial Advantage at Anzio

(Wes Gallagher, Associated Press war correspondent, has spent four years in Europe, during which he covered the Greek campaign, the American landing in North Africa and subsequent fighting in Tunisia, Sicily and Italy. He recently has returned to London to cover the headquarters of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's Allied expeditionary force.)

By WES GALLAGHER, Associated Press War Correspondent.

LONDON, Feb. 9.—Originally planned as a great offensive thrust to break the back of German resistance below Rome, the Anzio beachhead has become instead of a beachhead from the sea, the Allies face a steady drain on shipping from German rocket glider bombs.

The decision to follow a cautious role in the bridgehead was taken despite the fact that the surprise landings enabled the Allies to achieve the goal desired by all generals—numerical superiority at a given point of attack.

Both Advantages Lost.
It is now apparent that the advantages of surprise and numerical superiority both have been lost, for the Germans have been able to build up their strength and have brought in new divisions from the north. There is no reason to suppose they will not be able to hold this advantage.

The Allies thus find themselves definitely on the defensive in a position of major importance in the Mediterranean for the first time since Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower landed in North Africa and Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery began his march from El Alamein.

The original landings at Nettuno represented one of the greatest tactical surprises of the war. They were practically unopposed, the only German reserve divisions around Rome having been rushed south to the Cassino front.

Scattered German forces stood between the Allies and two key roads linking Rome and the main 5th Army front.

Cautious Role Chosen.
The Allied commanders had two choices:
1. To strike boldly for Rome and the highways with the idea of keeping the Germans so disorganized that they could not mount a counterthrust, gambling, meanwhile, on our ability to keep men and supplies flowing into the beachhead.

2. To move inland a few miles, then halt and make sure sufficient men and supplies were ashore to make the beachhead secure before moving forward.

The latter course was chosen. The decision to follow this cautious role is not the responsibility of any one commander. It must be shared equally by Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark, Gen. Sir Harold Alexander and Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, all of whom were on the scene and could have taken responsibility for a push forward.

Roosevelt to Be Entered in Illinois Primary
By the Associated Press.
SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 9.—President Roosevelt will be entered in the Illinois presidential preferential primary April 11, Edward P. Allen, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, said yesterday.

The President was on the 1936 and 1940 ballots in the advisory poll, which isn't binding on convention delegates.

Republican petitions were filed last week to put Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Southwest Pacific commander in chief, and Col. Robert R. McCormick, Chicago Tribune editor and publisher, on the 1944 ballot.

We are about to open up a second front. Open up your purse or wallet and buy that extra bond.

Lina Cavalleri, Singer, Feared Killed in Italy

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Feb. 9.—Varying reports of the death of an Italian artist, or members of her household, were received in London yesterday from Rome broadcasts.

The Associated Press listening station recorded a Rome broadcast as saying "Artist Lina Cavalleri was killed" by a bomb in a recent raid on Florence.

Reuters heard that a maid and business manager of "Cavallini" were killed.

The artist referred to may have been the former opera star, Lina Cavalleri, who was born at Rome in 1874 and later made her home in Paris.

Lina Cavalleri sang in New York, Chicago, Moscow and Paris. After divorcing her first husband, Prince Alexander Bariatinsky, she was married to Robert Winthrop Chandler, a grandson of John Jacob Astor. Lucien Muratore, a noted singer who once was associated with the Chicago Opera Co., was her third husband.

City Council in Cuba Goes on Hunger Strike

By the Associated Press.
HAVANA, Feb. 9.—The entire City Council of suburban Santiago de Las Vegas started a hunger strike yesterday against a private company serving water to the community.

Members of the council protested when the water company failed to turn its property over to the city at the end of a 15-year franchise as provided by law. The company took the matter to federal administrative courts in Havana.

Japs at Tulelake Get First Food From Home

By the Associated Press.
TULELAKE, Calif., Feb. 9.—The first shipment of food and drugs has been received from the Japanese government for use by Japanese nationals interned in the Tulelake Relocation Center. Ray Best, project director under the War Relocation Authority, has announced.

The shipment, arranged through the International Red Cross, arrived in New York recently on the liner Gripsholm. Mr. Best said. It consisted of 16 barrels of soy sauce, 747 barrels of a soy mixture, 30 barrels of soy bean mash and 5 cases of drugs.

Fullest Use of 'Surprise'
With B-29 Bomber Urged

By MAJ. ALEXANDER P. DE SEVERSKY.

In a previous dispatch we underlined the critical importance of surprise in weapons, tactics and strategy in this war. That element has a direct bearing on the new superbomber, the B-29, which was announced some time ago as in production. The new aircraft has been indicated, is twice as big as the present Flying Fortress, but the details must necessarily remain secret.

De Severson. Will we obtain the maximum benefits from the surprise factor inherent in this new aircraft? The answer depends on our military competence in equipping the plane itself and on our understanding of the surprise element. To begin with, an increased number of guns on the superbomber, as compared with present bombers, would be futile unless these guns are of larger caliber and longer effective firing range than heretofore. If the B-29 is to yield every ounce of military advantage, its superiority as a weapon must be in terms of quality even more than in terms of quantity. Indeed, greater bulk may be a handicap if it is not balanced by equivalent qualitative increases in such things as greater armor, more powerful types of artillery and longer firing range.

The possible advantages of the new craft, in addition, can be largely lost if we put it into action before we have accumulated enough B-29s for operations on a continuous and unrelenting basis up to a final decision. It should not be forgotten that the difficulties being encountered today by our bombers in the battle of Germany are due, in large part, to the fact that we tipped our hand too soon, thereby giving Hitler the time to neutralize our tactical superiority. We should avoid making the same sort of mistake in ushering in the B-29.

A heavy blow inflicted on the enemy can hurt us more than it hurts him—if in delivering it we reveal our equipment and tactics too soon. Few things, for example, could be more harmful than premature use of the B-29. Assume that we could gather a hundred or two of these superbombers at some distant base and proceed to give Japan a foretaste of the military power and tactical superiority of the B-29. If we were unable to follow through to a decision, this action would simply enable the enemy to take our measure, to obtain exemplars of the new aircraft and to develop measures for nullifying our momentary tactical advantage.

In the air, as on the ground, an offensive that is started maturely is doomed to failure. The writer is convinced that no new weapon should be brought to bear against Japan until we have enough of it to force the battle to a relentless conclusion, which in this case means the annihilation of Japan's basic means of conducting war.

Birmingham Post Loses Appeal of NLRB Ruling

By the Associated Press.
NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 9.—Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday ordered enforcement of a National Labor Relations Board order instructing the Birmingham Post Co. to refrain from alleged interference with self-organization of its employees.

The company asked that the order be set aside for insufficient evidence, claiming the complained-of activities of its city editor and foreman of the mailing room could not be charged against the company as its acts.

In ruling, the court stated: "It is firmly established that the petitioner's duty under the National Labor Relations Act is not to give mere lip service to it with proclamations and instructions, but to use its authority to make its policy effective."

The controlling consideration in a case of this kind, the court added, "is whether employees have been subjected to prohibited compulsions flowing from the employer's economic power which the employer

Todd Duncan Gives Unique Recital in Howard U. Chapel

By ALICE EVERSMAN.

A recital that well illustrated his unique artistry was given last night by Todd Duncan in the chapel at Howard University. Mr. Duncan, who begins a long concert tour following this recital, was greeted enthusiastically by a capacity audience that had seats placed upon the stage for its accommodation. The gifted baritone was in splendid voice and gave of his best with the very able assistance of William Allen at the piano, who played his accompaniments from memory and aided in the success of the evening by his sensitive support of the singer.

While possessed of the ability to grasp the innate essentials of the varied styles present in the selections of the program, Mr. Duncan brings a highly individual approach to his interpretations. In practically every number he sang, some point was emphasized that had not occurred to other artists singing the same songs. Thus his first group of Brahms and Strauss was sketched with dramatic insight which, although a departure from the traditional delivery that allows the text and the music to speak for themselves, had an arresting intensity. Strauss' "Ruhe, meine Seele" and Brahms' "Verrath" were projected with new potency in contrast to the former's lighter "Ich trage meine Minne" and the latter's charming "Der Gang zum Liebchen."

Moussorgsky's "Evening Prayer" is a favorite with baritones but seldom has it had just the right measure of effect given to it as Mr. Duncan achieved. It followed Rachmaninoff's "O, Thou Billowy Harvest Field" which the artist sang in strict vocal style reserving any attempt at special interpretation until the dramatic climax. The rich quality of his voice and his skilled use of it was allowed the freest expression in this group that included further Cecil Cohen's interesting "As at Thy Portals Also Death," and Lippe's "How Do I Love You." The latter disclosed the singer's higher range to the best advantage.

The aria, "Promesse de mon avenir" from Massenet's "Le Roi de Lahore," delivered with emotional feeling, introduced two other numbers, Tiersot's "Briolage" and Saint-Saens' "Danse Macabre," which again called upon Mr. Duncan's dramatic powers in stressing the meaning of the text. William Grant Still's "Here's One," the spiritual "My Good Lord's Done Been Here" arranged by Hall Johnson, Cole-ridge-Taylor's "Life and Death" and Thomas Kerr's "Riding to Town" brought the recital to an end.

Crippled Children Society Opens Clinic Tomorrow

Twenty children will be examined at the Consultation Clinic for cerebral palsied children when it opens for service tomorrow at the headquarters of the District Society for Crippled Children, 1220 New Hampshire avenue N.W.

The clinic will be held monthly by Dr. Winthrop M. Phelps, director of the Children's Rehabilitation Institute, Baltimore. He is consultant on cerebral palsied programs for nine States and counsellor on cerebral palsy for the National Society for Crippled Children.

Mrs. Jewell C. Gaffney, executive secretary of the District Society for Crippled Children, will be in charge. Mrs. Rudolph Max Kauffmann and Mrs. George Pariseau, Grey Ladies of the Red Cross, will assist in conducting the clinic.

The clinic, which offers its services free of charge, is supported by the annual Easter Seal sale of the District Society for Crippled Children.

WE CANNOT (FAIRLY) ENCOURAGE TRAVEL

"We are sorry, but"—

As this is wartime, we cannot anticipate if and when the crowded conditions of our passenger trains will be relieved. That's why we request that you travel sparingly.

We are grateful for the loyalty and co-operative spirit of our patrons. But we cannot fairly encourage pleasure travel until after the war is won and the imperative need for passenger equipment has passed.

Then, we expect to supply finer service than ever between the East and Florida. But this is wartime. And wartime is the time to travel sparingly!

TRAVEL SPARINGLY*

If you MUST travel you can help solve the wartime transportation problem if you will:

- Plan every trip and buy round-trip tickets well in advance.
- Cancel your reservations promptly, if you change your plans.
- Accept available accommodations cheerfully.
- Travel in mid-week.
- Travel light, taking only one piece of baggage.
- Wait your turn in the dining car patiently.

Benning Citizens Ask First Aid Facilities In District Building

The Benning Citizens' Association became among the first District groups to petition Senator Bilbo, new chairman of the Senate District Committee, when it passed a resolution last night asking him to act on the lack of first-aid facilities at the District Building.

Introduced by F. E. James, the resolution requests the Senator to find out "why Dr. George C. Ruhland, District health officer, and the Commissioners allow this condition to exist."

Mr. James pointed out that since the Health Department was moved to the new Municipal Center Building, "not even a 10-cent box of aspirin was left for the convenience of the close to 1,000 workers, most of them women, in the District Building."

Fairfax Village Admission To Federation Is Opposed

A motion opposing admission of the Fairfax Village Citizens' Group to the Federation of Citizens' Associations was passed last night by the Summit Park Citizens' Association. Delegates to the federation were instructed to take action when that body meets.

During discussion on the motion it was asserted that the Fairfax Village Group has in its membership only tenants of the Fairfax Village Apartments. These persons, it was contended, are not property owners and action taken by them as a citizens' association would affect property costs in the vicinity.

OPA May Bar Higher Price To Coal Mines Idle Sunday

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 9.—The regional OPA office wants anthracite mines which fail to operate on Sundays to be barred from receiving any part of a new 45-cents-a-ton ceiling price increase.

A recommendation to that effect has been sent to the national OPA office. Regional officials said they were disappointed that only 64 per cent of the 80,000 anthracite miners headed Secretary Ickes' request for full Sunday production this month to relieve the hard coal shortage.

Justice Bailey Sits First Time With All-Woman Jury

Justice Jennings Bailey of District Court yesterday for the first time in his some 25 years on the bench had an all-woman jury. It is sitting in the trial of a damage suit for injuries allegedly sustained by a youth in 1941 when struck by a truck.

The District Court attaches recalled that there was an all-woman jury some years ago which sat in a criminal case. So far as they could remember, however, the jury was the first all-woman group to sit in a civil case in the court. The jurors, all married, are:

Mrs. Agnes E. Faulkner, Mrs. Marian E. Carpenter, Mrs. Elizabeth Brown, Mrs. Susan G. Dabrow, Mrs. Olive Y. Fuller, Mrs. Lois M. Blackstock, Mrs. Meta F. Eldridge and Mrs. Jessie L. Clift, housewives; Mrs. Vera D. Snyder, clerk; Mrs. Gladys S. Damewood, telephone operator; Mrs. Mildred L. Jaffe, bookkeeper, and Mrs. Lois S. Caldwell, a secretary.

The jury is hearing the suit of

Allies Prepare to Meet Rocket Bomb Gliders When Invasion Begins

By DON WHITEHEAD, Associated Press War Correspondent.

NAPLES, Feb. 9.—When the great invasion of the European continent begins, one of the big responsibilities of the Allied air forces will be to prevent any concentrated use by the Germans of rocket-propelled glider bombs.

There is no breach of security involved in saying that this new aerial weapon of the Nazis is a potent threat against shipping. The Germans know it and the Allies know it.

An invasion fleet at anchor is like a flock of sitting ducks unless air cover can intercept the control plane from which the gliders are directed by radio.

Antiaircraft fire is only partly effective against the small winged projectiles, because they sweep down on their targets swiftly and are difficult to hit. As a matter of fact, it is usually only a lucky hit when one is stopped by ack-ack fire.

Salerno Recalled. The Germans used glider bombs against the invasion fleet at Salerno and again at Anzio during the 5th Army's behind-the-lines thrust. Censorship prevented disclosure of the full effectiveness of this weapon until Winston Churchill announced its use at Salerno. Again at Anzio, correspondents with the landing forces were forbidden to say the Germans were using rocket bombs against shipping. A directive said no mention was to be made of the glider projectiles.

Since then, however, these restrictions have been lifted. Now the correspondents may tell something in detail of what the rocket bombs are like and how the Germans use them.

From descriptions pieced together by several eyewitnesses who have watched these winged weapons attack, it is learned the bomb is about 20 to 30 feet long, with tail fins acting as a stabilizer and rudder. It has a wingspread of some 15 feet and in flight it looks like a small plane.

Armor-Piercing. Apparently it is armor-piercing. At Salerno, one of them that hit a ship penetrated thick steel deck-plates and exploded in the craft's interior.

The bomb is attached to the belly of a twin-engine Heinkel bomber, which is equipped as a control plane. When still some distance from the target, the bomber plane's pilot releases the glider and drops the flaps on his plane's wings to slow his own speed, until the bomb shoots ahead into the pilot's vision.

From the time of its release, the glider apparently is controlled visually and directed by radio. The glider can make a sharp turn to swoop in on its target from the side, if necessary.

Except when the control plane is in trouble from fighter attack or ack-ack, or the glider is hit by shrapnel, the bomb appeared to observers to be under excellent control at all times.

Some Miss Targets. This does not mean the rocket bombs always score a hit. They don't. Many of them fall harmlessly into the sea, either because the pilot loses control at the last minute or because they overshoot the target.

Whether the enemy can muster a large fleet of rocket-bomb gliders for use against an invasion is not known, but it is logical to assume—and the Allied air forces must go on the assumption—that the Germans can concentrate large numbers against an invasion armada. And the air forces must be prepared to protect shipping from this type of attack.

Witnesses tell of a red-and-green glow at the tail of the glider when the rocket is in flight. This apparently is caused by the propelling charge. At the Anzio Beach Capt. Clark Neal, Clarendon, Ark., was standing at the rail of a ship late one afternoon when the Germans came over with glider bombs.

"I saw one of the bombs heading for a ship near us," he explained. "It made a screaming sound in flight and looked like a small plane. At first I thought it was a plane that had been shot down and was falling into the water.

"There was a light in the tail end which changed from green to red. It looked like a faint tracer."

Saybury's
Koffee Koats
And Robes

Make Your Leisure Moments Cheerful

—You prize them highly these days... those precious moments when you can "take it easy," relax with a book or chat lazily over the coffee cups with friends or family. Nice to have something gay and colorful to slip into, like the famous "Saybury" koffee coats and robes!

"Crowing Rooster"-----$5.95

—Early risers won't find it half bad if they have a gay koffee coat like this to slip into! Dress-length wraparound in cotton and spun rayon... maize, blue or red. Sizes 12 to 20.

"Blossom Time"-----$7.95

—Lighthearted as the first Spring crocus! Figure-flattering wrap-around robe with slim waist and graceful skirt. Spun rayon and cotton in predominating shades of maize, red or blue. Sizes 12 to 20.

"Carnation"-----$12.95

—Feminine as a lacy Valentine! Enchanting young robe with zipper to the waist and a pretty ruffled collar to frame your face. In Crown-Shan, an all-rayon soap-n-water fabric. Pastel backgrounds. Sizes 12 to 20.

Kann's—Robe Department—Second Floor.

Rayon
Slips In White
And Tearose

$1.69

—Made of long-wearing rayon satins and rayon crepes in lace-trimmed and tailored styles... four-gore, bias-cut and non-bias types. White and tearose. Sizes 32 to 40. You'll want several to wear under new frocks and suits.

Kann's—Lingerie Department—Second Floor.

Cottons that Serve on the Home Front....

Brunch Coats, 14 to 20
Shirtwaists, 14 to 44
Coat Frocks, 14 to 44

$1.99

—Lighten and brighten your home-front duties with cottons gay as Spring sunshine! We've a bumper crop of laundry-loving frocks in your favorite styles... easy-to-slip-into brunch coats, button-front coats and shirtwaists. All well made of tubfast cottons in gay stripes, prints and checks. Sizes for misses and women.

Points for Parents —By EDYTH THOMAS WALLACE

Having some choice as to household tasks makes children more willing to do their share of the disliked ones.

This Mother—Here's the list of jobs to be done Saturday morning. How about each one of you choosing one of them, and then we'll divide up the others that no one wants to do?

Not This Mother—Jean, you and Mary do the dishes, and Paul, you sweep the porch. After you get through, I'll tell you what to do next. Hurry up now and get started, because there's lots to do.

Nature's Children
By LILLIAN COX ATHEY.

DOG WHELKS
(Nassa trinitata).

Along our Atlantic seaboard, from Maine to Florida, a familiar inhabitant of the sandy shores is the dog whelk. It has a long spire with close spiral ridges, and these are crossed by stronger beaded ones. The sinus is deep between the luted aquarium, will quickly restore it to healthy condition.

One of the fascinating games to play on the seashore is to locate the trail left in the sand or mud by a dog whelk. The initiated follows it and halts before a small ball of mud. With his mud dug removed, there is nothing for the dog whelk to do but to scurry for the water.

Dog whelks have a keen sense of smell. Their sight is poor and their hearing negligible as the result of vibration in the water. The egg capsules resemble flat purses with minute stems and are attached to the stems of seaweeds. They overlap each other in a solitary row. The young escape through a hole at the top. They have hairy lobes by which they swim, and their antics are wonderful to observe.

Take My Word for It
By FRANK COLBY.

Surprise Word of the Week.

Most of us are quite familiar with the meaning of the word ROMANCE. "capable of being worked or shaped by being hampered." But I wonder how many of us know the correct pronunciation.

Still interested? Well, Romance (capital R) also means "the peo- ples, countries, and/or languages descended from the Romans." French, Spanish, Portuguese, Italian and Rumanian are corrupted forms of Latin; therefore, they are "Romance languages."

Since the word really doesn't mean "a love affair," your boyfriend literally will find romance all about him right there in Italy. It's hard to believe, but it's true.

Committee Quotas Set in Symphony's Drive for $130,000

Opening the fourteenth annual sustaining fund campaign of the National Symphony Orchestra, E. R. Pinkenstaedt, campaign chairman, today announced the quotas assigned to the 12 committees charged with raising the $130,000 goal.

The campaign officially was started at a luncheon at the Statler Hotel, with Dr. Henry P. Hubbard, assistant to the chairman of the Council of Personnel Administration, as chief speaker.

The quotas for the committees include Army, $4,000; associations, $7,000; business, $15,000; colleges and universities, $1,200; Government, $25,000; metropolitan, $52,800; Navy-Marine-Coast Guard, $4,500; Orchestra Guild, $11,000; parochial schools, $550; private schools, $700; public schools, $3,250, and suburban, $5,000.

Explaining that the $130,000 must be raised if the orchestra is to continue as a 90-piece organization with a 20-week season, Mr. Pinkenstaedt said the total budget for next season is estimated at $225,000. Of that amount, he said, approximately $95,000 probably can be obtained from ticket sales, concert engagements on tour and other special services.

The orchestra's summer season is not figured in the budget, Mr. Pinkenstaedt said, though the 1943 Water Gate series cost $50,000. The summer concerts are omitted from the budget estimates, he explained, because they came within $2,000 of "breaking even" last summer and next summer's concerts may pay for themselves if the weather is good.
